EBERT REGIME TOTTERS AS GERMANY RAGES

One More State and Women Win

WASHINGTON ACTS, MAKING 35 STATES IN SUFFRAGE LINE

The Resolution Ratifying the Anthony Amendment Was Passed Unanimously by House and Senate.

FORCES OF SUFFRAGE MOVE ON DELAWARE

General Assembly of That State Meets to Consider Amendment and It May Be Ratified Before the Day Is Over.

Olympia, Wash., March 22.—Ratification of the proposed suffrage amendment to the federal constitution was completed by the Washington legislature late today, when the senate unanimously passed a resolution ratifying the amendment. The resolution had previously been unanimously passed by the house. Washington was the thirty-fifth state to ratify the amendment.

Delaware Considers Suffrage.

Dover, Del., March 22.—The general assembly of Delaware convened here in special session at noon today to consider ratification of the equal suffrage amendment to the federal constitution.

Large delegations of suffragists and anti-suffragists are here to bring pressure on the legislators in the fight for and against the amendment.

THO' CONVICTED, HE IS WELCOMED BY HIS TOWNSMEN

—Menominee, Mich., March 22.—Roger M. Andrews, one of the seventeen defendants in the Newberry election case found guilty by a jury on Saturday, returned to his home here and was greeted uproarously by citizens of this city.

A delegation of business men met him at the railroad station and an address of welcome was extended. Floral tributes from many sources were received. Andrews asserted that "it were better that seventeen men go to jail for a violation of the election law than to have Henry Ford in the senate."

Andrews declared, however, that neither he nor the other defendants in the case had any feeling of moral turpitude. He said there were no apologies to make for their actions.

"We have just begun to fight," he declared, "and we will carry the case to the highest courts to prove our contention."

LABOR PLANNING EFFORT TO DEFEAT SENATOR CUMMINS

Washington, March 22.—Senator Cummins, republican, Iowa, is one of the memebrs of congress organized labor will attempt to defeat in November, according to L. E. Sheppard, acting president of the Order of Railway Conductors, who is in Washington today attending the railroad wage conference.

Senator Cummins was the author of the anti-strie provision of the railroad bill which was thrown out of conference. Mr. Sheppard indicated that union officials were carefully studying the record of every member of congress with respect to his stand on this provision and other labor matters, with a view to opposing in the elections those regarded as inimicable to organized labor.

WOMEN VOTERS CHARGE DANGEROUS LOBBY

Albany, N. Y., March 22.—Charges that a "powerful and perilous influence" is exerted over public opinion in the state by a "well financed and active combination" backed by the Associated Manufacturers and Merchants and aided by Speaker Thaddeus C. Sweet, of the assembly, are contained in a report filed with Governor Smith today by the New York State League of Women Voters, through its executive council, and the chairman, Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip.

The report declares that this combination, under the direction of Maria A. Daley, of Buffalo, secretary and legislative agent of the Associated Manufacturers and Merchants, is interfering with open and orderly legislative action on important matters, special reference being made to the eight-hour day, minimum wage and health insurance bills.

It is stated in the report that its findings are based on an expert investigation covering several months.

Wilson Names Woman to Board Of Civil Service

Helen Hamilton Gardener Nominated to Succeed Charles M. Galloway, Who Was Ousted From Commission.

Washington, March 22.—Helen Hamilton Gardener, of this city, widow of Colonel S. A. Day, and author and lecturer, was nominated today by President Wilson to be a member of the civil service commission. She will succeed Charles M. Galloway, of Columbia, S. C., who was "ousted" from the commission last year after the president had determined to reorganize it.

Mrs. Gardener, who is the first woman to be appointed to the commission, was born in Winchester, Va., 62 years ago, and has been prominent in suffrage work for a number of years. She also is the author of many short stories and essays.

With her appointment the reorganization of the commission is complete, the other members being Martin A. Morrison, of Indiana, and George P. Wales, of Vermont.

Reorganization of the commission was determined upon by the president last March, but Mr. Galloway did not comply until last September with the president's request that he resign. Upon his retirement he issued a statement saying that he and Herman W. Craven, a republican member, had been asked to retire because they "were not willing that the commission should be a mere adjunct to the postoffice department, and subservient to it, especially with reference to examinations for presidential postmasters."

DRY CHIEF HALED TO ASSEMBLY BAR

Albany, N. Y., March 22.—The New York state assembly, by a resolution adopted unanimously tonight, will compel William H. Anderson, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, to appear before the assembly judiciary committee to explain the foundation of statements, utterances and publications alleged to have been made by him against members of the legislature.

The resolution as adopted was amended materially from the form in which it was introduced by Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, democrat, of New York; the Cuvillier resolution, after reciting at length a list of alleged slanderous utterances made by Mr. Anderson against members of the legislature, demanded that he be brought before the bar of the assembly and held in custody of the sergeant-at-arms until he should affirm or deny the charges against him.

An amendment offered by Majority Leader Simon I. Adler and adopted without a dissenting vote, eliminated the clause requiring Mr. Anderson to be brought before the bar of the house and provided for an investigation by the judiciary committee.

Speeches by Assemblyman Cuvillier and Colonel Ransom H. Gillet, republican, preceded the adoption of the resolution. No defense of Mr. Anderson was made from the floor.

Urging favorable action, Mr. Cuvillier declared the time has come for the "house to protect its dignity."

"Mr. Anderson deliciously branded the legislature with being corrupt! he did not see fit to spare either party in this chamber, and he assailed the governor, the speaker and the legislature." He charged Anderson with being a "moral coward, who has been trying to browbeat this legislature."

Colonel Gillet, who is sponsor of a light-beer-and-wine bill, asserted it was not his desire to urge punishment of Mr. Anderson as an individual, because he didn't believe he was of enough importance to take up the time of this assembly."

Rev. Len Broughton Arrives in Atlanta For Bible Meeting

The Rev. Len G. Broughton arrived in Atlanta yesterday afternoon and registered at the Piedmont hotel, where he will remain during the rest of the week, while he addresses the Baptist Tabernacle conferenecs now being conducted at the Tabernacle.

Mr. Broughton left this city eight years ago to take charge of a church in London, since which time he has returned to his native land to take the pastorate of the First Baptist church of Knoxville, Tenn.

He stated that he liked Knoxville exceedingly and was pleased with his work there, and that he enjoyed his experience in England; but he added, in a positive and emphatic manner, that there is no place in the world like Atlanta. He will address the Bible conference daily at 3:30 p. m.

RIOTOUS SOLDIERS LOOSE THEIR GUNS ON DUBLIN PEOPLE

Two Men Were Shot Dead and Four Others Were Seriously Wounded as Result of Riot.

SOLDIERS PARADED IN IRRITATING WAY

They Jostled Civilians, Hammered Doors, Smashed Windows and Finally Opened Fire on the People.

Dublin, March 22.—(By the Associated Press.)—There was a riot here tonight in which two men were shot dead and four were seriously wounded. The riot was precipitated by the disorderly conduct of soldiers, about 300 of whom paraded the streets about 9 o'clock singing, jostling passers-by, hammering doors and smashing windows.

After parading through Harcourt street the soldiers returned toward their barracks, followed by a large crowd of civilians. At the Portobello bridge, near the barracks, a clash seemed inevitable and a volley was fired over the heads of the crowd, but by whose orders is unknown.

The shooting which resulted in the killing of the two men and the wounding of other persons took place in Richmond street. The circumstances surrounding it are not yet known.

The soldiers who started the disorder eventually returned to their barracks. Other soldiers not concerned in the rioting were roughly handled by the populace while returning alone to the barracks.

15,000 MOURNERS ESCORT THE BODY OF SLAIN MAYOR

Cork, March 22.—Fifteen thousand persons marched today in the procession escorting the body of the late Thomas MacCurtain, lord mayor of Cork, from the cathedral, where funeral services for him were held, to the cemetery of St. Finn Barr, where the burial took place. Some 8,000 republican volunteers, many of them in uniform, were in the ranks of the marchers who paid tribute to the memory of the murdered head of the city government, who was shot to death early Saturday morning by an unidentified assassin.

Trains brought great crowds to the city this morning and the shops were closed in order to afford the citizens an opportunity of testifying their respect for the late lord mayor.

There is a gravely tense feeling in the city. Bishop Colahan has appealed to the population to preserve order.

Ireland Greatly Stirred.

London, March 22.—Dispatches from Ireland show the murder of Thomas MacCurtain, lord mayor of Cork, to have produced an intense, if subdued, sensation throughout Ireland. This tragedy, says The London Times' correspondent in Dublin, closed one of the blackest weeks since the rebellion of 1916. He gives a long list of outrages in various parts of the island, including five murders of policemen and others and an attempt to kill Professor Stockley, of Cork.

The motive of the murder of the lord mayor continues as mysterious as ever. No arrests have been reported, nor, so far as known, have any clews to the perpetrators been obtained. Among the theories advanced is one that MacCurtain was murdered as a warning to others because he recently had the courage to publicly deprecate an attempt to murder a policeman in Cork..

London newspapers, while unreservedly condemning the crime, maintain it does not differ from those which have long terrorized Ireland. It is declared that Ireland for the moment is largely under the domination of secret murder societies, the members of which are sworn to kill those whom they believe to stand in their way, but who the conspirators are puzzles the police as much as the public.

Noted as Phenomenon.

It is remarked as a phenomenon that where murder societies exist, members after a while begin to be suspected of murdering each other. Existence of these supposed societies is declared possible owing to the "moral cowardice of the Irish public." The crimes the societies commit are repugnant to the better sort of Sinn Feiners, who, however, keep silence, fearing the consequences if they condemn the assassins, the paper says.

Even newspapers which support home rule, while condemning what they regard as the present evil system of Irish government, also denounce Irishmen themselves for condoning methods which they say are fast establishing a condition of anarchy and terrorism, under which their own leaders may soon be powerless to deliver them. The anti-home rule Morning Post again attacks the government today and denounces Field Marshal French and James Ian Macpherson, saying: "They are bringing about the hideous necessity of reconquering Ireland by force of arms" and "civil war is within sight."

Northern Lights Seen In Atlanta Monday Evening

By Paul Warwick.

You can't stop Atlanta: now she's seen the aurora borealis. Or better, some of her citizens have seen it. Which is quite a distinguishing feat for a city so near the equatorial waistline of the corpulent old world. Just a small portion commoner, is this view of the northern lights, in the north land, nearer to the home of polar bears and whale-blubber appetites.

But the northern lights did appear off Atlanta's northern horizon on Monday evening. Quite a crew of staid Atlantans were astounded by the phenomenon, for they didn't know whence, what, or why. Darktown darkened perceptibly, and its popular prediction that prayer meetings will rival mullet suppers for popularity with the dusky tribe for a few days.

The hardened old skeptics that scoff like regular humans breathe—regularly until they die—snatched at the contention that somebody was advertising a new brand of chewing-gum or hair net. The quite universal and bibulous class believed it had found another adverse test for the lumber yard attributes of alcohol.

Nice Appearing Aurora.

But it was a fairly nice appearing old aurora. It had all the indications of a success, with its white, waving steamers, and a hazier sort of glow that seemed to desire a central location in the display of etheral incandescence.

The peculiar electrical event was particularly noticeable in the low-

NEWBERRY SEAT SOUGHT BY FORD

Multi-Millionaire Begins Fight to Oust Convicted Senator—Borah Calls Halt Alleged Use of Money for General Wood.

By Robert T. Barry.
(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1920.)

Washington, March 22.—Henry Ford will begin tomorrow his second campaign for a seat in the United States senate. He will open his fight to oust Truman H. Newberry, convicted at Grand Rapids of unlawful use of money in the campaign that resulted in Mr. Ford's defeat. Mr. Ford's attorneys have served notice on the senate committee handling the contest for the Michigan seat they would insist upon prompt action by the senate following the federal court proceedings at Grand Rapids.

Excessive Use of Money.

Coincident with the Ford fight to have Mr. Newberry unseated because of excessive use of money in the campaign, Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, supporting Hiram Johnson, of California, for the republican presidential nomination, opened an attack on Major General Leonard Wood for alleged use by the Wood campaign committee of "vast sums of money."

"The use of money in elections has reached a point where the people will have to take hold of it, and, in my judgment, the people will do it," Mr. Borah said. "It is nothing less than a national peril that two months before the convention, the use of money in an attempt to control the convention has reached a point of scandal. I am not referring alone to the article in a New York newspaper this morning. For weeks these charges have been made, and made by men who profess to know the facts. That a vast sum of money is being spent is perfectly apparent."

Big Struggle Is Probable.

There were indications about the senate today that a political struggle of considerable proportions may develop over the Ford-Newberry contest. Progressive republican members of the senate were represented as being vigorously opposed to any procedure that might give rise to charges that the senate was wasting time in order to postpone action indefinitley in the matter. It was their expectation that Mr. Ford and his attorneys would counter any such program with a campaign of publicity that migth p rove harmful to the republican party.

Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, chairman of the senate subcommittee, has called the committee to meet tomorrow. It was expected today that the committee would order a re-count of the ballots, to be carried on under supervision of representatives of both contestants. There was no indica-

SAVAGE ATTACKS MADE ON LEAGUE BY SENATOR REED

SAYS ENGLAND SEEKS TO DOMINATE AMERICA

Hardwick Calls President "Imperial Autocrat." Senators Reed and and Smith Hold Conference in Room of Visitor.

Savage attacks were made on the Wilson administration by former Senator Thomas W. Hardwick and Senator James A. Reed at the Auditorium last night, when the Missouri senator for an hour and a half arraigned the league of nations as treason to America and those who supported, whether with or without reservations, knowing the effect of its provisions, as traitors. The audience numbered about 3,500, and, in spite of the chilliness of the building, which was unheated, a large majority of them remained to the end and manifested at times considerable enthusiasm.

The senator said that the league placed the United States at the mercy of England and seven of her vassal European monarchies, and that no number of reservations could cure its defects. The only reservation that went to the heart of the matter, he said, was one offered by himself, which provided that the league council could not bind us in any matter in which "our vital interests were at stake," and it had been four times voted down.

Makes Treason Charge.

After charging supporters of the league with treason to the American flag, the senator modified the scope of his charge by saying that he meant those who supported it with full knowledge of "what it would let us in for," quoting the words of Secretary Lansing, who, he said, "violated the constitution of President Wilson" in using such language, and lost his job because he "talked to Secretary Baker and Secretary Daniels."

Overshadowing Senator Reed's speech at the Auditorium, however, the topic of conversation in political circles Monday was almost entirely given up to a discussion of the probabilities of the Missouri senator's retiring from the race for presidential nomination in Georgia in favor of Senator Hoke Smith. The presence in the city together of both senators lent currency to all kinds of rumors.

Senators Hold Conference.

It developed later in the day that Senator Smith, Senator Reed and former Senator Hardwick held a conference together at Senator Reed's room in the Kimball house. None of the gentlemen present would reveal the results of the conference. Senator Smith had simply called to pay his respects to Senator Reed, it was said.

On his arrival in the city, Senator Reed was met at the Terminal state by former Senator Thomas Hardwick and taken to the Kimball house. Late in the afternoon a Constitution reporter called on Senator Reed. He found the Missouri senator, the Georgia senior senator and the former senator closeted together. Senator Smith opened the door when The Constitution representative, who had previously called up and arranged for an interview with Senator Reed, knocked; but he left immediately afterwards.

In reply to a question about Mr. Hoover, Senator Reed quickly retorted:

"I cannot discuss anything so inconsequential as Mr. Hoover."

When asked whether or not he would allow his name to go on the democratic ballot in Georgia as a candidate for president, Senator Reed said:

"I am not a candidate for president. I have never announced for the office or said that I would run. It is a position that is not to be sought by the solicitation of votes as one would run for bailiff or constable. I think there has been too much of that done already, and I don't intend to run that way. I am in no way responsible for the placing of my name on several petitions which have been circulated for the Georgia primary. My appearance to speak in Atlanta has no connection with the use of my name on these positions, as my engagements to return to Georgia and discuss the league of nations were made long before any suggestion had been made of the use of my name in the presidential race."

Why He Is Speaking.

The senator said that the speeches which he is scheduled to make in Georgia and Florida were

Beware of British, Warning Given Sims By Admiral Benson

Sims Asserted That Benson Repeated the Anti-British Warning Six Months Later in Paris.

SIMS GIVEN GRILLING BY SENATOR PITTMAN

Chairman Hale Clashes With Pittman Over the Manner of Some of Latter's Questions to Admiral—Sims Says He Wants All the Facts Brought Out.

Washington, March 22.—Rear Admiral Sims told the senate investigating committee today that Rear Admiral Benson, chief of naval operations during the war and now chairman of the shipping board, was the officer who told him "not to let the British pull the wool over your eyes; we would as soon fight them as the Germans."

This was not a formal instruction, the admiral said, but was told to him in the presence of other naval officers after Secretary Daniels had given him final instructions just before his departure overseas, where he later became commander of American naval forces. It was repeated the following day, he declared, and again six months later when Admiral Benson visited Paris.

Admiral Sims was reluctant to reveal the name of the officer making the statement, explaining that he had kept his presentation of the case clear of personalities and that he wished to continue to do so. Chairman Hale insisted, however.

Showed Letter to Davison.

Cross-examination by Senator Pittman, democrat, Nevada, developed that Admiral Sims had shown his letter criticising the navy department's conduct of the war to Henry P. Davison, of New York, about the middle of January, while he was a guest at Mr. Davison's home. Admiral Sims conceded that this was "an indiscretion."

Senator Pittman said he had reason to believe that a copy of the same letter had found its way to a Washington newspaper correspondent who probably would be called later.

Explaining his interpretation of what Admiral Benson said to him, the witness said he had not given the statement serious consideration at the time because he had assumed that it resulted from what he decribed as an intensely anti-British feeling entertained by Admiral Benson. He added that Admiral Benson was an "upstanding and honest man," exceedingly strong in his adherence to his convictions. It was due to Benson's personal confidence in him and advocacy of his cause that he was sent abroad and later reached the highest naval post overseas, the officer stated.

Commenting briefly on Secretary Daniels' statement before the committee, Admiral Sims said that in "his testimony on awards the secretary stated that he had reminded me of the indiscretion in a speech I made at Guild hall."

No Spring Chicken.

"The secretary's recollection on that point is thoroughly mistaken," the witness added. "No reference was made by anybody in the navy department to that occasion."

In reply to questions by Senator Pittman calculated to bring out that he made public his letter regarding naval decorations before Secretary Daniels received it, Admiral Sims declared neither he nor members of his staff gave the matter any publicity.

"I am no spring chicken," said the officer, "and am not putting my head into a noose unnecessarily. "I

MORGENTHAU CHOSEN FOR ENVOY TO MEXICO

Washington, March 22.—The selection of Henry Morgenthau, former ambassador to Turkey, to be ambassador to Mexico is expected to be announced soon from the white house. No official announcement was available today, but it is known that Mr. Morgenthau's name is foremost among those under consideration.

The new envoy will succeed Henry P. Fletcher, who resigned several weeks ago because he did not agree with the administration's Mexican policy.

$1.50 A DAY BONUS BACKED BY LEGION FOR SERVICE BOYS

Executive Committee of Legion Will Put to Congress to Pay $1.50 for Every Day of Service.

Washington, March 22.—The executive committee of the American Legion tonight put up to congress the proposal to pay adjusted compensation to former service men and women at the rate of $1.50 for every day of service.

This action reversed a previous vote taken by the committee which recorded thirty-seven state representatives in favor of the legislative committee's plan for cash relief at $1 a day, which was adopted as a substitute for the original proposal of $50 a month. The committee's determination to boost relief followed a general review of a composite bill which the legion will present to the house ways and means committee Wednesday, including privileged land settlement, home-building aid and extension of vocational training.

All provisions of the bill, except the award of cash based on the period of service, were adopted unanimously. Strong opposition developed tonight, however, to the $30 a month plan, and by a vote of 35 to 14 the demand was fixed at $1.50 a day.

Members of the committee said representatives of legion posts in twenty-six states indorsed the four-fold soldier relief bill, including land settlement, home aid, vocational training and adjustment of compensation, which was presented to congress several weeks ago.

Representatives from six states, Arkansas, Florida, Idaho, Mississippi, South Carolina and Texas, reported former service men were unalterably opposed to the proposal to pay cash adjusted compensation, while Georgia, Kentucky, New Mexico and West Virginia are in the doubtful class but are expected to support the plan of the majority. Two other states, Louisiana and Oklahoma, were reported as being divided in sentiment regarding payment of a cash bonus.

American Navy To Equal British In Four Years

Not So Many Ships, But They Will Equal British Vessels in Fighting Power.

Washington, March 22.—America's navy will about equal that of Great Britain in fighting power by 1924, Chairman Butler, of the naval committee, told the house today in defending the provision in the naval appropriation bill for continuing work on the eighteen capital ships now under construction.

"In the next four years," said Mr. Butler, "the United States will put out the most formidable armada the world has ever seen produced in a similar period."

In 1924, he continued, Great Britain will have 60 battleships, the United States 47, France 26, Japan 15 and Italy 13. While England will have more ships, he added, those of the United States will be about equal in power.

Kitchin Opposes.

Representative Kitchin of North Carolina, former democratic leader, opposed big ship construction, saying that England, Russia and France, were not building "sea monsters."

"Shouldn't we get back to normal conditions and wait to see what the other powers will do before we go ahead with our big ships?" he asked. "The league of nations may stop further big armament."

Representative Butler said that until the other nations agree to curtail battleship building and "keep their agreement," he believed it was "our business to put our army and our navy in such condition as will protect the United States from all other nations.

"For the first time in many years the only naval establishment and program in the world at all comparable with ours is that of England," Mr. Mondell said.

"No other navy or naval program is of a size or strength even re-

NOSKE RESIGNS AS REVOLUTION ROCKS COUNTRY

Reported That Resignation of the Minister of Defense Will Be Followed by the Entire Ebert-Bauer Cabinet.

SITUATION IS GOING FROM BAD TO WORSE

"You Cannot Paint the Situation Too Black," According to an Official. Spartacan Forces Apparently Control in All Industrial Centers.

Berlin, March 22.—(By the Associated Press.)—Gustav Noske, minister of defense, presented his resignation to President Ebert this afternoon, and the president accepted it. Other cabinet changes are imminent.

It is announced that the independents today demanded a definite labor cabinet and that the government is considering the demand.

Berne, March 22.—The whole Ebert-Bauer cabinet probably will reign, according to latest advices from Berlin. The crisis has been brought about by the great opposition aroused by the agreement with the trade unions, especially in the rural districts.

The situation in the western industrial regions and in upper Silesia, particularly Breslau, is still very serious, the advices said. The country populations, however, are calm everywhere. The peasants in western Germany are preparing to cut off the food supplies from the troubled industrial centers.

WORKMEN REFUSE TO ABANDON STRIKE.

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1920.)

Berlin, March 22.—The independent socialists and the workmen under their influence have refused to abandon the general strike.

Government officials anticipate the proclamation of a soviet republic in Berlin and attempt by the independent socialists and the communists to seize the city.

A red battalion of about 800 men was surrounded and disarmed by government troops in the suburb of Koepenick. The Spartacan leaders selected that as one of the centers of mobilization of a red army for an attack on Berlin itself.

The masses of the workmen in the other industrial suburbs are in violent mood and in possession of considerable quantities of arms. Patrols of troops and security police have been able to make their way through disturbed quarters only in riot formation and with rifles and machine guns ready for instant action. No organized resistance was attempted, the insurgents contenting themselves with potting at the government patrols from the roofs and upper windows and around corners with revolvers and rifles and throwing an occasional hand grenade. The patrols replied in the same fashion.

The situation outside Berlin undeniably is grave. Government representatives state frankly that it would be well to be prepared for reports of insurgent success for some time. They believe the tide will turn ultimately, but not until government troops are in a better position to combat with the insurgents. The red forces in west and central Germany, Thuringia and east Prussia, officials concede, probably will be able to hold their present territory and capture various cities by internal risings or by actual assault.

The most serious center of the insurrection continues to be the extreme wast. The workmen in those industrial districts, where arms are fabricated extensively are well supplied with weapons. Fighting in the west and at various places in central Germany is no longer of guerilla character, but regular, pitched battlese with heavy casualtiese on both sides. Essen, Gotha, Auhausen and many other cities in the Ruhr region and in Thuringen are in the hands of the insurgent workmen. Government forces have lost control in Stettin, Breslau and Duesseldorff, where socialist committees are now running or controlling the government. Troops are maintaining a precarious hold in parts of Kiel, Halle and Leipzifi.

Berlin, March 22.—Conditions in Germany were described by the ministry of defense this morning as extremely serious.

"You cannot paint the situation throughout Germany too black," an official at the ministry declared to the correspondent after a survey of the reports that had come in during the night.

The ministry informed the correspondent this morning that the conditions in the Ruhr district were becoming worse. The towns of Gelde, Ahlin and Drensteinfurt, in Westphalia, southeast of Muenster, had been taken by the communists, it was stated, and the movement was spreading north and east.

Pitched battles had been fought, the ministry's information showed, and two crack regiments of government troops had been forced to fall back on the fortress of Wesel, on the right bank of the Rhine, 22 miles northwest of Essen, after heavy losses had been sustained on both sides. Ten officers in one regiment were killed.

The red army, it was added, was well armed with artillery.

An official report from Leipsic says that no further excesses occurred on Saturday in that city and that several points evacuated by the workmen were occupied by troops. In the suburbs, however, the workmen refused to abandon their positions. Further communist reinforcements have arrived, the reports added. Cuailway traffic in the Leipsic region was fully resumed on Sunday.

Conditions Reported Worse.

In the Halle district the position was reported worse from a government aspect. Counter action among a section of the workingmen is threatened through the calling of a strike if a soviet republic is proclaimed. Communists are declared to be preventing willing men from resuming their work.

There has been little change in the strike situation here since yesterday, except that the city railway this morning began a fairly regular service. The inner city and the adjacent streets still present the aspect of an armed camp. The mortars, machine guns and wire entanglements were viewed by thousands of Sunday promenaders, but many of the streets were barred to traffic.

The lower class places of entertainment were largely patronized yesterday, but the theaters and big restaurants and cafes were closed because of insufficient electric current. The little food still obtainable through illicit dealers is bringing fabulous prices.

Of the rationed foodstuffs neither potatoes nor bread could be obtained during the last week. Bread baking is very irregular, owing to the shortage of water.

The rector of the technical college at Breslau has been arrested for high treason. He is charged with organizing a volunteer college detachment and placing it at the disposal of Dr. Kapp.

SILESIAN TROOPS IN RUHR DISTRICT.

Stuttgart, March 22.—Troops from Silesia are officially reported to have arrived in the Ruhr district, and fighting with the spartacan army there is expected tomorrow. Exaggerated rumors as to the size of the red forces there are current in this city. Some reports place the number at 70,000.

A general strike has been called in Munich, and it is expected the movement will extend throughout Bavarla unless it is stopped as a result of the negotiations now in progress to settle the demands of the workingmen to pay during the period they were on strike against the Kapp regime. Meetings are to be held in the Wurttemburg factories by the councils of workmen to consider if similar action should be taken throughout Wurttemburg.

Reports received here from Nuremburg said that city was quiet on Sunday, following some disorders the previous night. Further disorders at Leipsic on Sunday were reported.

WORKERS INCREASE THEIR DEMANDS.

Paris, March 22.—Negotiations by members of the Ebert government, party leaders of the German national assembly and delegates of workers, which have been going on at Berlin, are declared in an official British report to have been interrupted because of an increase in the claims of the workers.

Spartacan forces still control Stettin, Dusseldorf, Elberfeld and Essen, where great disorder prevails. Kiel and southwest Germany are quiet, but some agitation is reported in agricultural sections of Pomerania and Mecklenburg.

BIG RED ARMY IN RUHR REGION.

Paris, March 22.—Spartacan forces in the Ruhr valley of Germany number at least 20,000, and some estimate them at 40,000, according to latest advices received at the foreign office here. They are well organized, being composed of old shock troops and veterans, supplied with artillery, machine guns and mine throwers, and having batteries of .77 centimeter field guns with plenty of ammunition.

Major Berfeld, a relative of Maximilian Harden, is commander of these troops. He is also known as the man who published Prince Lichnowsky's report, blaming the German government for starting the world war, and was also prominent in the spartacist troubles at the time of the armistice and also in January, 1918.

Ebert government authorities are concentrating troops and planning to surround the Ruhr valley and force the spartacists to capitulate. These men, however, are younger and less trained than the reds.

"The occupation of the Ruhr district by German troops is in direct violation of Articles 42 and 43 of the treaty of Versailles, it was pointed out at the foreign office, which added the comment that this was the first act committed by Germany in violation of the treaty, the other violations being those of omission. It was indicated that the French government would take no separate action in the circumstances, acting only after consultation with the allies as to what measures were necessary.

Two German officers have been sent by the Ebert government to acquaint the French authorities with the situation in the Ruhr district. These officers are expected to reach Paris this evening.

The foreign office advices regarding the composition of the red army in the Ruhr region are that it was recruited for the most part among the iron workers and not the miners. The military organization extends also to the civil services, and the postoffice and the telegraph lines are in control of the communists.

8,000 PERSONS KILLED SINCE REVOLT BROKE.

Paris, March 22.—Eight thousand persons have been killed since the German revolt broke out on March 13, according to advices received here. Of this number 850 were killed in Berlin alone.

BEWARE OF BRITISH, BENSON WARNED SIMS

even carried the only copy of the letter around in my pocket so I would know it did not get out prematurely."

Senator Pittman read a number of letters and papers from Admiral Sims' files, including a letter to Secretary Daniels dated November 15, 1917, declaring that the extent of American military participation in the war was dependent on the rate of shipbuilding in the United States and suggesting that "a good proportion of our national army could perhaps be more efficiently utilized in prosecution of the war by actually utilizing it as labor in American shipyards.' The senator also read an unsigned memorandum, which Admiral Sims said he did not write, commenting unfavorably on the growing sentiment early in 1918 for the formation of a separate American army in France.

In his story of the Benson incident Admiral Sims said the remark was made just after he had received his final instructions from Secretary Daniels preparatory to his departure for England on the eve of the entry of the United States into the war. He added, however, that it was not made in the course of formal instructions, but during a conversation in the office of Rear Admiral Palmer, chief of the bureau of investigation.

The witness told the committee that Admiral Benson repeated his admonition during a conversation the following day and that he made the same remark six months later in Paris.

Admiral Sims said he did not pay particular attention to the statement at that time because he believed Admiral Benson was intensely anti-British. He added that this belief was entertained generally throughout the service.

An aide recently called his attention to the remark, the admiral said, and Admiral Palmer also told him he remembered hearing Admiral Benson make the statement.

Reluctant to Give Name.

The witness was reluctant to give the name of the officer, but Chairman Hale insisted.

"Then I will tell you the whole story," said Admiral Sims. "Early in April, 1917, I was ordered from my post at Newport to Washington. When I arrived I reported to the navy department by telephone and was told not to come to the department, but to get in touch with the chief of the bureau of navigation, Rear Admiral Leigh C. Palmer. Everything was very secret, the way they liked it. I could not get in touch with the chief of navigation then, and so I reported to him later at the department and then I had an interview with the secretary of the navy in his office. No one else was present, as I remember it. The interview was very brief. I was told that I was going abroad to confer with the allied admiralties and that Ambassador Page had requested that an officer of high rank be sent there for that purpose. After leaving Secretary Daniels' office, or just before going there, I don't remember which, I went to the bureau of navigation. The admiral was there, and it was at that time the remark the chairman has asked me about was made."

"Whom do you refer to as 'admiral?'" asked Chairman Hale.

Admiral Sims said he did not wish to idulge in personalities, but when pressed by Chairman Hale he said he referred to Admiral Benson.

Included Remark in Letter.

Admiral Sims said he included Admiral Benson's remark in his letter to Secretary Daniels on January 7 regarding the navy's part in the war because "if a man has a prejudice against men fighting alongside of him it has an unconscious influence on him."

The admiral told the committee he had always regarded the admonition as "a personal prejudice on the part of Admiral Benson." He described the former chief of operations as "an upstanding, honest man who has strong convictions," and said he believed everything that Admiral Benson did during the war was done "conscientiously."

It was due largely to Admiral Benson's confidence in him that he was selected to the high post he occupied during the war, Admiral Sims said, adding that in urging his selection Admiral Benson incurred the dislike of many officers senior to Admiral Sims who desired the post.

Senator Pittman brought out that Admiral Sims had shown a copy of his letter of January 7 to H. P. Davison, of New York, while he was a guest at Mr. Davison's home about the middle of January. The officer could not recall the date, but said his aide thought it was on January 14. He admitted that showing the letter was "an indiscretion."

Senator Pittman and Chairman Hale clashed sharply over the form in which the Nevada senator put some of his questions, the chairman insisting that Senator Pittman confine his questions to the text of Admiral Sims' direct testimony.

"There need be no discourtesy here," Senator Hale said, "and we will have none."

"No, I will not tolerate any," said Senator Pittman. "I have realized that you were going to try to break up this cross-examination."

Bring Out All the Facts.

Admiral Sims interrupted to say that he welcomed the cross-examination; that his one desire was to bring out all the facts.

"Admiral Benson's statement should never have been made public," said Senator Pittman, resuming the cross-examination.

"Do you mean by me?" asked Admiral Sims.

"By you or any one else," replied the senator. "It referred to a great power with which we were on friendly terms, and it was given to you in strict confidence, so secretly that it could not even be put in writing."

"It was not given to me in confidence," said the admiral. "It was told me in a room before other naval officers."

"Yes, it was confided to you before other naval officers, who like yourself are supposed to know what to talk about and what not to talk about," replied Senator Pittman.

"We naval officers made up our minds to one thing," said Admiral Sims, "and that was that we will never go into another war in the condition which we went into this one."

Senator Pittman diverted the course of his inquiry to communications, copies of which are contained in the files of Admiral Sims' office in London. He referred to a letter from Admiral Sims to Admiral Bayly, of the British navy, commanding at Queenstown, in which he said it had been suggested that a portion of the national army could be better employed "as labor in American shipyards" because of the serious tonnage situation.

"Dandy Letter," Says Sims.

"That is a dandy letter," Admiral Sims said. "I am proud of it."

The admiral continued that he had merely discussed with Admiral Bayly possible future naval questions arising out of a talk he had had with General Bliss, American representative on the supreme war council.

Senator Pittman then read from an unsigned document taken from Admiral Sims' files urging that American troops passing through Great Britain be brigaded with the British forces. The senator said this was British propaganda "to be used against Pershing's effort to establish a separate American army."

"It wasn't written by me," said Admiral Sims, "and I object to you calling it propaganda. It is pretty good military reasoning and what Bliss recommended."

After conference with his aides, Admiral Sims said the document might have been referred to him for comment by Ambassador Page at London, but he had no knowledge as to where it came from or who wrote it.

NEW RULE OF BOARD OPPOSED BY TEACHERS

Automatically Granted Leave If Absent for More Than Thirty Days.

Several members of the Atlanta Public School Teachers' association at a meeting held at the Commercial High school Monday afternoon, opposed the new rule of the board of education by which any teacher absent more than thirty days from school for any cause, is automatically granted a leave of absence, which would mean that her pay would be stopped.

This rule, will, if carried out, say the teachers, work a hardship on sick teachers as they will not only lose full pay after thirty days, but in addition to that, will lose a proportionate amount of their summer salary. Superintendent W. F. Dykes, who was present, stated that if the rule were found to be unjust he was sure it would be changed by the board. No action on the matter was taken by the association.

The association voted to appoint a committee to investigate the proposed merger of the city and county school systems, and the opinion of the association will soon be rendered the board on this question.

A committee will also be appointed to consult with the board of education and the superintendent as to the advisability of electing from the association a teachers' council, which would serve as a medium of communication between the association and the board of education.

By a vote of the association a committee will also be appointed to study the Fulton county juvenile court, with the purpose, it is stated, of seeking to improve conditions in this institution.

By unanimous vote an invitation was extended to the Georgia Educational association to hold its 1921 convention in Atlanta.

Notice was given that after the next meeting of the association a number of changes in the constitution and by laws will be voted on. The most important of these will be one to double the weekly allotment of benefits to sick members.

Resolutions of the Atlanta Woman's club asking for more power for the city board of education in its efforts to provide funds for the schools were indorsed.

AUTO BANDITS TAKEN IN SPECTACULAR CHASE

New York, March 22.—Five men suspected of having staged many daring robberies in Brooklyn lately, were arrested in the Williamsburg district of Brooklyn late today after a spectacular automobile chase back and forth across the Williamsburg bridge through crowds homeward bound after their day's work in Manhattan. The car driven by the men finally was caught in a traffic jam and the occupants, facing a circle of detectives with drawn revolvers, surrendered.

The police claimed they found on the floor of the captured car three revolvers.

DELLIE EDENFIELD KILLS HIS BROTHER

Douglas, Ga., March 22.—Dellie Edenfield shot and killed his brother, Lonnie, today at Nichols, according to reports received here. The brothers were joint administrators of their mothers estate and Dellie is said to have contended that Lonnie was withholding money realized in settling up affairs. The trouble is supposed to have originated over this matter although actual details of the killing are lacking here.

PEPTO-MANGAN MAKES RED BLOOD

Overcomes That Languid Feeling That Cheats You Out of Work and Fun.

You say, "I wish I could go, but I dont' feel able." Your friends say, "Are you ill?"

You are not exactly sick, you just feel unable to approach work or play in the old, vigorous spirit.

The high speed at which Americans live sometimes taxes their strength. The blood is weak, lacking in red cells. When this condition exists, Gude's Pepto-Mangan taken three times a day shows quick benefits. Pepto-Mangan is known to physicians as The Red Blood Builder. It increases the supply of rich, healthy blood and in the absence of deep-seated disease this means health and strength for men, or women, or children.

Pepto-Mangan is put up in both liquid and tablet form. Both forms are exactly alike in medicinal qualities. When you order Pepto-Mangan, be sure to ask the druggist for "Gude's." And look for the name "Gude's" on the package. If "Gude's" is not there, it is not Pepto-Mangan.—(adv.)

DRIVE FOR STATUE PROVING SUCCESS

Many Large Gifts as Well as Small Contributions Are Being Received by Workers.

Contributions are already pouring in for the quota to which Georgia has been pledged in the nation-wide campaign for $250,000 to erect America's gift to rance, the memorial statue on the banks of the Marne to commemorate the valiant stand the French troops took in their first repulsion of the German drive at Paris.

Indications are that the sentiment and universality of the campaign have made this drive the most popular which has ever been put before Atlantans, and everywhere people are complying with the request of Judge Walter F. George, state chairman, and Robert E. Harvey, chairman for the Fifth district, that the contributions be sent in as quickly as possible. Henry W. Davis, vice president of the Lowry National bank, is the state treasurer of the drive, and subscriptions should be sent directly to him.

Small Subscriptions.

Despite the fact that the real motive of the campaign is to secure small volunteer subscriptions from a large number of men, women and children, checks of larger size are being sent in to the headquarters of the drive by people who have announced their sincere sympathy with the cause.

The school children of the Fifth district are expected to respond unanimously to the appeal which has been made that each of them contribute a penny to the fund. Superintendent W. F. Dykes, of the city schools, and Superintendent J. W. Simmons, of the Fulton county schools, have already expressed their indorsement of the movement to the principals of the schools, with permission to present the matter to their pupils. As the schools report 100 per cent subscriptions to the fund, their success will be announced, and already a spirit of congenial rivalry has sprung up.

Particularly interesting is the feature of the memorial which will preserve the names of all the school children who contribute to the fund. At the base of the Macomonies statue of the Spirit of Liberty, which form the memorial will take, there will be constructed a museum, in which will be kept the names of all the civic, religious and patriotic organizations which contribute to the fund in America, as well as a list of names of all the school children who contribute.

Factor of Permanency.

"This feature," said Mr. Harvey, "gives an admirable factor of permanency to the subscriptions which will be made. France has always cherished and preserved her memorials to the bravery of her heroes with better sentiment and consistency than has America. This museum will be under the supervision of the French government, and its treasures will be jealously guarded as the result of the sincere sentiment they will feel toward this gift of America."

Another interesting feature of the country around Meaux, France, the small Marne village near which the statue will be erected, is that there stands one of the largest American burial grounds in France. The monument erected to France's heroes will stand as a dual monument to the heroism of the French who stopped the German drive within twenty miles of Paris, and the 50,000 American dead whose bravery helped to perpetuate the cause typified in the first terrific struggles of the invaded French.

It is expected that Friday of this week will be set aside as "Dime Day," on which all Atlantans will be asked to give 10 cents to the fund of $8,000 which Georgia has been asked to raise for the erection of the monument.

Y. W. C. A. TO STAGE BENEFIT FOR FUND FOR THE NEAR EAST

Everything from fancy dancers and jazz walkers to a chorus of attractive girls and a boxing match between feminine advocates of the "manly art of self-defense" will be on the program of the benefit performances to be staged at the Atlanta theater Thursday, April 15, under the auspices of the Wide Awake club of the Young Women's Christian association for the Near East relief fund.

The show will be produced by the Georgia Cotton Blossoms minstrel troupe, composed of some of the best local talent. The first performance will be a matinee at 2:30 p. m., while the second will be given at 8:15 p. m.

Billy Stokes, formerly a minstrel star, is in charge of the rehearsals which are now being conducted. Miss Catherine Jones, a 12-year-old fancy and jazz dancer, has been added to the talent.

Among the comedians will be Rufus Monk, Frank Bishop, Ned Daub, Tim Carter, Al Mathieu and Les Sanders. Ballad singers will include Miss Mamie Florence, Mrs. Fred Beam, Jimmie McGowan, Dave Frank, and Billy Ridge. There will be 35 girls in the chorus. It is expected that this benefit will materially assist the Near East relief fund, for which numerous pledges are being made, in response to a plea by A. Semonion.

THREE MEN KILLED WHEN WALLS FALL

Roanoke, Va., March 22.—Three men were killed and eight to twelve injured when three walls of a section of the Griggs Packing company on the southwestern edge of the city collapsed this morning. The cause of the collapse of the wall is said to be undetermined.

One body has been identified as that of Robert L. Carden, of Roanoke, an elevator engineer. Another body, horribly mutilated, is unidentified, while another was blown into one of the tanks and has not been recovered.

The collapsing walls were of a new four-story annex to the plant, upon which the roof was being placed by contractors.

Eight of the more seriously injured workmen, among whom are four negroes, were taken to hospitals. Two of the injured were said said to be in a critical condition.

MILLIONS BEHIND PALMER IN FIGHT AGAINST THE REDS

By James A. Hollomon.
(By Constitution Leased Wire.)

Washington, March 22.—The greatest indorsement ever given to the outstanding Americanism of a living official in public life is the forward movement represented by the powerful alliance among more than a score of large church denominational organizations which has just been effected in this country to combat the "red menace."

Twenty-five million persons, representing more than 70 per cent of the membership of all Protestant church organizations in the United States, are now lending their strength to the alliance which will carry on to its logical conclusion the work of Attorney General Mitchell Palmer in awakening the people of the nation to a realization of their peril from the enemy within, and protecting the government with a firm hand from those who sought to overthrow it by force and violence.

Americanism and Americanization is to be the watch-word of the churches and the Christian people of the country, who have caught the note from the reveille sounded by Mr. Palmer, will see to it that a man alive to the great question, and of proved capacity to carry forward the great work that is being launched, is put at the head of the affairs of government in this country.

To these millions of earnest people, who see in the safety of country, home and fireside, the overshadowing issue of the future, regardless of politics and politicians, there can be no step backwards now that the forward movement is on, and the man who appeals to them most strongly as measuring up to the highest standard of Americanism and whose deeds are test-proof of his high purpose to bring his whole country to a realization of the loftiest ideals of citizenship, will receive their undivided support in primary, election and in the administration of his high office.

100 Per Cent Backing.

Before the great campaign of Americanism to be undertaken by the Protestant church organizations is well under way, it would not be surprising to find the percentage represented in the alliance grow to a round 100 per cent, representing 100 per cent Americanism.

The great hierarchy of the Roman Catholic church in the United States is heart and soul with the movement for Americanization and will lend its full strength to the promotion, through the far-reaching channels of the church, of the preaching and teaching of a staunch Americanism to the many millions of its congregation within the United States.

A pastoral letter, the first issued by the heads of the Catholic church in the United States in 35 years, has recently gone to all its people, in which the following paragraph is not the least in importance of the declarations of the letter:

"Whatever may be the industrial and social remedies which will approve themselves to the American people, there is one that, we feel confident, they will never adopt. That is the method of revolution. For it there is neither justification nor excuse under our form of government. Through the ordinary and orderly processes of education, organization and legislation, all social wrongs can be righted. While these processes at times may seem distressingly slow, they will achieve more in the final result than violence or revolution. The radicalism, and worse than radicalism, of the labor movement in some of the countries of Europe, has no lesson for the workers of the United States, except as an example of methods to be detested and avoided."

Thus the churches and their people in the United States stand united in a determined movement to look to the future security of the government of their country, and the peace and happiness of its people. In this, as in many similar movements which have written history, it is more of a question of the man than the measure.

May Be Third Party.

Some of the keenest political observers of the country are already taking "text from the mad and purposeless scramble among the half score candidates for the presidential nomination by the republican party to preach disaffection before election time which may result in the birth of a third party.

The trouble with the republican candidates now before the people, and from whom the choice must be made by the Chicago convention, is that none of them measures up to the standard of Americanism which will serve the voters at election time.

Americanism with the republicans seems to mean nothing more than opposition to the peace treaty, and the fact that the republican leaders were able to worry it to death, and leave the people of the country lost in the twilight zone between war and peace while the rest of the world will be able to move ahead in open sunlight, is their sole patent of their Americanism.

But the people have a higher ideal of Americanism than the mere playing of politics and dicing in the blood and treasure of their country to win personal and political advantage, and that is the issue upon which the republicans will fail to square with the voter's idea of true Americanism, and bring on the travail that may give birth to a new party.

The democrats are in a far better position, according to these observers of the political trend. They have in Mitchell Palmer, the attorney general, a man upon whom they can unite support, and whose real Americanism, in thought, words and deeds, defies challenge or slander. With Palmer at the head of the democratic ticket, the man or woman who goes to the polls determined to fix by ballot the future policy of the nation, will have no reason to hesitate for choice. The birth of a third party would have no terrors for the democratic hosts with the "Fighting Quaker" as their standard-bearer.

Urged Pact Ratification.

Palmer has no misgivings or reasonable doubts about the peace treaty or what should have been done with it in the senate. He has repeatedly urged in public utterances that the senate ratify the treaty and bring peace to the United States. He knows that peace is the one thing necessary to bring the country back to normal pre-war conditions, and that as long as the affairs of the country are held suspended in doubt by a technical state of war, its progress and prosperity will be retarded while other countries, unshackled from war, march ahead.

There is nothing in any of his utterances, public or private, which could in any way ally him with the role of a "defeatist." His whole desire was to have the senate ratify the treaty. The form and the manner in which it should be ratified was the business of the senate, guided by the wishes of the people. The republican majority of the senate, however, held itself above the wishes and commands of the people, and let the world know that it was there to undo what Woodrow Wilson had done, just to show its temporary authority and play its little political game for the benefit of the republican party.

Nobody, and Palmer least of all, wishes to see treaty nullified in its every vital, living phase. If the senate really believed that certain reservations were essential to its reading according to the tenets of our government, it was the business of the senate to make those reservations and ratify the treaty. Deliberate mutilation in political frenzy to make a ghastly joke of the efforts of a president of the United States to aid in bringing lasting peace to the world, just because he happened to be a democrat, met no more with the approval of Palmer than it did with any other self-respecting citizen of the country.

If the treaty is to be an issue in the next campaign, it must be made an issue by the republicans on the grounds that to ratify it in any form would have been un-American, and therefore, they brought about its defeat. The one answer to that issue, and the final answer, will be the nomination by the democrats of Mitchell Palmer, a man whose Americanism will be a sufficient guaranty to the people that the treaty of peace, should it come up for ratification in his tenure of office, must square in every respect with Americanism in its highest and holiest sense to meet approval at his hands.

Issue of the Day.

The formation of the powerful alliance in the interchurch world movement to campaign against red radicalism with Americanism is but another proof that the American people have made the issue of the day for the government, for the church, and for the nation. It is stated that the interchurch world movement is serving as a clearing house for speedy and co-operative action to cope with the evils of radicalism, which have been made public as the result of a nation-wide survey. On their own account the representatives of these 25,000,000 people of the churches of the country have found that "Americanism" is the one and great issue now before the people, and have called upon the churches to expend from their emergency funds several million of dollars in immediate effort to raise the standard of Americanism.

It is these people who will make the campaign issue in the coming election, and it is these people who will elect the next president of the United States. It would be well for the democratic voters to remember this in the coming primaries when they are called upon to show preference for a presidential platform, and to make their choice a man whose 100 per cent Americanism is known to the nation and will be undeniable in its appeal to the voters of all the states.

Atlanta Streets Break Down Col. Thatcher's Sturdy Wagon

After the mishap. Colonel C. W. Thatcher resting disconsolately while awaiting aid to enable him to reach a repair shop.

Atlanta's streets have acquired a new and unenviable reputation. They have broken down the sturdy wagon of Colonel C. W. Thatcher, of New York, "the good roads apostle," who is touring the nation working in the interest of a national system of highways.

After having encountered and conquered all sorts of roads in several states of the union the owner and driver of the "pathfinder" wagon found that in ordering its construction his vision had not included some of the streets in Atlanta.

Driving has famous team, composed of a Spanish mule and a Rocky mountain burro, which have planted their unshod feet on thousands of miles of roads, good and bad, Colonel Thatcher arrived in the city Saturday afternoon, on the last leg of a two months' tour of Georgia.

He was full of enthuiasm and the subject of good roads—until he turned his team into Broad street, near Hunter. A precipitate drop into one of the holes which have appeared in this thoroughfare proved too much for the unique vehicle; the rear right spindle parted company with the axle, the wheel rolled off against the curb, and the good roads apostle found himself down—on Atlanta's streets.

Colonel Thatcher is chief engineer of the Washington and Lee highway, which is a proposed highway from the Great Lakes to the gulf, with an extension westward to Seattle, Wash., the system connecting the large commercial centers of the nation. He is touring the various states speaking as he goes.

NEWBERRY'S SEAT SOUGHT BY FORD

tion that the committee would begin taking testimony at this time.

Calls for Action.

Alfred Lucking, attorney for Mr. Ford in the senate contest, has written to Senator William Dillingham, of Vermont, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections, urging immediate action in the case. Mr. Lucking drew attention to the fact that "for one reason or another," the work of recounting the ballots had been postponed and "nothing has been done up to the present time," and he urged that "the entire contest proceed in the usual and orderly manner."

"There no longer exists any reason why the testimony on behalf of the contestant should not be taking in accordance with the resolution and laid before the committee and the senate," Mr. Lucking stated. He declared that while the result of the Grand Rapids trial might have "some indirect bearing" upon the contest before the senate, neither Mr. Ford nor Mr. Newberry would be bound by the jury findings. The "issues" are not the same nor the proofs the same, he said, and indicated that a large amount of additional evidence would be offered.

"Mr. Ford has, I submit," Mr. Lucking added, "the right to put in his own proofs and conduct his own contest, and while it was entirely proper on the part of the committee, for obvious reasons, not to enter upon the examination of witnesses while the Grand Rapids trial actually was in progress, I beg most respectfully to urge that the committee do now meet and make the necessary provision for the hearing of the contest."

Borah on Use of Money.

With reference to the charges of excessive use of money in behalf of General Wood, Mr. Borah declared the charges called for something more than "an ordinary denial" by General Wood or his managers. He said they would have "to deal openly and candidly with the public," and issue a "public statement giving the names of subscribers to his campaign fund, the amount of their subscription and the manner in which it is being used." The republicans of the nation, Mr. Borah insisted, "will demand nothing less," and he added that the Wood managers owed such a statement to "their candidate, still more to the party and most of all to the country."

"I have seen letters," Mr. Borah said, "from South Dakota, Virginia and Illinois showing that the people generally are getting very restless in the face of apparent use of money for corrupt purposes. No candidate for the presidency this year can carry through the campaign the charge that his nomination was brought about through the money of wealthy men. Indeed through a deliberate effort to control the convention by the use of money. Men who put up vast sums of money for a candidate are believed by the public to have an ulterior, selfish motive. If a man contributes $100,000 to a man's campaign fund, it is generally believed that somewhere along the line he expects a return, and the republican party cannot go into this campaign with any hope of success, with any candidate, whether General Wood or someone else, whose nomination has been brought about by a brutal and shameless use of money. They may get oy the convention with such a program, but they will not get by the electorate.

Wants Facts Published.

"If those gentlemen, therefore, have the good of the party at heart and the good of the country, they will publish the facts concerning the campaign, and they will content themselves with a decent presentation of the issue and policies and stop this common and shameless scramble in state conventions for delegates. Let the delegates go up to Chicago and chose their man uncontrolled and uncorrupted.

"From what I have known of General Wood, I would not suspect him for a moment of doing the things himself, which are being charged against him in this campaign. But it is not sufficient that he does not himself actually participate. He cannot be the recipient of favors of such a campaign without himself being responsible.

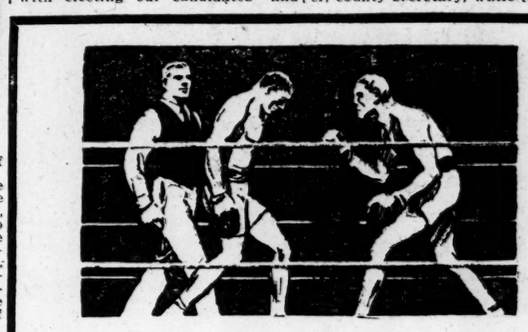

"This is not a good time to trifle with public opinion. There is a widespread opinion in the country that wealth has had too much to do with electing our candidates and making our laws. And public men owe it to the people not only to be just and clean in these respects, but they owe it to the people to see that they are above suspicion. I hope General Wood or his managers will not permit this matter to go until it will become a subject which others will have to take hold of."

RIVAL DELEGATES TO G. O. P. MEETING NAMED IN FULTON

Following a clash between opposing factions at a meeting Monday of the Fulton county republican convention, two sets of rival delegates were elected to the district and to the state republican conventions. Practically every ward in the city and every militia district in the county were represented at the meeting.

The meeting was called to order by H. L. Johnson, a negro lawyer, who headed one faction, while H. A. Rucker and others led the other faction. Each faction organized, one electing Dr. E. H. Brinson, county chairman, and Attorney J. W. Weaver, county secretary, while the other elected H. L. Johnson, chairman, and T. W. Holmes, secretary.

Each faction elected six delegates and six alternate delegates to the district and state conventions, and will contest with each other at both meetings.

Every man is a fighter, though he may not be a pugilist. His daily task is his fight — and he needs to be fit and ready for it.

Constipation to the business fighter is the "out-of-condition" of the pugilist. Constipation not only makes the business fighter dull and slow, and unfit for effort, but it is the "lowered guard" that leaves the opening for the jarring blows of serious disease.

SOLUTION SUGGESTED TO RUSSIAN PROBLEM

Washington, March 22.—The removal of all restrictions in so far as trading with Russia is concerned has been suggested by this government as a solution of the Russian problem, it was learned today. The proposal has been transmitted to the allies, and, so far, no answer has been received. It is understood that it is the position of this government that its proposal is the only one which can clear away the fog that now surrounds the Russian position. Under the program there would be no need of getting licenses or any sort of governmental permission, but the transactions would be entirely at the risk of the persons involved.

American officials have believed for some time that the trading with Russia idea has been largely misunderstood, and that a part of the demand for such action has been inspired by bolshevist propaganda. Reports which have reached this government indicate very strongly that Russia has no commodities to sell, in anything like the quantities that have been estimated, and that there is as great a deficiency in gold or platinum with which the Russians could purchase supplies in this country.

In any event it is believed that there could be little benefit to American capital, as the present exchange situation would force Russia to go into the best market that she could find, and that the soviet government on this account would almost certainly restrict its purchases to Great Britain and France, where the purchasing power of its gold would be greater than in the United States.

Report Denied.

Reports that this government was about to consider the making of sales of locomotives and other supplies to the soviet representatives in this country was denied today. Agents of the soviet have submitted bids on two occasions for surplus war supplies; once for shoes and the other time for Decapod locomotives which were originally built in this country for the Russian government. The soviet representatives were notified each time that their bids would not be accepted until the war department had been authorized to take such action by the state department. No such permission has ever been granted.

Reports from Riga that the approval of this government to carry on the trade was all that was needed to enable the Baldwin Locomotive Works of Philadelphia to close a contract for railway equipment with the soviet government were characterized as "soviet propaganda" by officials here. It is acknowledged that the condition of the Russian railroads is the next thing to collapse, but it is not believed that the soviet government has the money to pay for them or the securities to make such a transaction safe for the locomotive works.

Reversions From "New Army" Spirit Attacked by Baker

(By Constitution Leased Wire.)

Washington, March 22.—Reversion from the spirit of the "new army" was attacked today by Newton D. Baker, secretary of war, in a letter addressed to General Peyton C. March, chief o staff, but intended for the army generally in which he said that there is "no place for obstructionists in the army."

War department officials were silent as to the causes that were behind the communication, but it is understood that there has been a tendency among some officers to drop away from the system of co-operation developed during the war with civic organizations and also to look upon the vocational and educational program outlined by the war department as trifling detail of their duties.

"From reports reaching me, I understand that there are still numbers of army officers who are not thoroughly imbued with the spirit of the new army," said Mr. Baker in his letter. "This spirit must be manifested in good works from the highest officer to the lowest and I desire that it be impressed on every one that it is his duty to bring that spirit into play not only when the occasion presents itself but to go out amongst civilians and make occasions to tell about the new army that will enable the service to reap the greater benefits that should accrue from such contacts, such benefits being the greater, the higher the position, reputation and experience of the officer concerned.

"There is no place for obstructionists in the army. Those of us who are charged with the responsibility of bringing the army into closer communion with the people of the country realize that the very salvation of the army depends on a properly co-ordinated development of the educational, vocational, recreational and character building system with our military training.

"It would be unpardonably stupid of the army not to use every means to spread this idea."

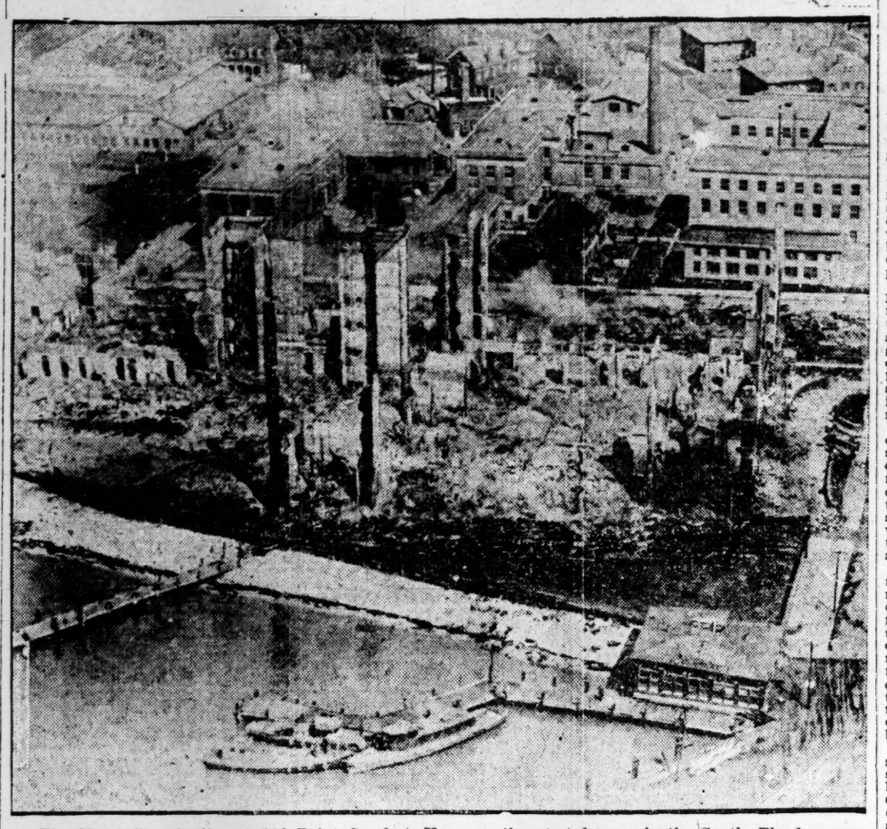

RUSSIA PROPOSES PEACE WITH ITALY

Paris, March 22.—The Russian soviet government has proposed to Italy that relations between the two countries be resumed immediately, according to a dispatch to The Temps from Reval.

"Are you at all familiar with Shelley?" he asked.

"I should say not!" she indignantly replied. "I never have been familiar with any young man in my life, and I don't even know this person you speak of."

Dr. Len G. Broughton Preaches Fine Sermon at Conference

Rev. Len G. Broughton, well known to the citizens of Atlanta as the founder of the Tabernacle, made his first appearance during the present Baptist Bible conference yesterday afternoon in the edifice which arose as a result of his efforts.

His subjects during the conference will be things touching upon the spiritual life, his sermon Monday being based on the personality of spirit, or the conviction of sin and the regeneration of spirit.

The preacher began by saying that all references to the spirit of God or the holy spirit in the Old Testament meant the uni-plural spirit, because the Hebrew word for God means literally "three in one."

Dr. Broughton gave numerous references to the Scriptures to show that the term "holy spirit" is always used as a person, employing the personal pronoun "he," and that "he" has knowledge, will, mind, influence, love, intelligence, grief and language, attributes which spirit regarded as a principle could not have.

A Fine Distinction.

He also gave the fine but clear distinctions between a convincing and a conviction of sin, and between a conversation and a regeneration, asserting that the former in each case referred to a human operation, while the latter were instantaneous acts of faith in Christ. He stated that the majority of churches of the present day were operating without the holy spirit within them.

The morning services were given over to the Rev. William Evans and Dr. Campbell Morgan, and were attended by 500 of the High school boys in Atlanta. Dr. Morgan later declared that his opportunity to speak to those boys was one of the most inspiring experience of his life.

Dr. John Paul and Dr. G. W. McPherson shared the afternoon hours with Dr. Broughton, speaking to audiences that filled the Tabernacle comfortaly, although not to overcrowding.

The evening services followed the program as announced on Sunday, Dr. Evans speaking at 7 o'clock and Dr. Morgan again at 8 o'clock.

Combines Two Texts.

Dr. Morgan combined the two verses of Matthew v:48 and Luke xix:10 into one text for his evening discourse, rendering it:

"Ye, therefore, shall be perfect, as your Father in Heaven is perfect. The Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost."

"The first part of the text is ethical and composed of words of light, while the second part is evangelistic and speaks of love. If I were asked to focus the whole of Christ's message to this and to every age, I should focus it in these two verses."

The doctor then startled his congregation with a quotation from Archbishop McGee, of London, who said:

"You can't run the British empire on the Sermon on the Mount."

The whole British Christian press is said to have howled at this statement for six months thereafter, but Dr. Morgan contended last night that the archbishop was right, because the context which followed in the archbishop's sermon was this illuminating reason for the apparently objectionable pronouncement:

"Because the British empire is not made of regenerated humanity."

Paul's Standard of Life.

The preacher concluded his address with a description of Paul's standard of the ethical life, which, he said, was to be lived soberly, righteously and Godly.

"Soberly, meaning controlled by God, not self-controlled, which is an impossibility, and meaning a life in which passion is mastered by principle.

"Righteously, meaning in right relations with one's fellow men. In this regard, when the enemies of Christ were searching Heaven and earth and hell for a charge to bring against Him, it was never suggested to their minds that He had ever robbed a man or wronged a woman or hurt a little child.

"And Godly, meaning purety, with a pure heart." And here the speaker ended his exhortation with the quotation beginning, "Consider the lilies of the field . . ." and asked his hearers to compare under a microscope the texture of the finest fabric that Solomon could have worn with the texture of a rose, and to note how wondrously rare and intricate the latter is and how coarse the cloth by comparison.

Urges Generosity.

Rev. Mr. Ham made one of his genial speeches in preparation for the offering, in which he urged the congregation to be generous because the average of the collections thus far was the only unsatisfactory element in the Bible conference, and he stated that he knew of seven men wearing suits that must have cost them each between $45 and $85, whose aggregate contributions at one session amounted to 35 cents, while another man who was obliged to stand during the same service had dropped a $100 check into the collection box.

The choir again delighted its auditors last night under the able direction of L. D. Spooner, and William Young sang another solo in a voice that combined art with natural beauty.

Tomorrow's program will be as follows, following the order previously announced: Dr. Evans at 10, Dr. Morgan at 11, Dr. Paul at 2, Dr. McPherson at 3, Dr. Evans at 7, and Dr. Morgan at 8.

The Auditorium has been secured for a mass meeting next Sunday afternoon at 3:30 in connection with these Bible conferences, at which Drs. Broughton and Morgan will be the speakers, this being in addition to the Tabernacle program as heretofore announced.

Every Baby His Own Christopher Columbus

One of the chief things we have to do, on arrival in this strange world, is to make our own acquaintance. The baby does not know himself at all when he begins life. He learns to know his food, his ball, his cradle, his mother, other members of the family, even the household cat, before he knows anything about himself.

"The baby new to earth and sky,
What time his tender palm is prest
Against the circle of the breast,
Has never thought that 'this is I.'"

When he begins to talk he often shows this limitation in the manner of his speech. He does not say, "I am hungry." "I want so and so." He says "Billy hungry;" "Billy wants;" as if Billy were a simple force of nature. And this, in a certain sense, is what Billy is at that stage of his growth.

But presently he becomes aware that behind these powers of seeing and hearing, there is some one who sees and hears. Behind these feelings of hunger and cold, there is some one who wants to be fed and warmed. Underneath all these services which his mother and other persons render to the baby, there is a little person whom they love and whom they wish to love them in return. That is a wonderful discovery. The baby becomes his own Christopher Columbus. He finds himself—his me.

Of course it is an unexplored continent—boundaries, climate, contents, all unknown. But it exists. It is just as real as anything outside of it.

He soon learns to distinguish this little person from exterior things, even from the house and the body in which he lives. He says "my foot, my hand, my head," claiming ownership, but knowing that neither foot nor hand nor head is himself. He discriminates among the people and other living creatures around him—some friendly and some hostile. He begins to grasp, rather slowly, the distinction between his own things and the things of others. He learns that the appetites and desires, which at first seemed irresistible forces of nature, are personal to himself and must be controlled in relation to the wants nd needs of other persons around him, otherwise disagreeable consequences will ensue. He finds out not only that Billy is, but that Billy belongs. He exists, but not alone. He is part of a circle of life. Into this circle he must try to fit his new-found self, for joy or sorrow, for good or ill.

The Let-Well-Enough-Alone Policy

The greatest peril that confronts our country today is not the uprising of the Radicals but the downsitting of the Conservatives.

The people who are quite content with things as they are.

Those who have comfortable homes, enough to eat, at least a reasonable amount of leisure, good clothes to wear, and money enough to educate their children.

Those who do not wish the economic situation to be disturbed, for fear that they may be compelled to re-adjust their manner of living, because the common people who have been so long depressed and often oppressed are now for the first time securing their fair share of the world's products.

These are the people who cannot understand why workmen are asking for at least 60% increase in their wages, even though the cost of living has gone up nearly 100%! World Outlook.

On their return home from a dinner party, Mrs. Smith turned to her husband with a look of curiosity on her face.

"John, dear," she asked, what ever made you tell the Thompsons that you married me for my voice, when you know I can't sing a note?"

John was a tactful man as a rule, but this time he ripped.

"Well darling," he replied soothingly, "I had to give some reason, and that was the only one I could think of at the moment."—Pearson's Weekly.

In the cold and chilly dawn, the kindly old gentleman was waiting outside the county jail for the discharged prisoners. He went up to one and asked if he needed any help.

"What brought you to this, my poor friend?" he asked, kindly.

"Ah, you learned to drink at these festivities or to steal, perhaps?" the old gentleman suggested, sympathetically.

"No, it wasn't that. You see, I was allus the bridegroom."—Tit-Bits.

My Fragrant Cup of Tea

(Minna Irving, in Leslie's)

When I am tired of work or play,
And all my nerves are raw
With things I did, and things I said.
And things I merely saw,
I hasten home and donning mules
And flowing negligee,
Get out the spirit-lamp and make
A fragrant cup of tea.

I pour the steaming amber drink
In china thin and fine,
Gold-banded, bordered daintily
With wild-rose flower and vine,
Add cream and sugar or condensed.
And sipping slowly see
The drama of the tea.

A garden underneath the moon,
A quaint pagoda hung
With lanterns like a glowing chain
Of colored jewels strung,
Tsien, braceleted with jade,
Beneath a mulberry tree,
And glistening with evening dew
The growing shrubs of tea.

Down muddy rivers go the junks
With patched and dingy sails,
To where the quaint freighters wait
The boxes and the bales,
Before typhoons and hurricanes
The racing liners flee
That I may fill the silver pot
And have a cup of tea.

See! At the bottom when the last
Ambrosial drop I drain,
I read my fortune in the leaves
That picture-like remain:
Good news, a lover fond and true,
A journey on the sea,
But nothing more delightful than
My fragrant cup of tea.

Oolong, young Hyson, gunpowder,
Like petals tightly curled.
Orange pekoe—delicious brews
To please a thirsty world—
I know not which I love the best,
Some afternoon at five o'clock
A cup of fragrant tea?
Oh! will you drink with me

BAKER SEES PROFIT AT MUSCLE SHOALS

Washington, March 22.—An annual profit of $2,900,000 could be made by the federal government through operation of the Muscle Shoals, Ala., nitrate plant for the manufacture of commercial fertilizer, according to war department estimates submitted to the senate agriculture committee today by Secretary Baker. He advocated passage of the department's bill to organize a $12,500,000 government corporation to operate the plant for commercial purposes.

The department's calculations, Mr. Baker said, showed that cyanimide could be produced for $27 a ton and sold for $37.50 a ton, while sulphate of ammonia, in which the government experts propose to specialize, would cost $48.22 a ton to produce and would sell for $65. He said Chilean interests now supplying fertilizer to this country could not compete with these figures.

The only alternatives to commercial use of the $72,000,000 plant, said the secretary, were its salvage or its retention and upkeep to meet some future emergency. He declared that for salvage the establishment would bring "only a song," and that to let it stand idle would be very wasteful because of the cost of maintenance and the amount invested.

In making its estimates, Secretary Baker said, the war department had calculated on the basis of operation of ten of the twelve furnaces at the plant. He declared the decision to make a specialty of sulphate of ammonia had been reached after experiments in which the agricultural department cooperated, and said 240,000 tons of that product, equivalent in efficiency to more than 360,000 tons of Chilean nitrate fertilizer, could be produced each year.

Sale of sulphate of ammonia, said the secretary, would be like selling gold dollars, one big firm having offered to handle the output on a margin of only two per cent. He recommended that the government sell only to big distributors, so as to avoid the detailed organization necessary to reach the individual consumer.

Secretary Baker said that no direct appropriation would be required to carry out the project, because 150,000 tons of nitrate now held as a reserve store by the army would be sold, to produce all the money required, and that the plant would thereafter be self-supporting. General Williams, chief of ordnance, supplemented Secretary Baker's presentation of the plans, and the committee adjourned until 8 p. m., when experts on nitrate processes will explain the feasibility of the processes involved.

SYRIAN KING BOYCOTTS FRANCE AND ENGLAND

Beirut, March 22.—(By Associated Press).—Emir Feisal, the newly-elected king of Syria, has declared a boycott against countries occupying territory of Arabs—France and England—and has organized a commission for the purpose of bringing Moslems and Christians into a better understanding.

Posters displayed at Damascus, where the Syrian congress proclaimed the independence of that country, declared:

"In spite of himself, the Moslem is brother to the Christian and the Jew. The Arabs are existed before Christ, Moses or Mohammed, and freedom and independence are rights of Syria. Religion is of God and the fatherland belongs to his children."

The Syrian congress signed a decree asking foreigners to evacuate that region, and palestine and Mesopotamia are reported to have been included. A committee organized in Lebanon has issued a statement alleging that the district was illegally represented in the congress congress of Damascus in which the of Damascus in which the independence of Syria was declared. Lebanon is in a section of Syria supposed to be strictly loyal to France and anxious for a French mandate, but the Turkish nationalist and Syrian movements are so general throughout Syria and Cilicia that it seems improbable France can continue her occupation of districts there unless she receives strong reinforcements.

French forces are reported to have been repulsed and compelled to retreat from Curfa. The entire Adana section is a ferment, and the roads are infested by hillmen cooperating with Turkish and nationalists, who make the position of the thinly scattered French forces perilous.

RECALL ANNOUNCED OF BRIG. GEN. HARTS

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1920.)

Washington, March 22.—The recall of Brigadier General D. W. Harts, who has been serving as chief of staff to Major General Henry T. Allen, in the army of occupation, was announced today by Newton D. Baker, secretary of war. General Harts sailed from Antwerp on March 20 and is expected to report in Washington within the next ten days.

According to Mr. Baker, General Harts is not returning for any special assignment in this country, but in order to testify before congressional committees which are investigating "certain conditions in connection with the conduct of the army in the Paris district."

General Harts, who prior to the war was military aide to the president and also superintendent of public buildings and grounds in Washington, was during the time of America's participation in the war, commander of the Paris district. His name figured prominently on several occasions during the investigations that were made of conditions of the various prison farms around Paris in which Americans were confined, and it was charged several times that responsibility for the maltreatment of prisoners should be traced directly to General Harts.

Augusta, Ga., March 22.—(Special.)—The Curtis biplane of Robb Oertel, becoming out of control yesterday shortly after he started a flight, compelled him to make a forced landing. The machine was badly damaged, and Oertel was slightly injured.

Three Firefighters And Two Negro Women Are Injured in Fire

In the fire that destroyed the Georgia Wool Stock company Monday morning three firemen were hurt when a ladder broke and two negro women were badly injured by jumping from windows. The building, owned by Rhodes and Haverty, which is four stries high and located at 852 Marietta street, was partially covered by insurance. The estimated damage was about $100,000.

Captain S. G. Jordan suffered a broken ankle, while Firemen H. S. Cochran and W. T. M. Garner received cuts and bruises. All of these were members of company 15. The two negro women, Lizzie Putnam and Sallie, were injured internally, and it is believed that they sustained broken backs.

The fire broke out about 7:30 o'clock in the morning after the employees had gone to work. It is believed by firemen that spontaneous combustion caused the flames. After an hour's work, the flames were suppressed and all danger from the fire was past. It was after the mastery of the flames that six firemen, headed by Captain Jordon, mounted the ladder with the hose. When they were about 30 feet above the ground the ladder broke and half of this number were injured.

In the battle with the conflagration, the employees became excited and jumped out of the windows. All but two of these reached the ground in safety. The Georgia Wool Stock company is owned by K. Koplin, who is at present on a trip to New York. The adjoining building was unharmed by the blaze. All of the injured were rushed to Grady hospital.

IT'S PEACE OR FAMINE, SAYS ITALIAN PREMIER

Rome, March 22.—Premier Nitti, outlining to the chamber of deputies today the policy of the new cabinet, declared that all the European countries were facing an extremely difficult situation and were threatened with famine unless peace should quickly be re-established.

The premier said more than 300,000,000 workers do not produce the necessaries of life. Russia, which should furnish raw materials and Germany with its great numbers of wrokmen, were producing hardly anything. Europe, according to Signor Nitti, could only recover its balance by recognizing Russia and Germany and the nations must unite in sympathy and clemency for the vanquished.

The political and economic disorder would only disappear when Europe had become imbued with the spirit of peace, the premier continued, and Italy would work to this end, feeling that the interests of Europe, threatened with ruin, should be put above hatreds and divisions.

"Before the league of nations, in which we believe and which we want, there is a society of European peoples, which by its own efforts, must better the condition of human life," Premier Nitti said.

The premier declared that Italy was going to support a complete state of peace and the spirit of peace, as well as collaboration throughout the world, but particularly between the countries of Europe.

GERMANS TO STRIVE FOR TREATY CHANGES

Paris, March 22.—Germans are preparing a formidable world propaganda in favor of a revision of the Versailles treaty and the holding of a new international conference at which vanquished nations might be represented for the object of changing or elliminating many clauses of the present treaty between the allied nations and Germany, according to a Geneva dispatch. A book entitled "The Greatest Crime of Humanity," has been prepared and ten million copies printed for free distribution especially in America, England and France, and it is said that millions of other pamphlets along the same line will follow.

The reactionary revolt in Berlin on March 13 put a temporary stop to the movement, it is said.

Captain Andre Tardieu, one of the French delegates to the peace conferference, has written an article which appeared in last week's edition of L'Illustration, in which he declared himself as being opposed to any revision of the treaty.

"Let us help our allies," he wrote, "and we will find this to be better than to dream of a movement in favor of benevolence to our vanquished enemies, which instead of inspiring gratitude, fosters arrogance."

The Temple declares that the various parties in the conflict in Germany are inciting each other to take the offensive against the conditions of the treaty at Versailles, and expresses the fear that if the allies are not on their guard Germany anarcy will ultimately bring a renewal of German aggression.

The allies, according to the Temps, should deliberate immediately on the best way of effectively disarming Germany. The newspaper insists the United States should participate in the deliberations.

PHARMACISTS GATHER AROUND DINNER TABLE

The Alumni Association of the Southern College of Pharmacy indulged in a banquet last night at the Ansley hotel, at which about forty guests sat down to the table.

The association was formed November 29, 1919, and has enrolled 37 members to date, the officers being I. A. Dent, president; Miss Margaret Kimmel, secretary; W. E. Avery, vice president, and Miss Theo Bowie, treasurer.

The diners were entertained by music and speeches, and among those who made addresses were Drs. J. M. Brawner, J. O. Kinard and R. C. Hood, members of the faculty of the Southern College of Pharmacy.

Engraved certificates of membership in the alumni association were distributed to the members at the dinner table.

The other boarders at Miss Skinnems were quite pleased to have as a companion a survivor of an Arctic expedition. He proved most entertaining. One day, after a specially exciting tale, he added:

"Yes, we were slowly starving to death. There wasn't a thing left to eat. At last, when things seemed absolutely at their blackest, one fellow had a grand idea; he cut up our boots and stewed them into soup, and—"

"Hush, hush!" hissed all the other boarders, anxiously. "Don't let Miss Skinnem hear you."—Tit-Bits.

Half Million Oil Fire.

Tulsa, Okla., March 22.—Fire which started early this afternoon and fanned by a high wind, was not controlled until tonight, swept the plant of the Constantin Refining company, causing damage estimated at $50,000. Eight 3,000-barrel tanks of refined oil were destroyed and all the stills in the plant were damaged and most of the crude oil they contained destroyed.

Fashion's Fancies for Easter

AWAKE!" cries Mother Nature, and at her magic touch the earth springs to life. "It is Easter time," she says, "and now must the trees bring forth their leaves, the flowers of the woodland bring forth their buds, the birds of the air trill sweetly, for the merriest season is upon us." And to each of us comes the stirring of the New Life which each Spring brings, we throw aside the old and search for the new. New thoughts are in our minds, new songs upon our lips and we turn naturally to Mother Nature's ally, Dame Fashion, for the frocks which will typify the season's best, so that we may vie with the trees and the flowers and the birds in charm of appearance.

FROCKS of Taffeta there are, which, combined with Filet, are decidedly smart. Or when beaded and embroidered in Jade to accentuate a Navy color, are irresistible. The bouffant lines or the straight as you prefer. Georgette in the high colors, peach, jade, turquoise, orchid and others, flowered or plain. A dainty print whose designs are outlined in crystal beads, smart Black and White combinations, Navy and Taupe. Pompoms for the Debutante, Pierrot y Pierrette, in color and in line live again in these dainty frocks. Foulards in every conceivable color, Crepe Meteors for the street and afternoon. Pussy Willows veiled with dusky Georgette or Chiffon and frocks of Chiffon enhanced with beads.

SUITS of startling newness, the Eton, inspired by a costume worn long ago in the Sudanese Country under the French Regime. Beautiful in line and enhanced with braids intricately designed. Poirette Twills, Tricotines, and there is a smart Eton with an underblouse of Tricolette. With a touch of Scarlet at collar, hem and cuff, with little bell-like silver balls along the edgings there is a fascination about them you cannot resist. Box Coats, braided and plain, carefully developed and attaining a beauty of line this season we have not seen before. Plain Tailored Suits, simple and elegant. And Shepherd Plaids, very smart for the street, well-cut and so splendidly designed. Rookie is a much desired shade and there are Black Suits, Navys, Taupes, Greys and Beige.

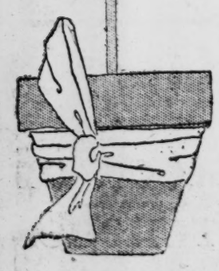

The Blouse

THE Blouse has come in to its own this season. With the suit designed so that the blouse adds greatly to the ensemble, the designers of Blouses have given their best and the artistic results are a delight to the eye. Georgettes, French Voiles, Marquisette and Hand-Made Laces have never been so charmingly developed before.

HERE are hand-made blouses in which are combined the exquisite hand drawn work and real laces of filet and Valenciennes. Overblouses in the softly draped hip effects. Hand-made blouses of nets combined with laces, blouses of French voile, every stitch made by hand. Pink marquisette, hand-made and convincingly beautiful, simple and elegant with their closely grouped tucks.

GEORGETTE blouses, beaded and embroidered. New arrivals show the overdrape and are decidedly smart. All have the short sleeves which fashion decrees for Spring and Summer, and they are moderately priced. The low neck is also predominant in the new selections which have come to us very recently and represent the very latest ideas in blouse design, and there is a selection of very fine blouses of hand-made Irish lace in the new toast shade.

The Corset

THE foundation of the costume for Easter is of the utmost importance. The Corset which assures perfection of line and of fit must be itself most carefully fitted.

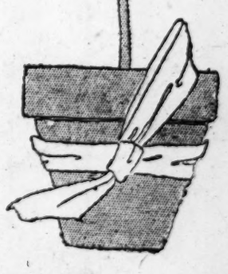

Here the first consideration is of course quality and we offer Madame Irene as the very best of the back-lacing corsets to be had. Frolaset (Frolasay) is a front-lacing corset, quite within the classification of the Madame Irene, and, too, you will find a corsetiere of experience and skill to fit you, to assure you the utmost in comfort and appearance from your purchase.

Footwear

SHOES to complete the Easter Costume should be SOROSIS if they are to be correct in style, comfortable and a really finishing touch. SOROSIS Pumps and Oxfords for Spring and Summer, 1920, have an air of individuality, of authentic style and of smartness that comes from the employment of the finest materials, the most skillful makers of shoes and a pride of achievement. Every leather is here—dull and patent kid, white kid, tans and browns in the kid or calf. There are white canvas Pumps and Oxfords, too, and the conventional gold and silver slippers for evening wear.

Hosiery

HOSIERY, fragile and smart. Stockings of silk in all the desirable colors, some with lisle tops and soles to render them more durable. Lace inserts, allover laces, hosettes of silk. There is nothing you may desire in hosiery that cannot be found here. All the very newest ideas as to what hosiery for Spring should be are exemplified in our selections. Some of the daintiest of stockings for kiddies came in a day or so ago. Little clocks and hand-embroidered designs make them so charming we had to speak of them, although this ad should have been all for grown-ups.

WOOD HAS EDGE IN SOUTH DAKOTA

By Mark Sullivan.

Huron, S. D., March 22.—(Special.) The most dependable prediction is that Wood should carry South Dakota tomorrow. Whoever is the winner will have reason for satisfaction and will be justified in assuming that what he does here he will be able to do in other states, for it has been a hard, fair and even fight. The two organizations within the state which have been behind Wood and Lowden, respectively, are of extraordinarily even strength and have fought with equal energy and equal resources.

The advantages in favor of Wood are that he made a rather more favorable personal impression on the people of the state than Lowden made when he was here. Also Wood spent twice as much time in the state as Lowden. Finally, Wood has spent the last week of the campaign here, winding up with a whilwind finish in the black hills. During the past eight days General Wood must have seen, spoken to or shaken hands with fully a third of all the voters in the state.

The fortunes of the fight have gone back and forth during the three months it has been on. Wood actually was the first in the state, but the Lowden forces, when they did come, came in a formidable way and were the first to organize the state. There is no doubt that from four to eight weeks ago the Lowden organization had the fight won. But the testimony is universal that when Lowden came into the state personally the people who heard him had a sense of disappointment which weakened his strength here.

Not What People Wanted.

It does not follow that the result would follow Lowden's personal campaigning in other states, for Lowden has a good personality and makes a good speech. But the speech he chose to deliver in South Dakota was not the kind of speech that the people here wanted and had been led to expect. The advance organizers for Lowden had given the people a picture of him, which he did not come up to. It is not that Lowden's personality is less impressive, but it is different from the pictures the people had formed in their minds by the advance literature which they had studied more minutely and had taken more seriously than campaign literature is commonly taken. The people had a feeling that Lowden did not come up to the specifications promised by his organizers in the state and his literature.

Moreover, Lowden's speeches here dealt wholly with his introduction of the budget system in Illinois and with his experiences as a live stock raiser. What the people wanted and were expecting was a discussion of national issues, a discussion which Lowden is entirely capable of giving if he had happened to choose that subject. It is said universally and in a wholly friendly way that Lowden's ebb in strength began about the time of his personal tour of the state. About the same time the Wood forces began a most energetic work of organizaation which they have maintained with cumulative effect right up to tonight.

Wood and Poindexter Speak.

Sioux Falls, S. D., March 22.—Two of the four candidates for republican presidential indorsement at the South Dakota primary tomorrow were among an army of political campaigners in action throughout the state tonight urging men and women voters to go to the polls.

General Wood; Senator Johnson, of California; Governor Lowden, of Illinois, and Senator Poindexter, of Washington, seek the republican indorsement for presidential nomination. South Dakota's delegates to the republican national convention will be instructed to support the candidate receiving the primary plurality. General Wood spoke tonight at Rapid City and Senator Poindexter at Sioux Falls.

General Wood received indorsement from the majority faction of the state convention at Pierre, December 2. Lowden got the minority indorsement, while Johnson and Poindexter filed as independents. The democratic convention indorsed President Wilson for a third term, James W. Gerard, of New York, was the minority choice, and James O. Monroe, of Maywood, Ill., filed as independent.

Party candidates for United States senator, congressmen, governor and other state offices are to be nominated. The non-partisan league ticket will not be on the primary ballot as there were no contestants.

Heavy voting tomorrow was forecast for some sections, while several rural districts reported that bad roads pointed to a light vote.

AMERICAN NAVY TO EQUAL BRITISH

motely approaching ours. In fact, since the practical wiping out of the German navy all the remaining navies and naval programs of the world, exclusive of England, do not equal ours."

Large Sums Needed.

Representative William B. Oliver, of Alabama, a member of the house committee on naval affairs, pointed out that for the completion of the 1916 program additional appropriations of $390,000,000 would have to be made in three successive years. The sum of $160,000,000 will have been spent on this program at the end of this year, he said.

The bill under consideration calls for an appropriation of $104,000,000 for the construction of the ships called for in this program during the coming year. Mr. Oliver said that for the completion of the program an appropriation of $150,000,000 would have to be made in 1922, a like sum in 1923, and $90,000,000 in 1924.

In the light of the debate today it appears possible that attempts will be made to reduce the appropriation of $104,000,000 for the 1916 program when it comes up for consideration. It is not unlikely that there will be strong opposition to the continuation of this program.

Mr. Mondell pointed out that the program of naval expenditure proposed by Great Britain, based on the current rate of exchange, amounts to about $321,000,000, and this reduced by the sum proposed for liquidation of terminal war expenses leaves the equivalent of approximately $241,000,000 as the total of Great Britain's expenditure.

Will Exceed England's.

At this rate of expenditure, he said, our naval budget will exceed England's by $184,000,000. Other members of the house objected that this appropriation did not include the money for aviation for which the bill under consideration is based on an assumed average personnel of 120,000. Great Britain, he said, proposes a naval personnel of 136,000.

"In the matter of the strength of the fleet in full commission the number of our contemplated lines would seem to be 17 dreadnaughts, 13 pre-dreadnaughts, eight armored cruisers, 18 cruisers and destroyers, submarines and auxiliary vessels in proportion as against 16 battleships, four battle cruisers, 38 light cruisers with auxiliary ships in proportion on the part of Great Britain," he said.

This comparison, he pointed out, is based on the number of major ships planned by Great Britain and the estimated number of ships which this country would keep in commission. Admiral Robert E. Coontz, chief of naval operations, he said, placed this number at 730 when appearing before the house naval affairs committee in January.

NORTHERN LIGHTS SEEN IN ATLANTA

ered efficiency of telegraph instruments. Service was slowed up to a great extent on all the lines for a while on Tuesday evening, on account of the fact that the balance was destroyed between the aerial and ground wires which provide the stimulus to the ticking of the operators' keys.

C. F. von Herrmann, who knows more about weather and the things that happen out of the ordinary in the skies and under the earth than most anybody available, says that this is the first time he had seen the display in Atlanta, and Mr. von Herrmann has been in the city for 12 years.

There has been almost as many attempted explanations of this electrical phenomena as there have been of the four dimension, and all of them are just as easy to understand as each other. Which is not at all. The most popular, and latest theory, said Mr. von Herrmann, is the "electron" theory. It would take too long to explain it here, and besides its rather hard to learn science over the telephone, after Mr. von Herrmann's office hours.

Magnetic Storms.

Magnetic storms usually follow distinct displays of the northern lights, it is said, and then it is that the telegraph companies have all manner of trouble in transmitting their messages, owing to the peculiar obstinacy electricity assumes on such occasions.

And magnetic storms are traceable, it has been rumored, to disturbance among the spots on the sun. It may be presidential candidates, heavyweight champions or almost anything that causes the sun to change its spots in such an un-leopard-like manner. Which is getting away from the main issue:

That the aurora borealis was distinctly visible in Atlanta on Tuesday night, and that the fact is an event in Atlanta's astronomical history.

Telegraph Service Demoralized.

New York, March 22.—Aurora Borealis was attacked tonight with spring fever. He kicked up his heels, danced all over the sky and put telegraph wires out of commission from the Atlantic seaboard to the far west.

The wire chief of the Western Union headquarters tried to take the patient's "pulse," but reported the company had no instruments strong enough to measure the voltage in the electrical currents which swept across the heavens. Nature's skylarking in the northland made telegraphy an impossibility for fifteen minutes—a record in this vicinity—and caused a flurry in newspaper offices all over the country when news westward bound was held up.

There were interruptions in telegraph service early in the evening, but the complete tie-up came at 9:45. By 10 o'clock Western Union reported it was beginning to recover some of its circuits, but a realignment or balancing was necessary.

The A. T. & T. company, which also reported its telegraph service was completely demoralized, said the northern lights had not interrupted its local or long-distance telephone service. Cable terminals were hard hit, while wireless apparatus waged an unequal fight against nature for command of the air.

HEARST INJUNCTION STICKS ON THE SHIPS

Washington, March 22.—Justice Bailey, of the District of Columbia supreme court, today declined to dissolve the temporary injunction granted William Randolph Hearst to prevent the shipping board from selling 29 former German passenger ships but took under advisement the motion of counsel for the shipping board to dismiss the suit. Dismissal of the case was asked on the ground the proceedings were against the United States and that Mr. Hearst had no such interest in the matter as would entitle him to maintain the action.

NEW PARTY LOOMS, DECLARES FRANCE

Maryland Senator Says "Republican Liberals" May Organize to Fight "Bourbon Autocracy."

Washington, March 22.—Warning that "republican liberals" might form a new political party to fight "bourbon autocracy" in an effort to restore individual liberty, was sounded in the senate today by Senator France, republican, Maryland.

With repeal of national prohibition and the espionage act as the chief planks in its tentative platform, Senator France declared that liberals need not hesitate "to raise the battle cry against all the reactionary forces of autocracy and un-American bourbonism."

"The democratic party, under autocratic leadership," he said, "ingloriously abandoned the sound doctrine of the sovereignty of the states, voted, without scruple, huge powers to the chief executive, who was, in violation of the constitution and of every cherished principle of liberty, created the most powerful despot in the world."

Accuses Republicans.

Charging that republicans joined with the bourbon reactionaries and connived in the setting up of this autocracy, Senator France said both parties are as decadent as the issues that quickened them into being."

"If the republican party shall not now become the party of liberalism and of liberty," he declared, "then must be a new and liberal party which shall express the aspirations of the millions of Americans who now demand restoration of their liberty and of their liberties."

Along with repeal of the prohibition amendment, Senator France urged "reconsideration" of the whole subject, with local option and use of "certain alcoholic beverages."

Some of the planks were:

Operation of railroads by representatives of capital, labor and the public, under interstaate commerce commisison supervision.

Reduction of the high cost of living, with economy of federal expenditures and reduced taxes.

A navy second to none, and a system of military training, but postponement of immediate universal training.

Other demands were:

Woman suffrage, a budget system, agricultural development, federal employment agencies, abolishment of child labor, "generous compensation" for service men permanently disabled, and development of the merchant marine.

Attack on Prohibition.

Senator France charged that prohibition, "forced through during the war, while four million American boys were in service," was unconstitutional and an infringement upon individual liberty and states' rights.

"If the supreme court upholds this decision," Senator France continued, "then, all men, regardless of how they feel upon the question of national prohibition, should be willing to advocate the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, in order that in normal times the pepole and their legislators should have an opportunity of determining for themselves, freed from all coercion, compulsion and repression, this most important question.

"Many of us feel that while use of certain alcoholic liquors should be prohibited by local option statutes, the recent measures adopted have gone so far that they may, with justification, be considered by some as undue infringement upon personal self-determination.

"But whether we believe in total prohibition or not, those of us who are republican liberals believe that such drastic changes should be secured only in accordance with orderly processes of unhampered discussion of the issues involved."

Marlborough Duchess Granted Restitution Of Her Conjugal Rights

London, March 22.—The application of the Duchess of Marlborough, formerly Consuelo Vanderbilt, for a decree for the restitution of conjugal rights, was granted by the court today. The petition of the duchess, filed last week, is the usual preliminary to divorce in the country. The court orders the decree to be obeyed within fourteen days after its service upon the duke.

The couple were married in New York in 1895, and have two children. They have been separated for several years. It was announced that the suit was not defended.

Sir Edward Carson, for the dutchess, set forth that in 1907 indifferences arose between the duke and the duchess, and that a deed of separation was arranged outside of court, making provisions for the bringing up and the education of the two boys of the couple, the one born in 1897 and the other in 1898.

When the youngest boy became of age in October, 1919, continued the attorney, the agreement ceased to be effective, and the couple met to discuss the situation. During the conversation the duke suggested that they go back living together. The duchess agreed and they took up their residence at Crowhurst.

In February of this year, Sir Edward added, the duke departed from Crowhurst, leaving a note for the duchess saying he was convinced it would be impossible for them to be happy together.

THE REASON BRYAN IS GOOD SPEAKER

(By Constitution Leased Wire.)

Washington, March 22.—William J. Bryan was in Washington the night of his 60th birthday anniversary. Wishing to celebrate, he called several of the older Washington newspaper men to his hotel, and they sat about reminiscenting for several hours. The "Commoner" did much of the talking, and here is one of the stories he told on himself:

"Following a political speech in the west, I was approached by a member of my audience, who congratulated me on my remarks and on the way in which I had delivered them. He seemed to be particularly impressed with my oratorical powers. 'You don't deserve much credit, though,' he concluded, 'with that mouth of yours you ought to be able to whisper into your own ear.'"

REDUCTION PROMISED IN THE PRICE OF SHOES

New York, March 22.—Prices of standard shoes will be reduced during the spring and summer, John J. Slater, president of the Retail Shoe Dealers' association, announced today in a communication to Arthur Williams, federal food administrator. Retailers at a recent meeting decided to be content with a smaller margin of profit, Mr. Slater said.

To Federal Court.

Rome, Ga., March 22.—(Special.) The suit for injunction by the Graves Harper company against the Southern Railway company seeking to enjoin the latter from confiscating coal consigned to them moving over the Southern railway lines has been transferred from Floyd superior court to the federal court, northwestern division of the north Georgia district. The petition of the Graves Harper company, set for hearing before Judge Wright last Monday, was not contested.

GOVERNOR DORSEY HAS INDORSED "AMERICAN DAY"

New York, March 22.—Governor Dorsey, of Georgia, has indorsed the National Security league's plan for turning May 1 into "American day" through the holding of nation-wide popular demonstrations of Americanism on that day, which has been the time-honored occasion for radical celebrations.

Governor Dorsey has telegraphed the National Security league as follows: "You are authorized to add my name to list of those indorsing May 1 as American day."

Mayor Stewart, of Savannah, has written to Mr. Orth, president of the National Security league, as follows:

"I am in sympathy with your movement to show the internationalists and radicals that they are a pest to the American nation and that we will not stand for bolshevism. You can depend on the south to stand squarely with your movement and do all we can to make it a success."

ROME WANTS POWER FROM BIG U. S. DAM

Rome, Ga., March 22.—(Special.) At the request of the Rome city commission, Congressman Gordon Lee has introduced in the house of representatives a bill that would give Rome the right to utilize the hydro-electric power at the dam at Mayo's bar, seven miles south of the city, on the Coosa river. In the general water power bill now before a conference committee of the house and senate, a water power commission is authorized to and that commission has authority to issue permits to develop water power sites without extra legislation by congress. Rome, therefore, has two opportunities to secure the desired end, one the general measure, and the other the special bill introduced by Mr Lee.

The bill has been referred to the water power committee. It is the first of its kind to be introduced.

PUTS AIR TO WORK

Correct Ventilation for Every Industry

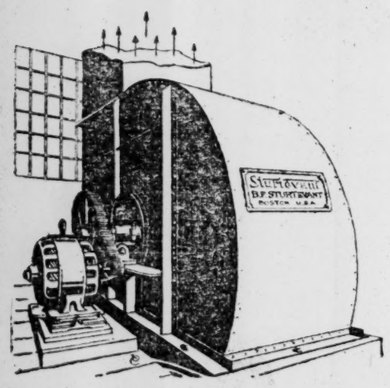

The large terminal of the Pennsylvania Railroad in New York City is ventilated and heated by forty-six Sturtevant Multivane Fans.

STURTEVANT has always been foremost in designing ventilating equipment. Large public buildings, plants, offices and churches all over the nation enjoy the better air conditions Sturtevant apparatus makes possible. Architects and engineers have for years known that the longer life and more reliable operation of Sturtevant Ventilating Equipment are what make a Sturtevant installation the better investment. Sixty years' experience in putting air to work is built into every Sturtevant product and is behind every Sturtevant recommendation. No matter what type of building is to be ventilated, Sturtevant machinery can supply it with clean air in the most economical and efficient manner.

The Multivane Fan was developed by Sturtevant especially for ventilating work. Each blade has cup-shaped depressions which grip the air and prevent it from slipping along the blade to the side of the wheel opposite the inlet. This insures evenly proportioned pressure along the entire blade and makes a higher efficiency possible.

Let a Sturtevant representative tell you how good ventilation has increased production in others' plants. Write, phone, or wire for him.

ATLANTA WILL ASK TRACTOR EXHIBIT

National Association Is Planning to Give Four Demonstrations in Big American Cities This Year.

The Atlanta Tractor and Farm Implement club, which was organized in February, for the formation of better co-operation between the dealers in tractors and other farm machinery in the city, will meet Friday night at 6:30 in the pine room of the Hotel Ansley, J. W. Rawlings, manager of the B. F. Avery Plow company, is president of the organization; William J. Dabney, president of the W. J. Dabney Implement company, is vice president, and T. S. McCants, sales manager of the Southern Moline Plow company, is secretary and treasurer.

The most important feature of the meeting Friday night will be the discussion of plans to ask the National Tractor association to make Atlanta one of the four American cities in which demonstrations will be given during the fall and winter of 1920-21.

The National Tractor association has already announced its intention of giving shows and demonstrations of farm tractors and machinery throughout the United States during the coming fall and winter. There are four of these to be given, according to the plans, and the cities in which they will be staged have not yet been named. The magnitude of the exhibits, and the high interest with which they are anticipated in farming and manufacturing circles, gives a great value to the securing of such a demonstration.

Atlanta's centralized position in the south, and its proximity to the chief agricultural and industrial sections, make the chances favorable for the national association's granting of Atlanta's request that the exhibit be held in this city.

TO PREVENT OR CURE A COLD

Treating the Liver Alone Is Not Sufficient — To Get the Quickest Results, Treat the Kidneys and Blood Also.

Dr. Hitchcock's Liver, Kidney and Blood Powders Tone Up the Liver, Stimulate the Kidneys to Healthy Action, Thus Purifying the Blood.

A Vegetable Compound That Knocks the Cold Out of Your Entire System — Will Not Make You Sick.

Colds do not have to "run their course" if properly treated. A cold is caused primarily by an inactive liver; an inactive liver disorders the kidneys, and the blood catches the impurities that these organs have failed to eliminate.

The quickest way to prevent or cure a cold is by treating the liver, kidneys and blood all at the same time with Dr. Hitchcock's Liver, Kidney & Blood Powders. The same rule applies in the treatment of constipation, biliousness, indigestion, gas, sour stomach, headaches, rheumatism, etc.

Attention, Farmers! Here's a New Menace From the Boll Weevil

Stone Mountain, Ga., March 22.—(Special.)—Oscar Goddard, a farmer, who resides near here, asserts that the boll weevil has attacked his chickens, killing many. Mr. Goddard also states that he has invented a machine for killing the boll weevil, but as it has such a strong suction it also destroys the cotton.

Agitation Is Revived For Merging Republics Of Central America

Washington, March 22.—Agitation for the reunion of the Central American republics into one great nation has been revived in Guatemala, according to advices reaching Washington today, the result being developed. President Cabrera, of Guatemala, has been an active opponent of the unionist idea. The report stated that the prisons were filled with political offenders, but the popular clamor continued.

Demanding the adoption by the Guatemalan national assembly of a resolution calling a congress of all Central American nations on April 1, the unionist party has issued a manifesto declaring that the time has come to end the internecine warfare that has prevailed in Central America since the Central American union was dissolved in 1821; that the political disintegration should disappear, and that the people should re-establish a new, free and independent Central American union worthy to stand by the side of the greatest nations of the world.

Salvador and Honduras have been contending for such a union for years; Costa Rica is favorable to it, but Nicaragua is opposed to the project.

U. S. RELIEF SHIPS TO BE SOVIET ARKS

New York, March 22.—Relief ships to be sent by the United States within the next month with flour for needy countries of Europe also are going to be soviet arks, according to information obtained from immigration officials here today. More than four hundred Russians, Finns and Poles from all parts of the country, who have been found to have advocated the use of violence to overturow the government, will be shipped on them in groups.

No repetition of the Buford's trip with an exclusive soviet cargo is planned, but shipping board vessels on which the United States grain corporation is to ship 5,000,000 barrels of flour will be utilized as well as commercial vessels. A number of the latter type are expected to go to Finland with the breaking up of the ice at Hango in the spring. Russians and Finns probably will be sent to Hango, the Russians being forwarded by rail from that port to the soviet frontier, as were the Buford's passengers. The Poles probably will go to Danzig on food ships.

BONDS IN EXCHANGE FOR LIBERTY ISSUES

Washington, March 22.—Senator Frelinghuysen, republican, New Jersey, today introduced a bill authorizing the secretary of the treasury to issue not to exceed $30,000,000,000 worth of bonds to be exchanged for Liberty bonds of the first, second, third and fourth issues, at the option of the holders of the Liberty bonds.

The proposed issue would bear interest at 3½ per cent, would be payable in fifty years, and would be exempt from all national, state and local taxes except estate and inheritance taxes.

Included in the bill was a provision for establishing a sinking fund to redeem the issue at or before maturity. Senator Frelinghuysen said the measure was calculated as a "start toward liquidating the nation's enormous war debt."

RAIL-MARINE WORKERS COMPLETE ALLIANCE

New York, March 22.—An agreement in the nature of "a defensive and offensive alliance" between the Big Four and other railroad brotherhoods and the National Association of Masters, Mates and Pilots, was signed in Washington last week, John H. Pruett, president of the Marine Workers, announced here today.

Mr. Pruett explained the agreement provides "for unity in action of all railroad unions employed in transportation in any policy concerning the welfare of the seventeen railway brotherhoods," and obligates workers on railway boats, tugs and ferries, who are members of the National Association of Masters, Mates and Pilots to support the brotherhoods.

GORE WANTS REPEAL OF THE LEVER MEASURE

Washington, March 22.—The Lever food control act would be repealed under a joint resolution introduced today by Senator Gore, democrat, Oklahoma. In view of the "failure of ratficiation of the peace treaty," Senator Gore said he thought it was time congress began to clean up this war legislation."

COAL DUST LODGED IN MINER'S LUNGS

Tells how his cough was conquered and health restored.

"In November, 1916, I was working in a coal mine and the doctors said the coal dust had settled in my lungs. I couldn't lie down on my right side, coughed so I couldn't sleep and had constant pain in my right lung and under my shoulder blades. I coughed so hard the blood would spurt out of my nose. Finally the doctors had me change climate and live outdoors, but didn't improve.

'Then I came home and started on Milks Emulsion. Thank God, I did, as it did me a lot of good right from the start, loosening up the coal dust in my right lung. In a few weeks my lungs were free. I could sleep like a baby, had an excellent appetite and my cough left me entirely. I gained back 30 pounds in weight and went back to work in the mines completley restored to health."—G. H. Bunn, 6th Ave. & No. 13th St., Terre Haute, Indiana.

JOINT BOARD FORMED ON RAILROAD WAGES

Washington, March 22.—Formation of the joint railroad wage board was completed here tonight by the conference committees representing the railroad corporations and the sixteen railroad unions, which elected E. P. Whiter, of the Pennsylvania railroad, chairman. The bipartisan body now is ready to begin consideration of the wage demands of the 2,000,000 workers made last August, and which since have been twice before the president without a settlement being reached.

The board today began the task of re-examination of the voluminous records and data, gathered by the wage adjustment boards of the railroad administration, with respect to the workers' claims. Contrary to the union forecast, the corporation representatives agreed to include these as part of the board's wage records and to employ them, as far as practicable, as a basis upon which to discuss the controversy.

According to present indications, the board will not deal with the question as a whole until countless minor points of difference have been eliminated. Members were said to have proposed that the wage demands be taken up by classes, adjustments reached and individual controversies settled, and then the basis of a general percentage of increases discussed.

The suggestion of the president that the board should give close study to the relationship between present railroad wages and the cost of living and also to the cost of labor in other lines of industry probably will not enter into the conference until toward the end. The disposition seemed to be to talk of "specifics rather than generalities" at the outset, and on this point union leaders said they had won. They believed when they had succeeded in avoiding "meandering discussion" they had broken away from the bunker which they said they always had met in wage meetings prior to federal control.

The railroad representatives explained that the association of railroad executives had instructed them to enter the negotiations "in a spirit of co-operation," but they reminded the union leaders that financial responsibilities rested on the shoulders of the corporations which must be considered when wage claims were under consideration. The hearings now before the interstate commerce commission were referred to, it was said, and the statement made that wage increases hinge upon higher rates.

Union leaders scouted the report that their demands would aggregate an additional $1,000,000,000 on railroad operating expenses. Spokesmen asserted that "no living man" could ascertain the exact amount which would be added to the payrolls because of the intricacy of the wage scales. That there would be a heavy increase, the leaders admitted, but its proportions they did not believe would attain any such aggregate.

Young, maker of the county property book, has been serving as temporary receiver under appointment from Ordinary C. M. Wiley.

WILSON IS QUERIED ABOUT YAP ISLAND

Washington March 22.—A resolution asking President Wilson for information as to the recent announcement by the British foreign minister that the Island of Yap, in the Pacific ocean, was to be given to Japan was adopted today by the senate without debate. It was offered by Senator Lodge, the republican leader, who presented a letter from John Foord, secretary of the American Asiatic association, expressing hope that congress would unite in a protest against the administration of the island passing into other hands than those of the United States.

ABLE TO WALK DOWN TOWN FOR FIRST TIME IN SIX LONG MONTHS

"I Would Not Take All the Money in Georgia for the Good Puratone Did Me," She Savs.

"After taking three bottles of Pomeroy's Puratone I was able to walk down town for the first time in six long months," was the remarkable statement made the other day by Mrs. Lula Sofrels, a well-known Columbus, Ga., woman who resides at 3110 Eleventh avenue.

"I suffered fifteen years with stomach trouble and nervous indigestion," continued Mrs. Sorrels, "and spent hundreds of dollars for treatments and medicines, but nothing helped me until I began taking Pomeroy's Puratone, but now my troubles have been overcome and I am like a new woman.

"At times I was so nervous the least noise—like the rattle of a newspaper—would startle me. My heart would beat so fast sometimes I thought every breath would be my last. I would have such terrible dizzy spells at times when I attempted to walk I would fall to the floor. I nearly always had headaches and bad frequent vomiting spells. I was also subject to awful smothering spells. I couldn't eat or sleep like other people, and was so weak I just had to drag myself from one chair to another.

"You can just imagine my gratitude for the medicine that overcame all these serious troubles after everything else had failed. I can now sleep like a child all night and arise the next morning feeling fine. I can eat anything I want, enjoy every mouthful and not suffer in the least afterwards. My strength has increased so wonderfully that I can now walk down town, do my shopping and return home and do my housework. I never have a headache now or vomiting spell. I'm not nervous, don't have the smothering spells and haven't a pain about me. In fact, I am once more a well and happy woman. My friends cannot understand how a medicine could do so much for anyone in the shape I was in, and they consider my recovery almost miraculous. I would not take all the money in Georgia for the good Pomeroy's Puratone did me."

Puratone is sold in Atlanta exclusively by the Jacobs' Pharmacy stores, and by one leading druggist in every town. If there is no Puratone dealer in your town Pomeroy & Company, Atlanta, Ga., will fill your orders at $1.04 per bottle postpaid. —(adv.)

USE CONSTITUTION WA

WILSON IS SILENT ABOUT THE TREATY

Congress Is Inclined to Postpone Action Until Some Statement Comes From the White House.

Washington, March 22.—In the absence of any authoritative prediction of what President Wilson would do with the unratified treaty with Germany the impression gained weight in diplomatic circles today that the first step probably would be a notification to the other powers that ratification had been refused by the senate.

Diplomats holding that view pointed out that such a notification could be given to clarify the status of relations between the United States and the other powers, regardless of what decision the president might make later on the question of the treaty's resubmission to the senate or negotiation of a separate peace.

May State Future Purpose.

In some quarters it was predicted that Mr. Wilson might, however, combine a notification of the treaty's failure with an announcement of his future purposes in the matter, in order that the nations that have ratified may be advised of what course they can expect developments here to take.

Senate leaders are understood to have been influenced in part by such a possibility in their decision to delay action on a declaration of peace, preferring to know what the president will do before they take any further steps. Today there was some discussion of the peace declaration proposal in informal conferences among senators, but it was predicted that it would not come up on the floor for two weeks or more.

There are many varieties of opinion in senate and house, both of which would have to act on a peace resolution as to the exact form the declaration should take. Mild reservation republicans have told their party leaders they would be adverse to including any statement of policy which would regard the treaty and the league of nations as dead, while republican irreconcilables want questions of policy left out of the resolution entirely.

Different Aspect.

In predicting that a notification might be sent to the other powers of the senate's return of the treaty to the president, diplomats pointed out that the case had taken a different aspect since the adverse ratification votes in November. On that occasion the treaty was not sent back to the president and it was possible for him to preserve silence as it was well enough understood that the pact having been left with the senate, the initiative in further action was left wholly with that body.

The question of establishing a modus vivendi with the allies over clauses of the Versailles treaty in which the United States is inextricably bound by her interests, in case a separate peace with Germany is decided upon, is not believed to offer great difficulties. Officials of the allies, it is thought, would be quick to endeavor to reach an understanding which might preserve ties established by the war.

In some diplomatic quarters, it was thought probable that a separate peace might be established with Germany a modus vivendi negotiated with the allies and the covenant of the league of nations alone left to the "solemn referendum" of the nation.

The fate of the French defensive treaty appears to diplomatic officials to have been completely forgotten.

BILL PROPOSING SEPARATE PEACE.

Washington, March 22.—A bill proposing a separate peace between the United States and Germany and Austria for the purpose of "peaceful commerce" was introduced today by Representative Britten, republican, Illinois.

Creation of a European trade council to promote trade with Europe generally also was proposed. It would be headed by President Wilson and its members would be the secretaries of state, commerce, treasury and labor. The council would be directed to report to congress "in the shortest practicable time" on a general plan for "financing European credit through the federal reserve banking system, pending such time as the exchange value of foreign moneys reaches something like its pre-war status."

HITCHCOCK OPPOSES PEACE BY RESOLUTION.

Augusta, Ga., March 22.—Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska, in charge of the democratic fight for ratification of the peace treaty, expressed the opinion here today that the plan to have congress declare peace by resolution would fail because of "constitutional obstacles."

"There is a disposition among certain senators to attempt to terminate the war with the adoption by the senate and the house of concurrent resolution, declaring that a state of peace exists, the resolution to be signed by the president," said Senator Hitchcock, "but I am of the opinion that this cannot be done. In the framing of the constitution of the United States, the war-making function was delegated to congress, but the right to terminate war by the negotiation of a peace treaty was vested in the chief executive. My opinion is that the framers of the constitution acted wisely in that respect, for, while the declaration of war requires action by but one party to the conflict, there must be negotiation and agreement between both parties when peace is effectuated. Under our laws, action on behalf of the United States terminating a war is vested in the president, and I am of the opinion that the plan of Senator Knox and his colleagues to restore peace by the passage of a resolution declaring a state of peace exists will fail on account of constitutional obstacles."

SAVAGE ATTACKS MADE ON LEAGUE

actuated solely by his desire to prevent this country from falling under the domination of European powers, as it would if the league covenant had been ratified.

"I regard it as my mission to appeal to patriotic Americans," he said, "to save the independence of this country from European political aggression. I am doing this without any personal end to serve whatever."

Senator Reed was presented to his audience last night by former Senator Hardwick, who paid a high compliment to the abilities of the Missouri man and introduced him as "the foremost defender of true Americanism and of free government under the constitution."

Senator Reed said that an editorial had been sent from a certain Georgia newspaper in which his democracy was called into question. "Nobody can find out where I have ever nine times bolted a democratic nominee," he declared. "I will permit no man to challenge my democracy, and certainly no newspaper supporting an internationalism, that means the hauling down of the American flag, has any right to challenge my loyalty to the United States."

No Reference to Campaign.

The senator made no refernece anywhere in his speech to the campagn for the presidential nomination in Georgia except to intimate in his opening paragraphs that that campaign had not yet started.

While the senator declared that the president was a very sick man, and that he would not criticise him, what he said being more in sorrow than in anger, his arraignment of the chief executive in his attack on the league of nations was almost as severe as that of Mr. Hardwick, who, in his introductory remarks, called the president an "imperial autocrat."

"The executive power has advanced within recent years," said Senator Hardwick, "until now it rests on an imperial autocrat seated at Washington more despotic and unscrupulous than any tyrant of Europe. Local self-government has been abolished. Free speech has been penalized until citizens were afraid to criticise their own servants in public office above a whisper. Espionage laws have been passed that set federal spies in every household. Visionary cranks and irresponsible theorists, true to no opinion and loyal to no cause, held authority."

The time had arisen, proceeded Mr. Hardwick, when the issue of the hour was to curb autocracy in America. "Not since Washington compelled Cornwallis to lower the British flag has so notable a victory been gained for American freedom as was gained in the United States senate last Friday," he added. "We have with us tonight the chief hero of that victory, a man who has undergone a storm of abuse, of slander, and of plain lying without parallel in this country. He is a democrat who does not believe in the 'new freedom.' He does not believe that Georgia ought to be governed from Washington or the United States from Geneva."

Given Cordial Reception.

On his arising to speak, Senator Reed was given a cordial reception by his audience, which, however, did reach altogether the pitch of enthusiasm which greeted Mr. Hardwick, a good portion of the crowd seeming to look upon him as their leader rather than the Missouri senator.

Early in his speech, Senator Reed called on all the boys who had been in France to rise. Possibly fifty in the audience stood up. He then asked them for a vote on whether they would like to be sent to France again. The boys seemed to be somewhat at a loss as to what was expected of them, but naturally none held up his hand as expressing a desire to go to war again. The senator then cited some features of the league, and added:

"If this league were ratified, it would mean that you would have to be drafted and sent everywhere in the world that a war might break out. Now I want the press to say that I took a vote of the boys who went to France and that they were unanimously against the league."

Soldier Answers Him.

One ex-soldier in the audience promptly said: "I did not vote with that understanding. I do not think Article X. would have that effect."

"Wait till I get to Article X. and I will show you that it does, and that other articles do, too."

Senator Reed declared that it would be as impossible to cure the effects of the league by reservation as it would be to render a rattlesnake as harmless as a newly born infant. He characterized it as a league of treason to the United States. With the fourteen Lodge reservations and four others that had been added, he said, it still contained features that aimed at the very life of the American government.

He reiterated the charge that President Wilson had called the national committee together and told them that he would like to see the senators hanged on scaffolds as high as Heaven, but pointed in the other direction. "He said this to intimidate senators from performing their constitutional functions," he added, "and yet he is the man who is putting people in jail by the hundreds for assailing the bases of our government."

Senator Reed's Speech.

"Under the league of nations we have but one man to represent us in all international matters.

"This single representative of the United States sits in the council along with eight foreigners who are all directly or indirectly interested in practically every controversy of an international nature which may arise.

"I cannot conceive of any great international question in which this political tribunal of foreigners will be unbiased, and in many of these cases all of the other members have a common interest against the United States.

Panama Canal Question.

"Suppose that the question were to be raised again of whether the United States could be allowed to send its vessels through its own Panama canal free of tolls; and suppose that America were to assert, what I believe to be her undoubted right, the right to open that canal to her own vessels, sailing under her own flag without the payment of any toll. Suppose Great Britain were to protest and summons us as litigants before the bar of the council or the assembly of the league of nations, Great Britain being a direct party complainant and the United States being a direct party defendant, could not sit in the controversy. Let us say the trial would proceed before the council of the league. France has an interest, for if tolls are not free to her as they are for America, her ships are handicapped. In that respect her interest is exactly the interest of Great Britain, in character if not in degree. Japan owns vessels. She has the same interest that Great Britain has. This is true of Italy, Belgium, Greece and Spain. Every one of those nations has an interest identical to the interest of Great Britain. Yet, they are not parties litigant and can sit and vote, and would sit and vote in the interest of their own nation.

"Does that bear any resemblance to a court? And yet it is to this tribunal composed of foreigners that we propose to submit great international questions.

No Vote at All.

"In this connection I call your attention to the league covenant in which it is prescribed that a party in interest cannot sit in the assembly. Therefore, in all controversies where the vital interest of the United States is at stake and where she is a party, our representative cannot sit, and we will have no vote at all.

"In addition to Great Britain's six votes in the assembly, she will have direct control of the votes of a number of the smaller nations of Europe which are directly dependent upon her for their very existence. These pawns are dummy directors sitting on the council of the league. Knowing that their very existence depend on voting favorably to Great Britain, they would undoubtedly cast their vote that way.

"Greece has been Great Britain's chattel ever since Greece was set up. Belgium is absolutely under the control and dominion of Great Britain. France—and I would say nothing harsh of France—is dependent for her very life upon the British navy and the British army. Hedjaz is directly under the British rule, as her king is on the British pay roll.

"So, we see that in addition to the six votes granted Great Britain outright, she will have a number of votes that she can absolutely control.

"Can any self-respecting, patriotic American be in favor of a super-government which gives us such a disproportionate representation?

Quotes President Wilson.

"President Wilson declares it is our business to sacrifice for the rest of the world. On September 22, 1919, at Reno, Navada, he declared:

"'I want to get into any kind of trouble that will help mankind. I do not want to be always thinking about my skin or my pocketgook, or my friendships.'

"This philosophy might be all right if it were the president and not the American people who were to make the sacrifice. A man has a right to make individual sacrifice if he so desires, but in these days of the 'new magic' the chief executive of the United States should not be allowed to sacriifce the people or the money of the United States for foreign countries.

"We have sacrificed the lives of 50,000 of the bravest boys who ever marched to battle. We have filled our country with the maimed, the blind and the diseased. This sacrifice, which cannot be measured in many and which can never be repaid, has more than cancelled our obligations to France and to Europe, but our financial sacrifices have been staggering in their magnitude.

"Let us see what is meant by sacrifice such as the president speaks of. What do we owe European countries? I maintain that we owe them nothing; that the figures are on the other side of the balance sheet. They owe us a debt which they can never repay.

"We went into the late war. We had a just cause to go in. But, while we were whipping the Germans because they sank our ships, we were driving them back from French soil and aiding our allies generally.

"As a part of the program of sacrifice in these days when the league of nations is to usher in the millennium of peace, we find that the American people are asked to stand for great increases in our army and navy, and proportionate appropriations to sustain the increases.

Army Appropriation.

"The appropriation for the army for 1916 was $101,000,000. The estimated appropriation for 1921 under this peace millennium is $982,000,000.

The appropriation for fortifications in 1916 was $6,000,000. The peace millennium estimate is $573,000,000.

The appropriation for fortifications in 1916 was $6,000,000. The 1921 peace millennium estimate is $117,000,000.

"These are some additional sacrifices the American people are compelled to make in order to have this league of nations.

"In addition to this, Secretary Baker demands a standing army of 576,000 regulars during peace time, all of this to carry out our obligations under this peace organization—the league of nations. In additions, he has demanded of congress universal military service.

"Secretary Daniels has demanded a personnel in the navy amounting to 250,000 men, and he states that our navy is to be used as a police force for the league.

"Suppose we accept the president's construction of the league, I maintain that there is not a patriotic American citizen who can construe the league as the president sees it and yet be for it. For instance, on September 6th at Kansas City the president stated:

"'The league of nations is greater than the senate. It is greater than the government. It is as great as the cause of mankind.'

"Assuming the president's construction to be correct, are you, as patriotic American citizens, willing to set up any government greater than that established by our fathers, baptized in the bloow of patriots from the lanes of Lexington to the forest of the Argonne, sanctified by the tears of all the mothers whose heroic sons went down to death to sustain its glory and independence?

"'Article 11 is my favorite article in the treaty. At present we have to mind other people's business.'

"This is very true, but at the same time we acquire the right under the league to mind the business of the other nations of the world, we grant to them the right to mind our business.

"When George Washington compelled Cornwallis to haul down the flag of Great Britain at Yorktown, he established the right of American citizens to attend to the business of America."

In conclusion Senator Reed said: "Let the American people arouse themselves. Let the democracy of this state arouse itself. If anyone is willing to submit the life of this nation to a court on which Great Britain and her vassal crown heads are to sit as judges, let us know who he is. That is the issue which you have to decide."

BONDS TO EXCHANGE FOR LIBERTY ISSUES

Washington, March 22.—Senator Frelinghuysen, republicn, New Jersey, today introduced a bill autthorizing the secretary of the treasury to issue not to exceed $30,000,000,000 worth of bonds to be exchanged for Liberty bonds of the first, second, third and fourth issues, at the option of the holders of the Liberty bond.

The proposed issue would bear interest at 3½ per cent; would be payable in fifty years, and would be exempt from all national, state and local taxes except estate and inheritance taxes.

Included in teh bill was a provision for establishing a sinking fund to redem the iss ueat or before maturity. Senator Frelinghuysen said the measure was calucualted as a "start toward liquidaing the nation's enormous war debt."

The treasury has completed arrangements for the exchange of temporary Liberty bonds, issued during the loan campaigns for bonds of permanent form with interest coupons to maturity attached, Secretary Houston announced today.

Exchange of temporary third loan bonds began on March 15, all banks being authorized to make the transfers for the treasury. Within the next month, officials expect to be ready to exchange permanent bonds for the temporary bonds of other Liberty loans except those which still have one interest coupon to come due. They need not be exchanged until after those coupons mature, the latest date being October 15. Secretary Houston urged again thatholders of first and second 4 per cent bonds make their exchanges early, since the conversion privilege on these bonds still is open, and it is desired that the conversion to the higher interest rate and the exchange into permanent bonds be accomplished simultaneously. All registered bonds are in permanent form, and Mr. Houston appealed to holders of temporary bonds wherever possible to exchange them for registered bonds, thus making a further transfer unnecessary and providing safety for the owner.

Your Floors
This book tells you how best to paint them

There is a way to paint floors, so they will stand wear and tear a lot longer than if you paint them some other way. You know some think that all there is to having a good painted floor is buying a good floor paint and then having the floor painted.

That's only a small part of it. It's the reason why so many good floor paints turn out so poor. Not that having a good painted floor is so difficult, but that many difficulties are easily overcome if you go about it right. This book tells how.

Among other things it tells of a floor paint you can use one day and walk on the next. The book is called the Happy Happening. Send 10 cents in stamps for it. Lowe Brothers' Paints are sold by the one best dealer in each town.

SMITH NOT YET READY TO ANNOUNCE PLANS

Georgia Senator Non-Committal on Presidential Primary in This State.

On his arrival in Atlanta yesterday, Senator Hoke Smith was non-commital as to whether he would enter the presidential race for the Georgia delegation at San Francisco. He declared that he must look over the political situation in Georgia before he could announce what he would do. The senator was busy with conferences throughout the afternoon, going to Senator Reed's room in the Kimball house for a conference with him and Senator Hardwick, and also seeing a number of his political supporters.

The senator made public the following statement:

"The failure of the senate to ratify the peace treaty is a national, if not an international calamity. It has left us technically in a state of war, hindering our commercial relations with Europe. It has prevented the contribution of our influence towards quieting conditions in Europe and towards establishing the business situation throughout that great continent. This is a serious loss to our country and a tragic loss to them. In my opinion, however, it would have been even more unfortunate to have accepted the treaty without the reservations necessary to protect American interests.

Why They Voted.

"Fifty-seven senators either voted or were paired in favor of ratification. Of the nineteen democrats who voted against the ratification, I do not believe more than four would have failed to support the treaty with reservations except for the fact that they had either promised the president eight or ten months ago to support the treaty without reservations, or they believed he would pigeonhole it if ratified with reservations.

"All the democrats, except one, from doubtful states supported the treaty with reservations and they all believed that the people of their states favored ratification with substantial reservations. The failure of at least fifteen more democrats to support ratification with reservations was due to the attitude of the president on the sugject.

"It is a national calamity to take this question into the political campaign. It will be utterly impossible, with the next congress, to ratify the treaty without reservations just as strong as those before the senate last week. We are not only kept in a state of technical war, but public attention is withdrawn from domestic problems of the greatest importance.

Presidential Primary.

"I am considering the request that my name go before the people of Georgia in the coming preferential primary.

"As the Hall county democrats have pointed out, an unfortunte situation has developed in the Georgia primary. It looks as if the views of the vast majority of the voters of this state will have no real opportunity for expression.

"Some plan should be adopted to give this view opportunity for expression in the coming Georgia primary.

"The party should plant itself upon the great achievements of the democratic congress and administration, but it would be political suicide to indorse the league of nations without reservations or to indorse every phase of President Wilson's administration.

"It should then nominate candidates who will not only serve ably when elected, but who can help win the fight."

SOUNDING OUT MACON PEOPLE.

Macon, Ga., March 22.—(Special.) Senator Hoke Smith was keeping the wire hot between Atlanta and Macon in telephonic communication with his friends here in an effort to find out what chance he has in the race for the Georgia vote in the presidential preference primary April 20, according to people closely in touch with the Smith supporters here.

According to information obtained here today, Senator Smith is anxious to enter the lists for Georgia's vote, and is now sounding out the situation to see if the time is ripe for making his announcement.

QUOTA FOR W. C. T. U. RAISED BY GEORGIA

Money Will Be Used in Financing Work for Next Five Years.

Georgia's quota of $12,000 in the $1,000,000 jubilee campaign of the National Woman's Christian Temperance union, was paid some time ago, and several hundred dollars besides, Georgia being the nineteenth state to pay in full.

However, contributions are still being received, and it is hoped will continue until all pledges are redeemed, although the 20th instant was scheduled as closing day.

While this amount is insignificant as compared with the other financial campaigns of the year, it is by far the largest sum ever collected at one time by the W. C. T. U. in nearly a half century's intensive activities.

Every person contributing $100, or for whom $100 was given, is to be honored by having his or her name placed in the jubilee book of remembrance kept for exhibition at Rest cottage, the home of Frances E. Willard, and bequested by her to Miss Anna A. Gordon, national W. C. T. U. president, at the national headquarters, Evanston, Ill. Hundreds of people from all over the world visit this historic place each year.

ORNSTEIN TO GIVE PRIVATE CONCERT HERE ON MARCH 30

Lee Ornstein, the young Russian pianist who is to appear at the Auditorium Tuesday evening, March 30, in an invitation concert under the auspices of Ludden & Bates Piano Co., is one of the most talked-of musicians of his time and has now formally taken his place together with Schonberg and Stravinsky at the extreme outposts of ultramodernism. His compositions and theories, whether or not they have achieved widespread acceptance, have stimulated violent debate both in Europe and America.

As a pianist, Mr. Ornstein has been known in this country for about five years. Only about three years ago he began composing. He is known as a brilliant interpreter of Chopin, Liszt, MacDowell, Greig, and indeed all the great classic composers, but through the new harmonies which reveal themselves to him, out of which have grown his famous "Wild Men's Dance," "Dwarf Suite," "Impressions of Notre Dame" and other so-called Cubist compositions, he has become the reigning musical sensation.

He is not bothered either by hisses or ridicules and he has lots of both. He is the interprid foe of conventionality.

If you have heard him play, yours is a pleasant memory. If you have not, yours is a pleasant future if you are one of the fortunate ones invited to Ludden & Bates' March 30th.

Sour Dispositions Can't Be Attributed To Weather Dispenser

If there's a human crab in Atlanta this morning, he can't blame his sour disposition on the weather, unless he has been speculating in fur coats and goloshes in the hope that Atlanta's spring would bring a covey of blizzards.

Sunday was one of those miraculous days that make spring a word with a smile in its monosyllable; Monday turned up smiling, little different from Sunday save that business hummed and traffic rolled.

C. F. von Herrmann, official weather forecaster, says that the temperature should begin Tuesday at about 55 degrees, then devote Tuesday and Wednesday, at least, to the task of convincing skeptical people that spring is really, actually, undoubtedly here.

In fact, said Mr. von Herrmann, the mercury has announced its intentions to rise to about 70 degrees on Wednesday. Through all the rise in temperature, it is said, the weather will continue fair.

BANK OF COCHRAN OFFERS REWARD FOR MISSING MAN

Cochran, Ga., March 22.—(Special)—The Citizens' bank of this place has offered a reward of $1,000 for the arrest of its alleged absconding cashier, U. H. Patrick, who is described as a man of very pleasant address, about 37 years of age, and a neat dresser. His hair is black, eyes hazle, statue erect, and weight about 170 pounds.

It is charged that Patterson left with cash and liberty bonds amounting ot $30,000, which had been entrusted to him. The shortage has been practically ascertained, the amount thereof made good and the bank is open for business. There have been no withdrawals of deposits and none are looked for.

The bank has placed its legal affairs in the hands of H. F. Lawson, an attorney of Hawkinsville. Warrants are out for Patrick's arrest. C. J. Anderson, of Atlanta, is making an audit of the bank.

Carlisle Honored.

Macon, Ga., March 22.—(Special.) As a token of esteem in which he was held by his former associates, J. G. Carlisle, who recently resigned as assistant traffic manager of the Central of Georgia railway after thirty years of service, has been presented with a handsome silver set and service. Eighty-five of Mr. Carlisle's former associates joined in the presentation. Mr. Carlisle left the service of the Central some time ago to take an executive position with the Bibb Manufacturing company in Macon.

REPUBLICAN NOMINEE IS UNDECIDED, TAFT

Ex-President Arrives in Augusta for Ten-Day Visit at Resort.

Augusta, Ga., March 22.—(Special.)—Hon. William H. Taft, the only living ex-president of the United States and America's most distinguished citizen, arrived in Augusta yesterday for a ten-day stay at the Bon Air hotel. Mr. Taft is the picture of health, and as jolly and big-hearted as ever. He expressed pleasure at being again in Augusta, which he has come to regard as his winter home, and paid a pretty compliment to the city for its climate and beauty.

Asked about the political situation, Mr. Taft said that he was uncertain which republican would oppose the democratic nominee.

"Who will be the republican nominee is a matter of conjecture," he said. "President Wilson made a great mistake when he did not have the treaty, with its reservations passed, as he no doubt could have done. I think the attitude towards the treaty in the senate is a fair representation of the sentiment throughout the country."

Asked about the prohibition question, Mr. Taft would express no opinion on the subject, either for or against.

Those Pretty Teeth

Should Last a Lifetime—Save Them

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

Dental authorities now agree that the thing which ruins pretty teeth is film.

It is that viscous film, ever-present, ever-forming. You can feel it with your tongue. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

The tooth brush does not end it. The ordinary dentifrice does not dissolve it. So month after month it clings, and may do a ceaseless damage.

That is why brushed teeth discolor and decay. Tooth troubles are constantly increasing. People think they clean the teeth, but they leave this film. And teeth are ruined by it.

How Film Destroys

Film is what discolors — not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to film.

These facts have long been known to dentists. Dental science long has sought a help. But the periodic dental cleaning seemed the only way to fight film and tartar.

Now science has found an efficient film combatant — one for daily use. Able authorities have proved it by convincing tests. Leading dentists everywhere are urging its adoption.

Now that method is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. A 10-Day Tube is being sent to everyone who asks. Thus the facts have spread, until millions of teeth are now protected by it.

Now Pepsin is Applied

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to day by day combat it.

The way seems simple, but it long seemed barred. Pepsin must be activated, and the usual method is an acid harmful to the teeth.

But science has discovered a harmless activating method. Now pepsin, in this new form, can be constantly applied. And, combined with other ingredients in Pepsodent, it has brought a new teeth-cleaning era.

Watch It for Ten Days

The results of Pepsodent are quick and evident. One cannot dispute them. And the book we send tells the reason for them.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how the teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

Compare this new way with the old way by results. Then decide for yourself the best way to keep teeth whiter, safer and more sound. This ten-day test will point the way to life-long benefits.

Millions of Teeth Now Glisten

You see them everywhere — teeth which everybody envies.

Ask the reason for them and the owners will say Pepsodent. The teeth are kept free from film.

See the results on your own teeth. Do what millions have done — send for this 10-Day Tube.

Look at your teeth now, then look in ten days. Let your mirror tell the story.

THE SWING TO PALMER.

No three newspapers in Georgia have been quoted more conspicuously than The Savannah Press, The Albany Herald, and The Rome Tribune-Herald in advocacy of the Hoover movement and in criticism of the state committee for confining the democratic presidential ballot to democratic candidates.

In common with other former Hoover newspapers over the state, they are now outspoken in their advocacy of Palmer for president.

All of them now, realizing that the contest in Georgia is between those who are ready to stand back of a democratic administration and those who would repudiate the record of the party, and also being convinced that the regulation of the state committee is exactly the same ruling that has heretofore applied, now take the position that the action of the committee is conclusive, and that further agitation against it is prompted, as The Albany Herald says, by "selfish considerations."

The Herald says that Hoover eliminated himself from the situation, and that "the thing for all of us who are loyal democrats to do is to give our support to Mitchell Palmer," or to some other such administration democrat, "though not necessarily blindly subscribing to everything that the president has done."

The editor of The Savannah Press, Pleasant A. Stovall, ex-minister to Switzerland, condemns further criticism of the subcommittee, whose action he says is regular and final, and though The Press was one of the first papers to criticise the action of the subcommittee, it now calls upon those who are "going to maintain the democratic party" . . . "not to be too free to criticise democratic authority."

The Press has warmly espoused the cause of Mitchell Palmer, and its editor is now the head of the Palmer state campaign democratic organization.

And so it goes every day.

Of the many former Hoover newspapers in the state not more than a handful are now for Hoover. And 90 per cent of the newspapers formerly quoted for Hoover, and as critics of the state committee, are now openly and actively for Palmer.

The state sees the "line-up," just as we knew it would.

"BIG BILL'S" IDEAL.

W. D. ("Big Bill") Haywood, I. W. W. chieftain, convicted seditionist and conspirator against the laws of his country, is quoted as having said in a harangue before a motley crowd of agitators, bolsheviki, anarchists, etc., in New York Sunday night, that the department of justice had subjected "communists, socialists, anarchists and Russian workers" in the United States to gross "indignities."

These "indignities" grate upon "Big Bill's" finer sensibilities, and he resents them. His ideal seems to be a government that would be mild-mannered and ladylike in its attitude toward the unwashed and unshorn government haters.

"Many of us," he cried, "are looking forward to the time when America will be as good as Russia is today!"

Why should Haywood and his "many of us" "look forward"—farther than the next sailing date?"

They should get out of America and go to Russia!

And if they won't go voluntarily they should be sent.

Haywood, out of the penitentiary pending an appeal of one case, in which he was sentenced to a long term of imprisonment, and under half a dozen or so indictments for other crimes, is, it is said, under the heaviest aggregate bond that was ever upon the head of a man in the history of this country.

His bondsmen should, of course, be protected; but undoubtedly that could be arranged if he and his red associates, who love Russia so much better than they love the United States of America, would voluntarily set sail for what is to their way of thinking "the brightest and whitest spot in the world."

Should they refuse to do that voluntarily, this country should force them out, just as it forced Goldman, Berkman, and their 400-odd fellow anarchists to shake the free soil of America from their feet!

A CLEAN-CUT ISSUE.

In the presidential primary campaign in Georgia the issue is clearly drawn between the forces loyal to the democratic administration and party tradition on the one hand, and the recalcitrants and would-be party-wreckers on the other hand.

The Douglas (Ga.) Enterprise states the situation exactly as it is in the following editorial expression—

"It will be a straight, clean-cut issue, between the administration and the anti-administration, in the democratic party. That is for the nomination. It behooves us, as a party, to stand by our party and its administration, and help along the standard-bearer of the man proposed to represent the administration, especially when he is a man of the Palmer type, a man of courage and ability, a man who has never lost the common touch, a man who does things, has done things, and above all, a man who has always been a consistent party man. That man is Mitchell Palmer and he is the man for Georgians to get behind in the approaching primary on April 20."

That is a correct analysis of the situation.

Here in Georgia, as in some other states, the contest for the presidential nomination on the democratic ticket has narrowed down to two specific elements: One standing back of the achievements of the democratic administration during the last seven years, and especially during the war; the other the element that has had its Joab's blade ready at all times and under all conditions to stab the administration, even during the supreme crisis of the war, that never lost an opportunity to throw obstacles in the way of the administration, and that could always be counted on to line up with the malcontents, obstructionists and trouble-makers.

On the side of the first is Mitchell Palmer, brave, fearless and outspoken, who takes the position that while he may have differed—and may yet differ—with the president upon certain details concerning the peace treaty and administrative policy, and favored ratification of the treaty with or without reservations, the administration has made a record of which any American citizen, and especially any democrat, might well feel proud; and, generally speaking, he stands by the administration and its record, and is not afraid to stand up in public and say so. He has never consorted with the enemy.

On the other side, the consensus of opinion is that Senator Reed, of Missouri, will attempt in Georgia what he dares not attempt to do in his home state—make an appeal for support predicated upon an issue of hostility and opposition to the democratic administration!

Whether or not Reed will qualify for participation in the forthcoming preferential primary election in Georgia remains to be seen.

But there is this of which the state may rest assured: If Reed is pulled out of the contest, somebody else will be put in his place; and if so, the substitute is certain to be a man of the Jim Reed type, and of the Jim Reed idea of loyalty!

A Berlin paper says "the Germans are holding their own;" but judging by the way they're cutting up over there, they'll soon have mighty little to hold.

Of a poem entitled "The Moon's Smile," Colonel George Bailey says: "The moon's smile is the 'moonshine.' It didn't occur to him to 'keep it dark.'"

Here's the practical view a Missouri editor has of the spiritualistic developments:

"We'd like to be a medium and with the spirits stand, bells ringing in our belfry and a ouija in our hand. We'd talk to J. Cassius Caesar, Napoleon and Grimm; to every blooming geezer that drew a sword or sang a hymn. We'd have them write our dope for us, sling copy by the ream, and then there'd be some hope for us when the medium had a dream. For all our subscribers would pay up, dough would come rolling in, and we could have a brindle pup and a Lizzie made of tin."

A TIP TO EMPLOYERS.

A large number of businesses fail, not because of the lack of brains or capital of the employer, but because he puts too high a value upon his capital and too low a value upon his employees.

It's the employees that make every business successful.

Of course they must have guidance and leadership, but not foolish dominance. From the office boy up, every employee is a possible employer.

Leave your employees alone as much as possible. Trust them. Give them reigns. If they make blunders, do not discharge them, but teach them. Every time a blunder is made by anyone, it acts as a lesson in betterment.

Enlist the intelligence of those whom you employ in the service of your business. It means a great deal to them, because it is as much proportionately to them as to you.

Teach every one of your helpers to co-operate. It is the law of business success. Every business is an individual machine and each worker a vital and necessary part. And no machine should ever be driven—it should be handled, and that with care and consideration.

Listen to the suggestions of those who work in your organization. Adapt them—and remember to give full credit.

The City Traffic Laws Are Being Absolutely Ignored

Editor Constitution: In the fight for better traffic laws in this city, I believe it would be better for an enforcement of those we have.

This morning in driving in West Peachtree street and observing the "safety first" principle of driving slowly on the wet pavements, and waiting behind the street cars while they loaded the passengers, three automobiles deliberately drove around to the left of the waiting street car at Pine street.

These cars bore the license plates numbered 24-697, 56-731 and 59-934. This was not only a violation of the laws, but was criminally careless. These drivers certainly knew better; if they did not, they should not be allowed to drive a car. They may have saved possibly a minute or two in doing this, but had they met a car driving out the street the results may have been disastrous.

Former Hoover Dailies Now for Palmer

(From the Albany Herald.)

Georgia democrats should see to it that neither Herbert Hoover nor A. Mitchell Palmer, neither pro-administration nor anti-administration political factions, nor any man or set of men influenced by bad judgment or lead by selfish considerations becomes a rock to split the party in the state.

The Herald's contention that the name of Herbert Hoover should be placed on democratic ballots in Georgia was inspired more by a principle than as the result of any previously determined prefernce for Hoover the man. Our contention was, and still is, that the people have the right to vote for whomsoever they please in a presidential preferential primary, and when the sub-committee of the State Democratic Executive Committee ruled to the contrary we regarded the action as arbitrary and dictatorial.

But matters have taken a course in the state which must be dealt with in practical ways. As matters now stand, it would be mere stubborn folly to attempt to keep Mr. Hoover in the race in this state. As a matter of fact, he has never been in it. He has flatly refused to permit the use of his name in the Georgia primary. He insists that he is not a candidate for the nomination, and his attitude toward both the leading parties has been the same. He says simply that he refuses to consent to the use of his name in preferential primaries. Under these circumstances, his thousands of admirers in the state (and The Herald is among them) might as well take his "no" for an answer and eliminate him from further consideration as the prospective choice of Georgia democrats.

The thing for all of us who are loyal democrats and have always stood for party regularity to do is to give our support to Palmer or some other avowed and acknowledged democrat who is in sympathy with the Wilson administration, though not necessarily blindly subscribing to everything the President has done or approving all he has proposed.

Present indications are that there will be an anti-administration, anti-league of nations candidate in Georgia, and it is to be hoped that those who believe the peace treaty should have been ratified long ago will line up for the most acceptable and available straightout democrat who can go before the people as an administration candidate.

A dispatch published yesterday contained the information that the name of Senator Hoke Smith had been certified by the required number of democrats in Hall county, and would be placed on the ballots in Georgia as a candidate for the presidential nomination. We are not yet quite sure just what this maneuver means, but if it shall develop that Senator Smith has been chosen by the anti-administration, anti-league of nations forces in the state as their standard bearer in the approaching campaign, we are against him.

The situation will bear close watching. This whole matter is the buisness of the rank and file of the Democratic party in Georgia and they should not permit the politicians to throw sand in their eyes.

THE STALKING HORSE.
(From the Macon News.)

There were interesting rumors around Atlanta, according to reports, that some prominent Georgia democrat might run as a "proxy" for Mr. Hoover. That is to say, he would seek to get the Georgia vote and then when he got to the San Francisco convention would throw his strength to Mr. Hoover. We are not in the secret councils on this matter, but we refuse to believe that the Hoover strength in Georgia is strong enough to make anybody think it worth while to run as a stalking-horse for him, or for others to give much support to such a proxy.

NO LONGER FOR HOOVER.
(From The Lavonia Times.)

With Hoover ruled out of the Georgia presidential primary it now seems that the lineup will be Palmer vs. Reed. Palmer is a true Wisconsin democrat and has announced on that platform. Reed is an anti-administration candidate and is reported to have the active support of ex-Senator Hardwick.

We are not so all-fired anxious to vote for Hoover in the presidential primary. In fact, we feel that we will vote for Palmer.

(From The Savannah Press.)

The state democratic executive committee has, by a majority vote of all its members, decided that in order to secure a place on the ballot in the presidential primary in Georgia, a man must qualify as a democrat. The refusal of the Hon. Herbert C. Hoover to declare himself and his persistent refusal to allow his ame to go before the people of Georgia in the democratic primary, seems to settle this matter once for all.

As is well known, The Savannah Press was perfectly willing to allow the name of Mr. Hoover to be printed on the ballot if he asked for this privilege, and if he had shown the slightest interest in putting his name before the party in Georgia.

Democratic primaries are matters of consent. Some one must arrange for them and some set of rules must govern them. The authorities who are making arrangements for holding the April primary in Georgia and who are formulating the rules for the primary have, through their subcommittee and their full committee, laid down the regulations. If there is not some authority and some organization, the primary would be a loose and disjointed affair, without order or method, and without force or value.

The fact that the state committee did not think as The Press thought in arranging this primary was no reason why The Press should bolt the primary and set up a primary for itself. We are more devoted to the organization of the democratic party than we are to any single man. We heard a journalist in Atlanta say the other day, in speaking to a Palmer man, that he would vote for Hoover no matter with party nominates him. Following out this line of reasoning, he will vote for Hoover whether he is nominated or not. Mr. Hoover has declared his belief that there should be but two parties. Now, he certainly has not expressed his preference for the democratic party. We must believe that he prefers to qualify in republican ranks. He has not said so, but this is a natural inference from his own words and attitude. The Savannah Press would not support Mr. Hoover or any other man if he was not nominated as a democrat. That is the kind of a democrat we are, and we expect to remain so as long as party lines are as at present drawn.

If we are going to maintain the democratic party, go on regulating its nomination by primary elections, we should not be too free to criticise democratic authority. In Chatham county several years ago the county executive committee made a ruling which The Press criticised and which was not to our liking. But, as we said then and repeat now, rules must be made by some one and regulations should be followed. Some authorities must be obeyed. If every man who disagrees with the party manager is going to withhold his allegiance and refuse to play, the primary will become a mere bauble, and the party will drift into chaos. The Press dissented from the first decision of the subcommittee of the state central committee. Now that this decision has been confirmed by the full committee, we must accept its authority and pronounce the issue closed.

THE "OUTS" AGAINST THE "INS."
(From The Gainesville Herald.)

Palmer is the only really big man the present democratic administration has developed. Our Hoover friends admit his democracy, his patriotism, his Americanism, his courage, his capacity; in short, his eminent fitness, measured by every standard, for the office of president—but they have a little state fight on just now, which, reduced to its last analysis, is: The "outs" against the "ins." Yet lest this statement about the "Tempest in the Tea Pot" be challenged, we confess in advance that there are a few among the "outs" who want Mr. Hoover put on the ticket as an independent, and who want to vote for him as an independent, or because of his independence, or because they think it expedient to nominate an independent.

"PALMER THE MAN."
(From Rome Tribune-Herald.)

The solution of the presidential situation in Georgia, as we see it, is A. Mitchell Palmer. This is the outcome of several weeks' discussion among the people and the newspapers, and this is the final conclusion of The Tribune-Herald.

We have heretofore favored the nomination of Herbert Hoover, for president by the democrats. We came to this conclusion after due consideration, because we thought that Mr. Hoover was the most available candidate. His widespread popularity, demonstrated ability and general qualifications brought about that decision.

The Tribune-Herald has believed and still believes that the name of Mr. Hoover should go on the ballot in the Georgia preferential primary. It has stated its reasons for urging this step at length in the past and does not deem it necessary to repeat them at the present time. The democratic executive committee of the state has finally ruled that Mr. Hoover's name shall not be placed on the ballot. We think the committee is wrong in this attitude, but it is the constituted authority of the party in Georgia, and we yield to its decision.

This newspaper does not indorse, and will not be a party to a revolt from the party standard, the bolting of the primary outright, or the subterfuge of substituting some man as a "dummy" to appear on the ballot and possibly deliver the Georgia delegation to Mr. Hoover, at San Francisco, or to ballot for an uninstructed delegation.

The preferential primary was meant for a direct expression of the people's will and for the instruction of delegates. So let us be open and above board about this matter, and make the best choice from the material submitted for our suffrage.

Apparently the fight in Georgia has by elimination been narrowed down to Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer and some as yet undecided representative of the other element in the democratic party, probably Senator Reed.

Mr. Palmer is a man of great ability, rare resourcefulness and dauntless courage. He is one of the biggest men mentally and politically among the democrats of the nation today. He has an unbroken record of political success. His war record is perfect, his democracy is beyond question, his patriotism has stood the fiery test—on one occasion he almost gave his life, because of his courageous activities in suppressing Russian radicals.

It is being urged by certain people and newspapers that A. Mitchell Palmer, is not a good presidential candidate because he has alienated the German and pro-German vote, but if he keeps his deportation ships moving as regularly from now until election day as he has for the past few months, there will not be much of this vote left to worry over.

Mr. Palmer will be the candidate of loyal, patriotic, league of nations democrats as against the candidate of the copperheads, pro-Germans, Watsonites, anti-league of nations democrats, and all that combination of oppositionists, down and outs, and anti-everything, that have combined together for the defeat and disintegration of the regular democracy in Georgia.

There will be a strong candidate put forth by that faction within a few days and it is the duty of Georgia democrats to rally around Mr. Palmer and fight for the preservation of the party, the upholding of our most cherished institutions and the maintenance of that high standard of political honor and social integrity that has been the soul and salvation of the people of the state.

The Tribune-Herald is glad to join in this fight for democratic political supremacy in Georgia. It is glad to fight beneath the standard of so able and courageous a leader as A. Mitchell Palmer. This is no time for compromise; it is no time to negotiate with the enemy—for we are right in the midst of a fight, contending for the life of the democratic party in Georgia, the sustaining of its traditions and upholding of its principles.

We believe in independence of thought and action on the part of every individual to a certain extent, but when the interest of the state as a whole is at stake, we must stand together for common interests and common ideals. We have concluded that the only way to successfully accomplish this result is to stand together beneath the banner of A. Mitchell Palmer and fight it to a finish.

"HOKE A HOOVER PROXY-JOKE."
(From The Macon Telegraph.)

When this Hoover person was first proposed for president of the United States, Senator Smith was quoted in an interview in a New York newspaper as having said of the food administrator that mere mention of him made the senior senator heave and suffer with nausea. Senator Smith is yet to be heard from on this latest demonstration in his "favor," embarrassing though it is, but it's a ten-to-one bet that he doesn't get caught in the Hoover steel-trap.

As a "proxy" in the Hoover agitation, Senator Smith would be a poor second, even among the Hooverites, in the face of organic law, which has been flashed on the originators and cultivators of the little flurry, but it would at that be going some way in the best interest of Georgia to let the scheme go on through, and watch Senator Smith "aspire" to the presidency. It would be about the shortest road to certain retirement in the end, and would undoubtedly insure the presentation of a piece of real and dependable timber for the place he is now holding in the senate.

There are reasons for its impossibility of acquiesence on Senator Smith's part, other than the selfish characteristics of the senator in always using others for his own purposes and serving others only when it best serves himself. He isn't going to break his pact with Thomas W. Hardwick and run the risk of consequences. He hasn't the political nerve or backbone to square his own name in a contest against James A. Reed, under the circumstances which put Reed's name on the Georgia ticket, even if he believed that would further gratify his desire to slap the democratic administration a blow, and bench A. Mitchell Palmer.

The Telegraph expressed its conclusion several days ago that the presidential race in Georgia was drawn at that time; that in the contest there would be two principal contenders only, one in support of the national democratic party and the administration which it has stood for, the other a man who would represent the "agin' the government" class. Both those men are entered, and with their entry the contest is defined.

All the Gainesville frame-up will amount to is going to be smoking the senator a little, and adding somewhat to his already embarrassing position.

Bits of New York Life

BY O. O. M'INTYRE

New York, March 22.—The old Haymarket dance hall at Sixth avenue and Thirtieth street, is to be torn down. It is musty with age and a mere shambles. A colorful spot in New York's underworld night life was the Haymarket in the hey-day of its pride and splendor. It was a "joint," but the best people in town went on slumming excursions there to see the seamy side of life.

At 3 o'clock in the morning the dance hall was always packed, and "Big Bill," the bouncer with cauliflower ears, stood at the brass railed entrance ready for some one to start something. The balcony booths were filled with folk from out of town. Whisky was a quarter and beer ten cents. (Out with the handkerchiefs, boys.)

Maud and Pearl and Ruth and Ruby—the girl who drank carbolic acid in the middle of the dance floor one Saturday night and died in the arms of her lover, the trap-drummer—were there. Also "Big May," "Chicago Sadie," and "Gold Tooth Lena." The girls would stand at the side door upstairs at midnight waiting for patrons to drop quarters in their stockings.

Outside stood Amato, the old pencil man, who was being kidded one night by a half-intoxicated girl whom he recognized as his daughter. And early the next morning he jumped off a pier, leaving a pathetic note. One or two of the old girls of the Haymarket are still to be seen around Broadway, faded mementos of the past.

The battered old hackmen who hung out in front are gone, where coupes are unknown. They used to accost emerging stragglers about dawn with an offer to take them to see the "twelve wonderful Japanese diving girls.

The Haymarket was disturbed by very few raids. Girls sat at spacious tables inviting strangers to buy them food and drink. Now and then they administered knock-out drops and a gay young blood from Trenton would be found sleeping it off in an alley nearby.

New York will never see the like of the Haymarket again. The metropolis has improved. It would not stand for such a place now. So the dissolving woodwork and stone may appear to weep as it is rent by the impious hands of a generation that knew not Jacob.

A gentleman with a high-sounding French name has opened up the most exclusive jewelry store in town on Fifth avenue. Not a single article of jewelry is on display. And nothing is sold for less than $10,000. The clerks look more like members of parliament in their frock coats and white silk ties. They wear silk hats to and from work. A lady went into the store recently to get an emerald ring. They showed her one for $18,000. "O," she said, "I only want to spend $1,000." There was an awkward pause and the clerk finally said: "Well, madame, we do not sell a ring for that price. You might get it further down the avenue at Blank's"—and he named one of the oldest and best jewelry establishments in New York, in the patronizing manner that he might use to designate a five and ten-cent store.

There were some amusing slants to the chase for the elusive "Nickey" Arnstein. When he was near the police toils he was haled as the "Master Mind" of the huge Wall street bond thefts, but when the police were foiled at every turn, they announced he was only a tool and his arrest was relatively unimportant. Three detectives who went out to search for Arnstein with his lawyer were missing for 10 days, and the newspaper reporters referred to them as the "lost battalion." In the meantime Fannie Brice, the Midnight Frolic star, is capitalizing the publicity she has secured as Arnstein's wife, and it is said that her salary has been doubled and the crowds were never so big as they are now at the roof resort. In typical New York fashion she is hailed as a heroine.

Kapp May Prove Second Korniloff And Pave Way for Bolshevist Rule

BY FRANK H. SIMONDS

It is natural and inevitable that the first thought about the German revolution was the possibility which it opened for the return of those leaders and of that spirit which produced the world war. The uprising necessarily pointed to a renaissance of Prussinalism. But there is a second danger, hardly less considerable—it is the obvious possibility that following the failure of the reaction, the pendulum may swing backward toward real revolution and bolshevism.

There are not a few Americans familiar with foreign affairs who see today in the German situation a parallel to that Russian condition in 1917. May not Kapp prove after all to be a second Korniloff? Is it not conceivable that Ebert will in the end fall as did Kerensky, not to the reaction, but to the red revolution? These are the questions which are being raised today in many quarters.

The government of Ebert has sunk quite as low in the estimation of the German people as did the government of Kerensky three years ago. It has failed to provide the people of Germany with the peace they demanded and with the elimination of the burdens and the sufferings of war. It has been as unsuccessful in its efforts to obtain any alteration in the terms of the treaty of Versailles, as Kerensky was in striving to obtain a negotiated peace with Germany.

Reds May Win Control.

Kerensky succeeded in defeating Korniloff, but in order to win this victory he was obliged to make terms with Lenine and Trotsky and these bolshevists only dealt with Kerensky because they perceived that when they had helped Kerensky to destroy Korniloff they could in turn destroy him and thus dispose of all moderate and conservative parties.

As a consequence what the world has to fear in Germany today is not merely a victory of reaction. But not less terrible is the prospect that reaction having failed, instead of the restoration of the Ebert government we shall see something corresponding to the upheaval which wrecked the hope of orderly reform in the Russian empire.

Either way the danger for the western nations is grave in the extreme, and bolshevism in Germany, joining hands with anarchy and bolshevism in Russia will find little difficulty in sweeping away all the flimsy structures in that middle Europe of today, where millions of men and women are on the verge of starvation, where hope has gone out, where all familiar processes of life and all the machinery of orderly governments have been abolished.

It needs but very little now to throw Germany into the hands of the bolshevists. Such is the opinion of every well-informed person who has recently been in touch with the German situation. The elements of law and order are sufficiently weak now without having to undergo the strain of a division in their own ranks between those who would preserve the existing regime and those who would prefer to restore the leaders and the methods of 1914. In invoking the general strike Ebert took a step almost as desperate as that of Kerensky when he turned to Lenine to obtain the support necessary to meet the incoming Korniloff forces. Thereafter the men who were seeking to transfer Russia into a progressive democracy, preserving its patriotism, but abolishing its tyrants, lost control completely. There was nothing left to meet the next push which came from the bloshevists.

May Repeat Blunder.

It is not a simple thing—this new German problem. The defeat of the counter revolution and the restoration of the Ebert government, desirable as it seems to the western world, may not prove a solution but a mere prelude to the final collapse of Germany, a descent into the abyss of chaos totally reminiscent of that which for three years has been Russia's plight.

In 1917 the western nations blundered into the support of Korniloff and these destroyed the moderate party in Russia. Today there seems to be grave danger lest a similar mistake may be made, particularly in British quarters. A transitory movment toward conservatism, mistaken and encouraged, as the Korniloff uprising was encouraged, might easily result in a complete break between the allies and all moderate elements in Germany in the sacrifice of the only element which carries any promise of orderly democracy.

The more clearly German conditions are set forth the plainer the fact that we are in the midst of a reaction itself destructive of our own victory and of the permanence of our peace settlement, while as an alternative of this reaction we face unmistakable danger of triumph of bolshevism in Germany, and in its turn the arrival of anarchy and of chaos at the Rhine, which more and more tends to become the frontier of western civilization, and if anarchy thus expanded does not pass that line the reason will be because of those armies which "militaristic" France is still able to fling in the pathway of a danger equally menacing to France, to Britain and to the United States.

Whether Germany goes "red" or "white," the danger to the world is equally great and today there is sound reason for fearing that the failure of the present counter revolution may prove the victory of bolshevism.

Prominent Greenville Attorney Tells Why He Is for Palmer

Editor Constitution: I have noted with interest the various comments of the daily papers, and letters from prominent democrats of this state, regarding the action of the state democratic executive committee, particularly the action of the subcommittee, with reference to placing Mr. Hoover's name on the democratic ticket as a candidate for the democratic nomination for president of the United States.

Before the announcement of Mr. Palmer as a candidate for the democratic nomination for president, I was inclined to support Mr. Hoover, yet I was not satisfied to see my party indorse a man who admittedly was not an organized democrat. I felt then, and now feel, that if the democratic party is to leave the rank and file of its party to secure and indorse a candidate from the opposition, I personally should prefer the Hon. William H. Taft, whose record as president proved that he was fair, and that he was president of all sections.

At first thought, I did not agree with the action of the subcommittee in refusing to allow the name of Mr. Hoover on the democratic ticket, and I think yet that the full executive committee should have been called together to pass upon so vital an issue to the party voters. I, as an individual democrat, would now be glad to see the whole committee called together, and if there is any way for them to say that he is "democratic enough" to place his name on the ticket, I would be glad for them to do eso, and satisfy some of our good democrats who can't find a satisfactory candidate from our own party.

On the other hand, on second thought as to the action of the subcommittee, we must realize that they were acting as representatives of the democratic party, a democratic organization, and how could they, under precedents which have been cited by prominent democrats, and without instructions from a convention of democrats, place the name of others than democrats on a democratic ticket? It has always been understood, and in fact a fixed principle, that all participants in our primaries should support the successful candidate. Shall we as voters bind ourselves, when the person voted for is not bound?

I suggest with frankness that Mr. Hoover, so far as I know, has been entirely consistent as to any claims on party alignments—in fact, he leaves his record and claims without a statement or promise on his part. He has not as yet expressed himself on a great many important issues. He is not a democrat, doesn't pretend to be, and like Mr. Taft, favors adoption of the peace pact, and feeding the east.

If I should believe, as some good citizens express themselves, that the "solid south" is to our detriment, I would not hesitate to withdraw or refrain from voting in democratic primaries. You can't consistently ask an old-line democrat to place a republican's name on his ballot. The origin of the republican party of the east in its formation, was to oppose the development and growing interest of the old south—and but for the valiant stand of the "solid south," aided by democratic sympathizers of other sections (God bless them) the republican party would have long ago passed through congress many obnoxious and deleterious statutes to southern interest, and much to our chagrin and permanent injury. Nothing but our democratic forces in congress have cared for us in such crises.

Can we afford to indorse a man for president who can't add strength to our congressional races in closely contested districts? If Mr. Hoover is to be the candidate of both parties, how could he help our candidates for congress, those races being usually closely aligned? The republican party will never indorse Mr. Hoover unless he measures up to their standard of principles. When we break down our party lines, and by so doing disrupt the "solid south" which has been, and is now, our bulwark of protection, we are tramping upon dangerous ground. Let us all as democrats stand for a strong democratic candidate for president.

A president in name will not help us; we want a true and tried democrat, one who will hold our own forces, and let the world know where we stand and what we stand for. Mr. Palmer is the only nation-wide candidate so far, in my opinion, who measures up to democratic ideals.

HEALTH TALKS

THE MORON WOMAN.—III.

A young man with great prospects met a social butterfly, a doll-faced girl, frivolous, attractive in a sensual way, but nevertheless a moron—her mind was that of a child of 10. He admired her, became infatuated, and made her his wife.

The young man made rapid strides in his career. He won a fine reputation in his particular calling, stepped higher and higher up in the world—but all the time there was a millstone round his neck. The butterfly wife never developed mentally. Her reading, pastimes, occupations were all frivolous, shallow.

Children came. The first boy worried along until the second terms in high school, with considerable outside tutoring, which normal lads do not require. Then one day he "eloped" with a girl of the street—his equal.

The next boy did a trifle better in school, but cigarettes got him by the time he was 17, and not long afterward he learned to drink. Of course, venereal disease soon completed the triology, and the young man went to the devil.

The third child was a girl who is a little less competent mentally than her mother. She has figured in some sorry escapades with the "society people" she cultivates.

Young man, keep clear of the moron woman.

It is easy to detect her. She may be physically attractive, healthy looking. In a way pretty with her doll-face and her air of girlish innocence. But it is from the eyebrows up that she is defective. Her mind is more childish than her physical appearance. She is incapable of serious thinking. She can't discuss political or world events. She hasn't the gray matter. In school she is a failure—she seldom goes all the way through. Her reading, if she does any, is trashy. Her music, if she can play or sing at all, is generally as shallow as her converation.

Good looks should by all means be desired by a man in the mother of his children. Good looks are best obtained through hygiene and good health. But the woman who is to mother a man's children ought to have something besides good looks.

Young man, beware the moron woman.

CADILLAC TO HAVE MODERN BUILDING

Property at 152-156 West Peachtree Bought for $55,000 and Structure for Auto Company Will Cost $150,000.

The Atlanta Cadillac company has purchased through the A. S. Adams-Cates company the property at 152-156 West Peachtree street, and plans are being drawn for the erection on it of one of the most modern automobile establishments in the south.

The price paid for the property was $55,000, the lot fronting 92 feet on West Peachtree by 150 feet deep. The building, which is to be three stories and basement, will cost about $150,000. The company is now located at 183 Peachtree street.

Information given out by B. W. Holt and W. F. Rawlings, of the Atlanta Cadillac company, indicates that the new building that is being planned for the location just purchased by them, will be a structure suited in every way to its use. Experts in automobile construction, who have gathered experience from many buildings that have been erected for the trade, will lend their aid to the owners of the company and to the architects, thereby insuring the use of the best ideas developed through experience and observation.

The structure will stand near the center of the new automobile district, within a few feet of the corner of West Peachtree and Pine streets and close to the Baltimore block. Near it are the new buildings being erected for the Pierce-Arrow, Packard, Reo, Dodge, Chandler and other prominent automobile concerns.

With reinforced concrete construction throughout, the building will be absolutely fireproof, and it will be so situated that there will be three alley entrances, one from Pine street, one from Baltimore block and another from Spring street. The peculiar topography of the location will also develop another unique feature that will be of particular value to this building, in that access to two floors of the building can be reached without the use of either elevators of ramps. This advantage is afforded by the fact that entrance from one alley can be gained at the height of the basement, while the other alleys are on the level of the first floor.

Mr. Holt said that the plans for the new building are being made by the architect and that as soon as some legal formalities can be completed construction work on the building will begin.

PAR CLEARANCE RULE HEARING OPENS TODAY

Many Out-of-Town Bankers Will Be Represented in Federal Court.

Hearing in the federal court at Atlanta of the petition of a group of bankers against the universal par clearance ruling of the Sixth Federal Reserve bank, will begin this morning at 10 o'clock before Judge Beverly D. Evans, of Savannah. Judge Evans has been assigned to this case following the ineligibility of Judge Sibley, on the ground that he is a stockholder in some of the petitioning banks.

This case is looked upon as a test case in the controversy on the question of par clearance, which, since its inauguration by the Country Bankers' Association of Georgia, has spread all over the entire country and has been indorsed by associations of state bankers in many states, as well as by individual bankers from every section.

There are two motions before the court to be heard tomorrow. The first, filed by the country bankers through their counsel, Alex W. Smith, of Atlanta, and Orville A. Park, of Macon, questions the jurisdiction of the federal courts in the matter. The country bankers claim that the state courts properly have jurisdiction in this matter, despite the ruling of Judge Ellis, of the Fulton superior court, in which he sent the matter to the United States courts. At the same time, Judge Ellis granted a temporary injunction, restraining the reserve bank from all efforts to enforce par clearance on the petitioning banks, pending the outcome of the case.

The federal reserve has filed a missed. Whether or not both motions missed whether or not both motions will be heard today, of course depends upon the decision of Judge Evans on the question of jurisdiction.

Many out-of-town bankers will be represented at the hearing, counsel for various state bankers' associations from different parts of the country being here to watch the progress of the case. It has attracted widespread attention in banking circles all over the country, state bankers generally claiming that the reserve bank is exceeding its power and inflicting an unfair hardship on the business men of the smaller towns and country districts, when it attempts through the elimination of 'exchange" to place the burden of cost of transmission of funds from one city to another to protect checks, on the drawer of the check rather than upon the drawee.

Disturbed Father Seeks Aid to Locate His 16-Year-Old Boy

Floyd Trammell, you'd make your father and mother a much happier couple if you'd pack up your suitcase and hit the trail for your home in Piedmont, Ala. Your dad was in The Constitution office yesterday morning to see if we couldn't help him locate you, and he seemed mighty anxious to see you again.

All he knows about your whereabouts is that on Saturday, March 13, you bought a ticket for Atlanta. He's been looking for you steadily all over Georgia and all over Alabama. Your mother is worried about you, and it isn't fair to add any cares to those she has already had in looking after that baby brother of yours. The baby is still sick. You remember it was ill the day you left home.

You probably didn't imagine that the baby's illness would be serious, but your dad and mother are worried about the babe's welfare—and are worried about you.

Besides, Floyd, it isn't exactly right and wise for a 16-year-old boy to go off from home and leave his father and mother without the least bit of news. Sit down and write them, or even better, telegraph to your dad, A. Z. Trammell, and tell him that you're going to get back to them just as fast as an Alabama-bound train can carry you.

Atlanta Teachers To Attend Meeting In Macon, March 25

A program of wide educational interest has been arranged for the meeting, which promises to be the most important held in many years. Miss Blanche E. Campbell, supervisor of elementary education in the Atlanta schools, will speak on "Reading in the Elementary Schools." Miss Jessie Muse, principal of the Girls' High school, will participate, with a number of other instructors, in a general topic discussion: "How Can the Colleges and Secondary Schools Co-Operate to Reduce the Number of Failures Among College Freshmen?"

J. R. Little, assistant superintendent of the Atlanta schools, is one of the district vice presidents of the association. For several years Macon has entertained the convention, but the Atlanta delegation is going prepared to make a strong fight to bring it to this city in 1921.

ELKS' EXALTED RULERS TO HAVE LUNCH TODAY

Luncheon will be served at the Elks' home today at 1 p. m. for all of the past exalted rulers of Atlanta lodge, No. 78, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, according to an announcement by Albert L. DOUG FAIRBANKS EXPECTS TO PAY VISIT TO ATLANTA

Carlyle R. Robinson, the personal representative of Douglas Fairbanks, who is in the city on business, says he has arranged with Willard Patterson, manager of the Criterion theater, to have the popular film star personally appear when the proposed new Metropolitan theater is opened by Sig Samuels on Ickle street. Incidentally, Mr. Robinson made it clear that "Doug" is too busy with screen work just now to be thinking about any leap into the matrimonial waters, as has been rumored persistently.

The rumor that Fairbanks would marry Miss Harris was declared to be as baseless as that which linked his name a fortnight ago with that of Mary Pickford. "It is getting to be a joke the way the name of Douglas Fairbanks is being linked with a matrimonial venture. I am sure that when 'Doug' is ready to take the vital step, he will announce it to the world himself and not be ashamed of who it is or when it will happen. But he is not engaged to any one and is now devoting his time to his art in an effort to give to the public the best that is in him."

Mr. Robinson is in the city attending to the affairs of the United Artists' corporation, also known as the Big Four, and which includes Douglas Fairbanks, Charlie Chaplin, Mary Pickford and D. W. Griffith. He declares that Fairbanks and Chaplin are great pals.

Tells of the Value Of Arsenic Poisoning In Fighting Weevil

A number of farmers and others interested in the elimination of the boll weevil from Georgia gathered in the hall of the house of representatives yesterday morning to hear an illustrated lecture by T. P. Cassidy, government expert, at Tallulah, La., on the results of experiments with arsenic poisoning made at that station under the direction of Dr. B. D. Cood. Dr. Cood, who had been invited to speak, was prevented from coming by other engagements.

Mr. Cassidy said that the best results had been obtained when the work of poisoning had been started after the fields had been weevil infested to the extent of 15 to 20 per cent. Cotton normally, he said, threw off a considerable percentage of its fruit and the plant would later make up for possibly 25 per cent weevil loss.

The poison should be put on either at night or early in the morning when the dew is on so as to make it lie on the plants and prevent it from being blown off by the wind. The speaker showed by lantern slides fields of cotton which would have made practically nothing that had been brought up to a production of more than a bale per acre by use of the poison.

The speaker also illustrated the different machinery that had been employed for distribution of the poison. The hand pump was too small, he said, to be used on a large scale, and a distributor mounted on wheels and drawn by mules would have to be used by most farmers. He said that there were three companies now engaged in making these poison distributors, but only one of them was following the design which had been tried out at the Tallulah station.

It took from three to seven pounds of poison per acre, he declared, and the poison cost 20 cents per pound. Great care should be used in buying poison not to get a kind that would burn the plant. Mr. Cassidy said that the Tallulah station would analyze free of charge all samples of poison sent them by the farmers.

Return to Worship Of God of Fathers Urged by Speaker

"The spirit that does not teach that the atoning blood of Jesus Christ is essential to the salvation of man is not of God," declared Elder Charles A. Callis in the course of a sermon delivered in the Latter-Day Saints' chapel Sunday morning.

"The crying spiritual need of the world is for men to return unto the worship of the God of their fathers," continued Elder Callis, "or at the close of life they will mourn as Cardinal Wolsley did, 'Had I but served my God with half the zeal I served my king, He would not in mine age have left me naked unto mine enemies.'"

HITCHCOCK DELIVERS TREATY DEFEAT VIEWS

Augusta, Ga., Maarch 22.—(Special.)—"The defeat of the peace treaty was a bigger blow to Senator Lodge than to President Wilson," declared Senator G. M. Hitchcock, minority leader of the senate, yesterday after his arrival at the Bon Air.

He bases his assertion on the idea that Lodge thought the Democrats would pass the treaty anyway, and that he loaded it up with reservations.

"When I said in an interview some time ago that the treaty might be defeated if he continued his methods, it was looked upon as a bluff. They thought we would pass it regardless of how it was tampered with. They see their mistake now."

Senator Hitchock came to Augusta yesterday morning on the same train that brought ex-President Taft down. He was accompanied by his wife and expects to stay ten days, or even two weeks, if he can arrange it in any way, to rest up after the strenuous senatorial treaty fight.

The senator expects to spend much of his time on the golf links. When he alighted from the train yesterday morning, he found that he had left his golf sticks at home, but hopes to get in the game anyway.

"President Wilson has always said that the treaty and the league was not a party issue," declared the senator, when asked why so many democrats bolted the party, while republicans voted with the president.

"Many of the senators who voted for the reservations voted against the treaty with the reservations when the show-down came. There were some of the democrats who figured that half a loaf was better than none, for, although the treaty is impaired, there is still much good in it."

Senator Hitchcock's name is entered in Nebraska as a candidate for the presidency, but, according to his own admission, it has no significance. The senator's big opponent in his home state is William Jennings Bryan, also a Nebraskan.

NO REDUCED RATES TO CAMP OF SCOUTS

Macon, Ga., March 22.—(Special.) The Southeastern Passenger association has refused to grant excursion rates for the state encampment of Boy Scouts to be held in Macon May 6, 7 and 8. Under the rules of the passenger association only those organizations known to be religious, educational, charitable, fraternal or military in character are entitled to reduced rates for travel, and the association takes the position the Boy Scouts do not come within the scope of any of these classifications.

In asking for the reduced rates, the transportation department of the Macon Chamber of Commerce pointed out the many educational features set forth in the Boy Scout hand book and called attention to congress having granted the Boy Scouts of America a charter as an educational institution. Mention was also made of the fact that the postoffice department has given the organization the second-class mail privilege because of the educational nature of its literature. The passenger association, however, takes the position that the term "educational" means "state and national" teachers and nothing more.

The decision is somewhat of a blow to the boys who have been planning to attend the encampment, as most of them have to work and earn the money with which to pay their way. Arrangements are being made to care for more than 1,000 scouts, but just what effect the decision as to excursion rates will have is not known at this time.

Cumming Ga., March 22.—(Special.)—Fire of unknown origin swept the west side of the square in Cumming this morning at 5 o'clock, destroying the big two-story department store and warehouses of George W. Heard, the grocery stores of W. A. Thalley and Bagwell & Hulsey, and the residence of Julius Bannister and Ezra Johnson. Favorable winds saved adjoining buildings, among them the cotton warehouses of. S. H. Allen and W. C. Wheler.

The loss is around $200,000, with but small insurance.

Macon Car Company Brings Rail Board Into State Courts

Following an order signed by Judge John D. Humphries, of the Fulton superior court, the Georgia railroad commission, of which Murphey Candler is chairman, will have to show cause why it cannot assume jurisdiction in regard to a petition of the Macon Railway and Light company, of Bibb county, to be allowed to abandon service on the Rivoli extension between Lundy road and the end of the line.

The hearing on the mandamus writ which was brought by the Macon Railway and Power company, was set for April 3 a 9:30 o'clock a. m. in the Fulton superior court.

The Macon company contends in its petition asking the court to make the commission assume jurisdiction in the discontinuance of the Rivoli extension, that it presented a petition to the state railroad commission asking that the commission grant the company the authority to abandon this interurban line on the grounds that it did not pay expenses, that very few people used it and that the company, if it continued to run it, would have to make its roadbed ready for certain paving. The company contends that the cost of regrading the tracks and other work is entirely too great for the company to assume.

The commission, upon the advice of its special counsel, Judge J. K. Hines, denied the petition of the railway company on the grounds that it was without jurisdiction to grant the authority asked.

The Macon company in reply states that it has no other specific legal remedy except through the powers of the commission and asks that the court make the commission assume jurisdiction in this case.

SEVERAL COUPLES GIVEN DIVORCES ON MONDAY

Several divorce verdicts were granted Monday before Judge W. D. Ellis, in the Fulton superior court, when the undefended divorce calendar for the March term was taken up. About 250 cases are on the docket.

Judge Ellis charged the jury to consider each case carefully and to refuse to grant a decree if the case were not properly made out. He also told them to ask questions whenever they desired.

C. F. Samuelson, chief clerk of the supply officers' department at Camp Gordon, was granted a divorce from Mrs. Mary Adkins Samuelson after the petitioner had recited that he was married in October of 1918, his wife having come from Los Angeles, Cal., to Atlanta. He stated that they lived together for twenty days, after which she left him. He further claimed that during the time they lived together that she continually nagged him, smoked cigarettes and told him she did not love him.

LAGRANGE PLANNING FOR COUNTRY CLUB

LaGrange, Ga., March 22.—(Special.)—If the plan now on foot are carried out, and the fact that many prominent men are behind the movement almost insures the success of the undertaking, LaGrange will soon boast of a splendid country club. Fuller B. Callaway has already agreed to give 100 acres of land for golf purposes, and an engineer has been on the ground with a view of putting the land in shape for the club. It is thought the necessary amount will be subscribed within the next few days to insure the success of the enterprise.

Crump Visits Macon.

Macon, Ga., March 22.—(Special.) James L. Crump, of Macon, who for several years has been engaged in the cotton business in Italy, is here for a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Crump. He has just recently returned from a trip into the territory of the former central empire in the interest of an American cotton concern.

BAINBRIDGE COLBY CONFIRMED BY SENATE

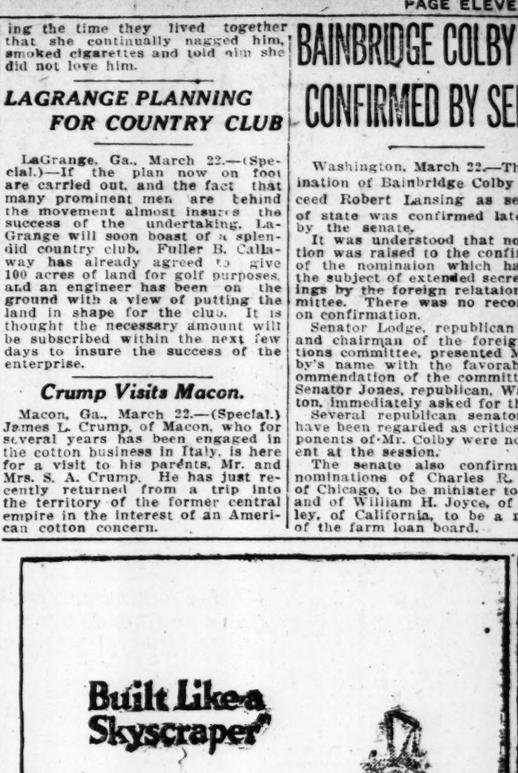

Washington, March 22.—The nomination of Bainbridge Colby to succeed Robert Lansing as secretary of state was confirmed late today by the senate.

It was understood that no objection was raised to the confirmation of the nominaion which has been the subject of extended secret hearings by the foreign relataions committee. There was no record vote on confirmation.

Senator Lodge, republican leader, and chairman of the foreign relations committee, presented Mr. Colby's name with the favorable recommendation of the committee, and Senator Jones, republican, Washington, immediately asked for the vote.

Several republican senators who have been regarded as critics or opponents of Mr. Colby were not present at the session.

The senate also confirmed the nominations of Charles R. Crane, of Chicago, to be minister to China, and of William H. Joyce, of Berkeley, of California, to be a member of the farm loan board.

A Work That Will Carry On.

Atlanta is responding generously to the call being made by the Near East Relief committee, and volunteer helpers are bringing assistance to the work here every day. The visit here from General Azgapetian and his wife, Lady Ann Azgapetian, was an inspiration to many who heard them to aid the relief work, and yesterday there came to the local headquarters voluntary contributions from many sources. Miss Jean Williams, representing the employees of the federal reserve bank, brought to the fund $173.50.

When asked yesterday how long the American Committee for Near East Relief would continue its efforts in behalf of the Syrians and Armenians, L. E. Platt, director of the local work, replied, "As long as the need exists."

He further stated:

"The need will continue until sound and permanent political institutions are established. But the need will continue to exist for a considerable period of time subsequent to the settlement of political questions. It must be remembered that there is no recognized civil authority over the larger portion of the Near East. The task before these people involves the reconstruction of their social, industrial and religious institutions in an utterly destitute land.

"While other horror-stricken lands are reconstructing their lives upon the foundation of long established and well organized institutions, the people of the Near East must create social, political, industrial and religous institutions amidst utter desolaton, and adapt them to the antipathies and complexities of commingled races and creeds. While this adjustment is taking place, 250,000 orphans must be cared for, and over half a million little girls, mostly under the age of 15, now in Turkish harems, released from the curse of Turkish philosophy and from the ravages of loathsome disease. We hope it will not require many years to accomplish this great task, but we are prepared to carry on until it is accomplished."

The family resided at the corner of Peachtree and Sixth streets during their residence here, and Rev. Walker is now pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Los Angeles. He was a recent visitor in the city, as the guest of Dr. John G. W. Earnest, and addressed the congregation of his former church.

Atlanta Club Women Start Drive for Home Thrift Clubs

To save for what their savings might mean to civilization, was the high plane upon which the members of the Atlanta Woman's club, at a meeting yesterday afternoon, pledged themselves individually to organize thrift clubs in their homes. There are four hundred members of the club and, according to Mrs. Samuel Lumpkin, chairman of the woman's division of the United States thrift movement, sixth federal reserve district, the Atlanta Woman's club is the largest in the six southern states, and located at the headquarters of the district, therefore logically the organization to inspire a campaign of thrift clubs, by organizing at once 100 per cent.

Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, vice president, presided at the meeting, and the principal speaker of the afternoon was Dr. Ashby Jones, who spoke of thrift as a national virtue, and one that, practiced as such, would raise our standards of civilization.

Dr Jones reviewed the period of the war, and the proof this country had given of conservation and saving in 1917 and 1918, when she had the high motive of patriotism before her, and the noble purpose of saving the world for democracy.

He defined the difference between saving for high motives and hoarding for love of gain, and explained that with the thought of saving should go the higher thought of what saving could accomplish in making the nation and the world better.

A saving nation meant one heralding the standard of higher civilization, and he presented the force of the ideal: "Save for civilization."

Mrs. Lumpkin said that through the home this saving could best be initiated as the first step to higher civilization; therefore she urged every woman to organize a thrift club in her own home.

Mr. Walter Cooper, representing the government movement for thrift, explained the practical side of the movement, and gave the club members a direct plan of how to organize home thrift clubs.

Mrs. Richardson called for an expression of interest from the assembly, and received the unanimous indorsement of the women individually.

Mrs. Joseph Heard, chairman of the thrift committee of the club, announced the personnel of the committee, and pledged their active co-operation in organizing the Atlanta Woman's club 100 per cent.

Miss Van Hook's Message.

Miss Van Hook, representing the local work of the Georgia illiteracy commission, appealed to the club to aid her in the movement in Fulton county. She suggested ward committees, who would aid in finding out illiterates, reporting them to the commission, and finally encouraging them to go to the night schools. She gnnounced that a class had been organized in the jail, and that there were thirteen members in the first class.

Announcement was made of the reception the federated club women will give April 13 for the National Association of Nurses to meet here, and Mrs. Richadson announced the plans for the Russian ballet which will be given later at the Auditorium under the auspices of the club, for the club's benefit.

Announcement was also made of a benefit card party ot be given at the club this afternoon under the auspices of the industrial committee. Beautiful prizes of all kinds will be drawn for, and a large patronage is urged.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.—(adv)

A Shampoo That Will Not Whiten The Hair

The serious objections to cheap shampoos are that they contain impurities and alkalis. They burn and deaden the hair, deprive it of life and color, make the scalp and hair dry and eventually white. Only natural blends of the purest and most highly refined Cocoanut and Palm oils as blended in Shuco Shampoo should be used. Shuco Shampoo is a perfect saponification suspended in a solution that easily changes into a bushel of rich, creamy, bubbling and sparkling lather.

Apply to the moistened hair and rub well, adding water and shampoo as needed. It vanishes all dirt, dust and dandruff, rinses out quickly and perfectly, leaving the hair soft as velvet, light and fluffy. Your mirror will tell you why Shuco Shampoo makes hair with a thousand lights. At any good drug store.—(adv.)

A shampoo prepared properly from a blend of cocoanut and palm oils is by far the best to use. These two oils are prescribed often in their raw state for diseases of the scalp and hair. Shuco Shampoo is a perfect blend of these two oils perfectly saponified and suspended in a solution free from impurities and injurious matter. Two or three teaspoonfuls applied to the wetted hair and rubbed briskly at once changes into a bushel of sparkling, bubbling, creamy lather that vanishes all dirt and dust, and leaves the hair and scalp perfectly clean. It leaves no stickiness, harshness or filmy substance in the hair. Makes it brilliant, soft, fluffy and wavy. It completely rinses out and can be used as often as you like without the slightest possibility of injury to the hair or scalp. Your mirror will tell you why Shuco Shampoo makes hair with a thousand lights. At all drug stores. —(adv.)

North Carolina Lady Was Nervous, Weak and Suffered Greatly, But Relief Soon Came After She Took Cardui.

Asheville, N. C.—Mrs. J. A. Sluder, of 45 Woodrow avenue, this city, recently made the following statement:

"I was in a very run-down condition after .... I wasn't able to go.

"I was nervous, weak and couldn't do my work.

"I felt like, at times, no matter what happened, I couldn't get up a spark of interest.

"I was depressed, blue, and continually on the lookout for something to happen.

"I couldn't sleep to do any good, and had to force myself to eat when meal time came.

"I suffered some pain in my back and sides, but the worst trouble was weakness and depression.

"I decided to try a tonic.

"My sister had gotten such fine results from Cardui, I began using it.

"Soon I noticed I would get hungry, and sleep at night, and this, of course, was a great help.

"I grew less nervous.

HOUSEHOLD QUIZ

By ALICE GITCHELL KIRK.
Home Economics Expert and Lecturer.

QUESTIONS.

1. What book of nursery rhymes was largely written about foods?
2. What is the name of the new institution which takes orders for dinners, cooks it and delivers it hot and ready to serve?
3. What branch of work in the home is coming back into it as another goes out?
4. What country is rich in fiber producing plants for making fine fabrics that are sold in most of our stores?
5. What should be the first preparation of strawberries after picking or buying from the store?
6. For what kind of biscuit are the southerners famous?
7. What are the principal ingredients in Thousand Island salad dressing?

Answers to Yesterday's Questions.

1. The oldest leavening material known is yeast.
2. Animals, including man, would die in a short time from phosphorous starvation were this element not found in common foods, notably in eggs; also in cheese, milk, cereals, wheat flour, and in many common vegetables.
3. One of the most needful changes on the first warm days of spring is to change our food, as much as we change our clothes. A fresh spring diet cleanses, invigorates and renews the entire system.
4. The first impression of a stranger on entering the door of any home for the first time is given him by the furnishings, and arrangement in the hall.
5. The difference between the old-time mangle and the present-day ironer is very great, as the first only ironed flat pieces. On the modern machines, curtains, aprons, rompers and simple garments are ironed with ease; dresses, skirts and shirts may be begun on this ironer, and short work made of finishing by hand.
6. A good trap for catching and destroying ants is to wring a large sponge several times in water and press it dry to open the pores or cells. Place where the ants are troublesome, and sprinkle with granulated sugar. Two or three times a day drop your sponge into boiling water and they will be killed by the hundreds. Repeat frequently and all trace of ants will soon disappear.
7. Six different products may be made from one biscuit dough recipe, adding sugar or shortening to suit individual tastes:

(1) Biscuit, (2) short cake. Bake in two round tins, spread with butter and cover in between and on top with strawberries or any other fruit. (3) Pie crust for meat pies, (4) berry roll. Roll dough until one-half inch thick and spread with berries; roll up and place in steamer for three-quarters of an hour. (5) Jelly or honey biscuits. Roll, cut and spread with butter and a small portion of marmalade, jelly or honey; place another biscuit on top, fill pan and bake. (6) Roll thin and spread with melted butter, sugar, cinnamon and currants or raisins; roll again and cut in inch slices; lay in pan and bake.

$1,007.29 IS RAISED AT WHEAT ST. CHURCH

In the midst of the big revival that is now in progress at the Wheat Street Baptist church, the B. Y. P. U. closed out a financial effort just with the young people of the church on last Sunday, which reached the grand total of $1,007.29. The workers were divided into two teams, known as the Army, under the leadership of W. L. Gholston, who raised $632.64, and the Navy, under the lead of Fletcher Combs, who raised $374.65.

This is one of the largest efforts ever made by the B. Y. P. U., and the entire membership of the church is very happy over the work of these young people. Dr. Bivin, of Memphis, Tenn., is assisting Dr. Bryant in the revival that is now going on with fine results.

The longest lawcuit on record lasted over 400 years. It was a dispute about some land in Poland, the people interested being the Sobieskis of Orolowo and the Sobieskis of Podlowo. It began in the year 1490, and a settlement was arrived at in 1890, the land being then divided among the then representatives of the original litigants.

"We must see," Dominey said quietly, "that she is not allowed to get possession of any weapon."

"Aye!" Make sure of that," Middleton scoffed, "with Mother Unthank by her side! Her ladyship's mad because of the horror of that night, but Mother Unthank is mad with hate, and theer isn't a week passes," the old man went on, his voice dropping lower and his eyes burning, "that Roger Unthank's spirit doesn't come and howl for your blood beneath their window. If you stay her this night, Squire, come over and sleep in the little room they've got ready for you on the other side of the house."

Mr. Mangan had lost his smooth, after-dinner appearance. His face was growing cold. This was a very different thing from the vague letters and rumors which had reached him from time to time and which he had put out of his mind with all the contempt of the materialist.

"It is very good of you to warn me, Middleton," Dominey said, "but I can lock my door, can I not?"

"Lock the door of the oak room!" was the scornful reply. "And what good would that do? You know well enough that the wall's double on three sides, and there are more secret entrances than even I know of. The oak room's not for you this night, Squire. It's hoping to get you there that's keeping them quiet."

"Tell us what you meant, Middleton," the lawyer aske, with ill-assumed inifference, "when you spoke of the howling of Roger Unthank's spirit?"

The old man turned patiently around.

"Just that, sir," he replied. "It's round the house most weeks. Except for me odd nights, and Mrs. Unthank, there's been scarcely a servant would sleep in the Hall for years. Some of the maids they do come up from the village, but back they go before nightfall, and until morning there isn't a living soul would cross the park—no, not for a hundred pounds."

"A howl, you call it?" Mr. Mangan observed.

"That's mostly like a dog what's hurt itself," Middleton explained equably, "like a dog, that is, with a touch of the human in its throat, as we've all heard in our time, sir. You'll hear it yourself, sir, maybe tonight or tomorrow night."

"You've heard it, then, Middleton?" his master asked.

"Haven't you ever got up and gone out to see what it was?"

The old man shook his head.

"But I knew right well what that was, sir," he said, "and I'm not one for looking on spirits. Spirits there are that walk in this world, as we well know, and the spirit of Roger Unthank walks from between the Black Wood and these windows, come every week of the year. But I'm not for looking at him. There's evil comes of that. I turn over in my bed, and I stop my ears, but I've never yet raised a blind."

"Tell me, Middleton," Dominey asked, "is Lady Dominey terrified at these—er—visitations?"

"That I can rightly say, sir. Her ladyship's always sweet and gentle, with kind words on her lips for everyone, but there's the terror there in her eyes that was lit that night when you staggered into the hall, so to speak. She carries fear with her, but whether it's the fear of seeing you again, or the fear of Roger Unthank's spirit, I could not tell."

Dominey seemed suddenly to become possessed of a strange desire to thrust the whole subject away. He dismissed the old man kindly, but a little abruptly, accompanying him to the corridor which led to the servants' quarters and talking all the time about the pheasants. When he returned, he found that his guest had emptied his second glass of brandy and was surreptitiously mopping his forehead.

"That," the latter remarked, "is the class of old retainer who lives too long. If I were a Dominey of the middle ages, I think a stone around his neck and the deepest well would be the sensible way of dealing with him. He made me feel positively uncomfortable."

"I noticed it," Dominey remarked, with a faint smile. "I'm not going to pretend that it was a pleasant conversation myself."

"I've heard some ghost stories," Mangan went on, "but a spook that comes and howls once a week for ten years takes some beating."

Dominey poured himself out a glass of brandy with a steady hand.

"You've been neglecting things here, Mangan," he complained. "You ought to have come down and exorcised that ghost. We shall have those smart maidservants of yours on tomorrow, I suppose, unless you and I can get a little ghost-laying in first."

Mr. Mangan began to feel more comfortable. The brandy and the warmth of the burning logs were creeping into his system.

"By the by, Sir Everard," he inquired, a little later on, "where are you going to sleep tonight?"

Dominey stretched himself out composedly.

"There is obviously only one place for me," he replied. "I can't disappoint anyone. I shall sleep in the oak room."

BY MRS. M. A. WILSON

Copyright, 1920, for The Constitution.

Along the Connecticut shore during the early spring, the native people just revel in some good old-fashioned New England meals. After winter storms have cleared away and late March and April sunshine gleams across the sounds, the salty twang of the clear-cut cold air revives the appetite, and the housewife who prides herself with feeding her family bountifully, turns to with a will that causes you to feel that when some of the menfolk at the crossroads store say:

"I brag and brag my woman folk for good substantial vittles against the world," he is really not doing the housewives of this community sufficient justice. The Connecticut women are wonderful economical cooks and thrifty housewives, with a world of cooking lore of yesteryear handed down from one generation to another.

Here is the community—one cannot find either bakeshop or the delicatessen shop. Each housewife bakes her own bread, cakes and pastry, and finds time to make both soap and soft-soap for cleaning purposes, for which I would have you know that the kitchen pantry and storerooms of these Connecticut homes are scrubbed to silvery whiteness.

SOME CONNECTICUT SHORE DELICACIES.

Cod Bits in Cream.

Cod bits are pieces of salt cod about the size of one's finger. You may purchase these cod bits from dealers in salt fish or make them yourself by cutting salt fish in pieces.

Soak one-half pound cod bits for one and one-half hours in warm water, drain. Now place in sauce pan and add

One onion minced fine,
Tiny piece of dried pepper pod.

Cover with boiling water, bring to boil and cook slowly for twelve minutes. Drain, place in au gratin dish and cover with well-seasoned cream sauce. Place in hot oven ten minutes; pour two tablespoons melted butter on top and serve.

Stuffed Codfish.

Purchase middle cuts of dried cod. Soak one pound of cod in warm water for three hours, drain, place in piece cheesecloth and plunge in pot of boiling water. Cook fifteen minutes, drain. Now divide into five pieces and place on thin slice bread, remove the crust and spread with the following mixture.

Put through the food chopper:

Four onions,
Three bunches celery,
Six bunches parsley,
Three-quarters cup stale bread,

Turn in bowl and add

Three tablespoons bacon fat,
One teaspoon salt,
One teaspoon paprika.

Mix, spread over cod, making very smooth; sprinkle with flour, then with beaten egg and cover with fine bread crumbs. Place in baking pan and bake in hot oven fifteen minutes, basting eat portion with two tablespoons bacon fat. Lift to hot dish and serve with cream sauce.

Baked Fish.

Just about the time the shad is starting the run in southern waters, the Connecticut housewife selects a Boston codfish for baking.

Clean fish and place in cloth. Now mince fine:

Two ounces of salt pork.

Place in sauce pan and add

Three-quarters cup finely chopped onions.

Cook slowly until onions are soft, then add

One cup of fine bread crumbs,
One teaspoon salt,
One teaspoon paprika,
Three tablespoons finely minced parsley.

Mix, fill into fish and sew fish with stout string; pat fish with flour and place in baking dish and bake in moderate oven for one hour, basting every ten minutes with tomato sauce.

Hot Squash Biscuit.

Place in a mixing bowl:

One cup of cooked winter squash,
One cup milk,
One and one-half teaspoons salt,
Two tablespoons sugar,
Four tablespoons shortening.

Now take

Three pints of flour,
Six level tablespoons baking powder.

Sift flour and baking powder twice and add to the quash. Work to smooth rough, roll out one inch thick on well-floured board. Brush tops of biscuits with milk, bake in hot oven fifteen minutes.

An automobile that travels on three sets of movable runners instead of wheels has been invented in Europe.

A Japanese inventor of a non-combustible celluloid substitute has taken out 11 United States patents upon it.

A Surprising Improvement In Comfort often comes to the coffee drinker, when he changes from coffee to Postum.

That seems to be the sure way to determine whether coffee is harmful.

If any discomfort due to coffee is disturbing you, change to

INSTANT POSTUM

The standard of quality is high, there has been no increase in price and the taste is most satisfying to those who enjoy a coffee-like flavor.

Mrs. Beauvias Hostess.

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mrs. L. F. Beauvias, of Lucile avenue by a group of the High School young people Saturday evening.

The affair was given in honor of Private Gordon Beauvias, who is visiting here for a short time only.

Mrs. Van Hook Speaks.

Mrs. Mary Jolly Van Hook, organizer for the state commission on illiteracy, addressed the club members on the organization of schools among illiterates. Declaring that that the panacea for all "social evils" is the universal distribution of the extant knowledge of the world, Mrs. Van Hook stressed the desirability of urging all employers to co-operate in obtaining instruction for all employees.

Mrs. Van Hook's plan is to form committees for each of the ten city wards, the chairman of which will be appointed from the educational committee of the Atlanta Woman's club. This committee is to learn the names and addresses of every person in the ward who can not read and write and see that a teacher is provided.

LEARN ABOUT DRUGS.

When there is no trained nurse and the doctor tells you to report the effect of his medicine there are some points a busy physician will not have time to discuss. While the home nurse need not be trained in therapeutics she should understand the effects of drugs in common use and know when their discontinuance is indicated. A drug may not act the same way with every one. Some persons have an "idiosyncrasy" in regard to a particular medicine, and the effect is not at all that which was expected. This is frequently true of nervous individuals. Always watch the first dose of a new medicine and report its effect to the doctor if it is other than expected.

Then again certain medicines are said to have an "accumulative effect" and if given regularly will show symptoms of poisoning. With a powerful drug like digitalis this effect must be carefully watched for. The pulse becomes very slow and irregular and the physician must be sent for immediately.

To certain other drugs the system becomes accustomed and the drug may have to be increased to fet the desired effect. When this "toleration" becomes established the increase may go on until a habit is formed. This is often the result in giving morphine or opium.

Other things to be considered in giving medicines are the age, temperament and habits of the patient. These all influence the action of the remedy. Children require much smaller doses than adults, and the old have less resistance to depressing drugs than the middle-aged.

BLUE RIDGE TRAINS AGAIN USE BRIDGE

Anderson, S. C., aMrch 22.—The Blue Ridge railway will resume its regular freight and passenger train schedules between Belton, Anderson and Walhalla effective at 12:01 a. m. Tuesday, March 23, with the restoration today of the bridge over the Seneca river, part of which was destroyed by fire on March 3.

The fire destroyed 608 feet of the east approach of the bridge, consisting of four high truss psans, and during the interruption of service all passengers have been transferred at the river. The work of restoration has been pushed to completion, only twenty days having elapsed since the big job was undertaken.

HEFLIN OPENS FIGHT FOR THE U. S. SENATE

Huntsville, Ala., March 22.—Congressman J. Thomas Heflin, of the fifth Alabama district, opening his campaign here today for the United States senate to succeed the late Senator Bankhead, made pleas for the enforcement of the federal prohibition amendment, for encouragement and financial assistance to farmers and for the speedy rehabilitation of the railroads of the country that "those who work for the roads may be paid such wages as will permit them to share in the prosperity enjoyed by the roads."

Mr. Heflin pointed to his record in the house as proof that he is capable of representing the state senate.

POWER IS LACKING OVER PRINT PAPER

Washington, March 22.—Secretary Alexander informed the house today that the department of commerce had no authority to issue any regulations governing the distribution and consumption of news print paper and was without knowledge of any discrimination in the distribution of the available supply.

Mr. Alexander included with his letter a telegram from the American Newspaper Publishers' association, declaring the association knew of "no undue preference or advantage of one class over another."

WRIGLEY AIR FLEET REACHES ATLANTA FOR EXHIBITIONS

After having thrilled thousands in other cities with sky acrobatics, the William Wrigley fleet of three airplanes nosed their ships to earth at East Lake during Monday after flying over the city late in the afternoon.

The trio of drivers, all old heads in the flying game, are Paul Milnor, former New York newspaper man; Elmer Partridge and N. C. Black. Milnor will be remembered as the flying reporter who used two airplanes to secure an interview from Earl Deere in the famous Chicago murder case. He first sprang into fame by flying under a series of bridges at Pittsburg, Pa., to entertain King Albert, of Belgium.

Partridge came into note in the aviation world in 1910 as the designer and builder of the Partridge tractor used by many of the early exhibition fliers, including Katherine Stinton and Montague Rolfe. Nimmo Black, pilot of Spearmint No. 3, is the youngest of the three aviators, but has won a reputation as one of the most daring and spectacular fliers in the game.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon the fleet will take the air with nose pointed toward the city. After putting on a program of circus stunts, the pilots will release many packages of chewing gum, four of which will contain passes entitling the lucky finders to a free air ride in one of the planes.

The fleet will remain in the city until Wednesday during which time a number of exhibition flights will be given.

MRS. INNES TO FACE HEARING IN MACON

Will Be Taken There From the State Farm as Term Ends.

Macon, Ga., March 22.—(Special.) Mrs. Ida Mae Innes, who will finish her three-year sentence at the state farm tomorrow, will be brought to Macon and given a hearing tomorrow afternoon on an indictment charging her with using the mails to defraud. Victor E. Innes, her husband, is serving a sentence of seven years, the couple having been convicted of defrauding Lois Nelms Dennis and Beatrice Nelms, of Atlanta, out of their property. They were acquitted in Texas of the charge of murdering the two women, under a Texas law providing that the bodies of the slain must be found.

Mrs. J. W. Nelms, mother of the missing women, reached Macon today from Atlanta to attend the hearing, and is assisting in the prosecution.

Mrs. Innes will be brought to Macon by C. W. Mosley, deputy marshal. He and his prisoner will arrive here shortly after noon, and Mrs. Innes will be taken to the Bibb county jail to await her hearing at 3 o'clock before United States Commissioner W. E. Martin. Unless the defendant denies she is the person against whom the indictment is drawn, or asserts that the charges are false, Commissioner Martin will assess the bond, and the case will be removed to the northern district of Georgia, to be tried at the next session of the United States district court in Atlanta. If Mrs. Innes is unable to make bond she will be held in jail here until an order for her removal is received.

If Mrs. Innes contests the indictment, the hearing may be delayed several days. Witnesses for both the government and defense will have to be summoned and the charges will have to be proved sufficiently to warrant the commissioner binding the defendant over for trial.

Surprised at News.

Milledgeville, Ga., March 22.—(Special.)—Mrs. Ida Mae Innes, who will be released from the state prison farm tomorrow, after serving her sentence of three years, less four months for good time, says no one is more surprised than she by the published notice that she will be detained by a federal warrant and tried again for the selfsame offense on which she was convicted in the state courts.

Her 23-year-old son arrived here yesterday from his home in Portland, Ore., to accompany his mother to his western home. He was unaware of the fact that his mother would be indicted again, and expressed great disappointment when seen this afternoon.

8TH DISTRICT STRONG FOR MITCHELL PALMER

Leaders Enthusiastic—Palmer Club Being Formed--Athens Wants Speaking Date.

Athens, Ga., March 22.—(Special.) Of interest to eighth district democrats is the appointment of Hon. Howell C. Erwin, chairman of the Clarke county democratic committee, as a member of the Palmer executive campaign committee from the state at large, and the election of Blanton Fortson, city attorney of Athens and president of the local Kiwanis club, to serve with Ernest Camp, of Monroe, and T. H. Swift, Sr., of Elberton, on the eighth district campaign committee.

"I believe the time has come," said Mr. Fortson today, "when every democrat in the state should begin work for Palmer. As I see it, and as numbers of others see it, the issue is now between Palmer and Reed—Reed leading the anti-Wilson forces and Palmer leading the men who are proud of the glorious achievments of the democratic party during the last seven years and of the accomplishments of Woodrow Wilson while he has been the chief executive of our nation.

"We owe it to the thousands of boys, hundreds of them from our own district, who fought in the recent war, to stand firmly behind the democratic administration that piloted us safely and successfully through the most hazardous period of our history. The present administration believes firmly in the ideals which have made our nation the leader of all nations and the present administration is a democratic nation. To us is the task of preserving the ideals of democracy and to do so we must unite behind the administration candidate in this state. It appears now that Palmer is the man."

That the Palmer supporters in Athens are determined to carry the eighth district for him is evinced in the announcement that a Palmer club will be organized here immediately. Mr. Fortson urges all Palmer men to notify him so that their names might be placed on the roll. An effort will also be made to induce Mr. Palmer to speak in Athens, it being pointed out that this would be the logical place for him to speak in order that everyone within a radius of fifty miles may hear him.

LUXURY FOR TENDER FEET

Alborum, Used as Foot Bath, Reduces Inflammation, Relieves Soreness, Dispels Odors, Kills the Germs and Restores Feet to Healthy Condition.

Skin specialists have discovered that painful, perspiring, swollen feet, with corns, bunions and ingrowing nails, are all caused by germs which grow in the pores of the skin, causing decay of the cuticle, rawness, eczema, inflammation and odor.

These germs are instantly destroyed by Alborum, a cleansing, soothing, deodorizing and healing antiseptic and astringent. It draws out the inflammation and soreness, dispels the odor and quickly restores health to both skin and nails.

An Alborum foot bath is made by simply dissolving a little Alborum in warm water. Get a package from any druggist for 35c. Alborum has many other daily uses as an antiseptic in the home.—(adv.)

For the Little Ones

To Keep Their Digestion Perfect Nothing is so Safe and Pleasant as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets

An experienced observer in charge of a large office said it was a waste of words to tell most people to eat plain food. They prefer the food that delights the eye. Checking up on the after effects the usual distresses of gassiness, sour risings, water brash, loginess and so on may be avoided by following the meal with one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. These supply the stomach with an alkaline effect, thus promoting normal conditions as in health. This puts the O. K. on so-called rich food. Men and women are but children of a larger growth when it comes to eating the foods that satisfy, even though they may cause indigestion.

Indigestion is not necessarily confined to those who live high. It may follow so simple a process as the flavor of a bay leaf, thyme, garlic, sage or any of the other savory flavorings so universally used in soups, roasts, dressings, etc. As a rule if the stomach balks at such things, it will be disturbed by cheese, milk, coffee, pies and almost anything that most people like so well. Such conditions as these are met quite adequately by following the meal with one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They digest food and at the same time supply the stomach with an alkaline effect that prevents gassiness, heartburn, sour risings, drowsiness after eating and such distresses so familiar to those susceptible to indigestion or dyspepsia. Get a box of these tablets at any drug store in the United States or Canada, price 50 cents, and then note how comfortable the stomach feels. Your most excellent cook may use garlic without a protest.—(adv.)

You Can Guarantee This Prescription

So great has been the success of Plough's Prescription C-2223 in relieving thousands of people suffering with Rheumatism, Gout, Sciatica, Lumbago and some conditions of a neuralgic nature, and also other troubles caused by poisons in the blood, known as Eczema, Sores, Pimples, and so on, that the manufacturers authorize you to refund the price of two $1.50 bottles in case satisfactory benefit is not experienced by your customers.

There is no "red tape" connected with this guarantee. When you are assured that the claim for refund is a bona fide one, you give back the price which your customer paid you, and report the case to us. A check for $3.00 is promptly sent you.

Here are the conditions under which this guarantee is made: Your customer, or the patient, must take consecutively two $1.50 bottles. Four trial size bottles do not contain the quantity found in the regular or large size; therefore the guarantee cannot apply to purchases of the trial size. Directions must be followed carefully and suggestions as to diet and habits complied with as far as possible.

If, after your customer takes two $1.50 bottles as above, no relief is experienced—sufficient to justify a continuance of the treatment—upon presentation of the empty bottles, you are to return the purchase price, $3.00, and report the refund, giving customer's name and address and any other information that may be of interest. You will be quickly reimbursed at the same price, $3.00.

Of course there are chronic cases of Rheumatism and Gout which require the use of several bottles, but even in such cases, two large bottles should bring about a change for the better.

Prescription C-2223 is a real blood purifier. It stands above all other remedies as an alterative of great power. It restores normal functions to those organs or tissues which are not naturally performing their full work. It changes diseased conditions into conditions of health.

You can recommend it to your customers and be sure that they will be satisfied, for if no benefit is experienced, you can give their money back.

Before taking Prescription C-2223, it is necessary that the liver should be made active and the bowels regulated. 2223 Liver Pills are different from most cathartics because they act gently and do not sicken or gripe. Sports — Charley Frank Pays Visit to Cracker Camp

Edited by Cliff Wheatley

Prexy Looked Long and Hard at Tudery, a Local Youngster Trying for First Base. Pres. Frank to Take Boys on "Fishing Trip"—Prieste Works Out for First Time. Tracy Mathewson Takes Movies of Pastiming Crackers.

By Cliff Wheatley.

Bay St. Louis, Miss., March 22.—(Special.)—Charlie Frank, president of the Atlanta Baseball club and a stranger to most of the young hopefuls striving for berths on his 1920 aggegation, made his initial appearance on Mayer field Monday afternoon, stopping the activities of the players long enough to hand out the glad hand of welcome to most of them. The Dutchman gazed into the eyes of Tracy Mathewson's movie machine, same to be sent back for the seat-takers in the various theaters of Atlanta.

After seeing the boys work out, Charlie expressed himself as greatly pleased over the development the Pastimers Show at this early stage of the game. Most of all, Charlie was interested in the latest catch of the Cracker fishermen, and he promised to take them out for a launch ride far beyond the three-mile limit of the United Deserts to make pop bottle consumption permissible, and near a spot where Charlie declares fish of all models exist.

Looked Long at Tudery.

The Prexy took a long slant at Theo Tudery, a local product, whose fame as a defender of the initial sack spread to Bob Higgins' domain, with the result that Tudery was invited to fling a few with the Frankmen. Tudery is a left-hander, and handles the ball like we've always been told Hal Chase performed. He played several years ago in the Sally league, as a member of the Macon club, but after the little circuit reeled off a knockout, Lefty returned to his native shores, and since that time has spent his leisure hours dodging stingarees, the rattlesnake fish of the aqua realm.

Sir Robert Higgins, second in command of the Cracker horde, is non-committal about the local boy, but talking in whispers, Bob is known to have a decided hankering for a left-handed performer on the first stop, and Young Tudery might yet win a summer's stipend, bearing Charlie Frank's highly-touted signature.

For the benefit of the uninformed Monte is a plum plucked recently from the semi-pro ranks around Memphis, and it is expected he may be regarded as a fixture. Monte played with the Memphis Chicks in 1918, but answering the lure of Beaucoup Jack when the 1919 pennant chase rolled around, Monte entered the less crowded ranks of the semi-pro performers. One season was enough, however, and now he's ready to perform good duty with the Crackers.

Mathewson Took Pictures.

Amateur Pickfords, Lean Arbuckles and Fair Douglas, sprang to life on Mayer field Monday morning when Tracy Mathewson, personal friend of princes, and who has taken movie scenes of everything from a ham-infested Hebrew picnic to a bums' convention, where money fell like heavenly manna, pointed his machine in the general direction of the toiling Crackers. Everyone looked cute, but the honors of the day must be accorded "Slats" Ledbetter, champion eater of Hotel De Klock, and who is generally found flinging the pellet when he isn't flinging biscuits toward his palate. "Slats" was the only man on the Cracker deck who saw Tracy approaching, and suspecting his purpose, Slats had ample time to work out a smile that makes Douglas and his million dollar one look like a pessimistic dyspeptic.

Next place must go to Francis Price, official picture chaser of The Constitution. Francis' face was concealed in the mysteries of his focusing sack, and it's by far the best picture he ever took. Bob Higgins declared Price's only bad feature was hidden, and it might be true at that.

Dopesters Think Carpentier Has No Show With Jack

They Fail to Consider, However, That Georges Was But 18 Years Old When Klaus, Papke and the Dixie Kid Beat Him.

By Al Spink.

Those who follow fighting closely laugh at the very idea of Georges Carpentier, the French idol, being a match for Champion Jack Dempsey.

They prophesy that if the two meet it will be a more one-sided affair than was the recent cake-walk at Toledo.

These experts point to Carpentier's defeat by the three American middleweights, Frank Klaus, Billy Papke and Aaron L. Brown, the latter known to fistiana as the Dixie Kid. These men would compare to Dempsey about as Mike Gibbons or Mike O'Dowd would compare to him today.

If Carpentier could not defeat men of the weight and class of Klaus, Papke or the Dixie Kid, then he would have no chance against a man of the strength, science and weight of Dempsey. So they figure.

These sharpshooters do not stop to consider that it is nearly ten years since Klaus, Papke and the Dixie Kid defeated Carpentier. It was in 1912 when Klaus and Papke scored their victories over Georges.

The great French pugilist was born at Lens, France, on January 12, 1894, so that he was only 18 years old then and near the beginning of his career as a prize fighter.

Since that time Carpentier has broadened out and improved as a boxer so much that from then until the European war opened he scored a long line of victories. His sole defeat in that time was at the hands of Joe Jeanette, the American negro, who was given a decision over Georges after fifteen rounds of fighting.

But that defeat was very excusable for Jeanette is a much bigger and stronger man than Carpentier, one who has won decisions over the best negro heavyweights in this country and who has fought draws with such top-notchers in their time as Sam Langford, Sam McVey, Jim Coffey and others.

The one defeat sustained by Carpentier that is oftener referred to than any other and that is oftener quoted to prove that Carpentier is no match for Jack Dempsey was that which he received at the hands of the one-time famous negro boxer, Aaron L. Brown, once famous and known the world over as the Dixie Kid.

The record which Carpentier sustained in that battle has always stood as a black mark against him and resulted in the fancy putting him down in the second or even the third-rate class.

The Dixie Kid, as Brown was called, was just short of being championship timber, but he was good enough to defeat Carpentier in five rounds. He and Carpentier met at Trauville, France, on August 29, 1911. That was after Carpentier had had nearly five years' experience and when he was considered some pumpkins.

That Georges was a good man, too, was proved later when he defeated Willie Lewis, Cyclone Smith and Bombardier Wells.

But at that his defeat by the Dixie Kid and by Frank Klaus and Billy Papke, when he should have been at the heyday of his fame, stamps him as no match for Dempsey at all. Still Carpentier may have improved in strength and weight since joining the army.

The French champion is only in his twenty-sixth year. At that age John L. Sullivan was at his bet. So with all his fighting in the ring and out of it, Carpentier should be a good fighter yet.

Georges Carpentier began fighting when he was only 13 years of age. He won his first fight at that age from Bourgeois in four rounds. The following year, when he was just 14, he knocked out two of his opponents, won one fight on a foul, won fairly from another and took part in a six and a twenty-round draw.

In 1911, when in his seventeenth year, Carpentier began to assume his real form. He then stood 6 feet 1 inch in height and weighed 167 pounds. At this time he offered to meet all comers and was successful nearly all the way down the line until he met the Dixie Kid.

TECH HIGH WILL PLAY PETREL SCRUBS TODAY

By Roy E. White.

Baseball fans of the city will have an opportunity of glimpsing for the first time this afternoon at Piedmont park, a prep baseball nine in action, when the Tech High team will play the second team of Coach Anderson's Petrels. This will be of course, only a practice game, but it will serve as an excellent chance to see just what Tech High will present this year on the diamond.

Ever since taking charge of the Tech High baseball candidates this year Coaches Fancher and Cochran have done wonders with the squad. Practically every candidate will be given a chance to show his worth this afternoon during the progress of the game, and the contest should serve the coaches well in the weeding out of the undesirables.

The line-ups of both teams for this afternoon's fray is problematical, but it is very likely that the Tech High baseballers will start the game something like this: Captain Jordan will no doubt take his place behind the rubber, with Miles Lake or Lotspeich doing the hurling. "Lefty" Hodges will in all likelihood take care of the initial station, with either Dillingham or Abbott on second. Nolan Richardson will cavort over that portion of the diamond between second and third, while Johnson or Terrell will take a hand at holding down the hot corner. In the outer gardens, Harris, DeJarnette, Stewart and Ray Jordan will all be given a chance.

This game is a forerunner to the opening of the G. I. A. A. league, on Saturday next, when Tech High will play the Riverside Cadets at Piedmont park.

Every prep coach in the city took advantage of the real spring weather dished out by the weather man on Monday afternoon, as every team was hard at work for several hours. Some of the pitchers are now loosening up a little, and the coaches are allowing them to put a little more "stuff" on the ball each day. "Dubey" White was out Monday with the Boys' High candidates and was limbering up the old whip that last year made him one of the most valuable pitchers in the league.

Coach Roy Moran is swearing by Captain Bob Mooty, of the Peacock nine. Mooty was sending them across in great shape Monday, and Roy says he will be one of the leading pitchers in the league this season. He has all the attributes of a good pitcher, and should do wonders under the skilful tutelage of Coach Moran.

Tech High has two excellent moundsmen in "Lucky" Lake and Ed Miles. Both of these are very light to essay the pitcher's role, but both have all the required allotment of hooks and twisters with quite a lot of speed on the ball. On the shoulders of these two men will fall the burden of the Tech High hurling duties this season and they are expected to come through with flying colors.

Out at College Park, where the hopeful G. M. A. candidates are getting ready for the coming campaign, two pitchers are standing head and shoulders above the rest. These two are Sales and Denny. These two youths have shown themselves to be pitchers of worth, and Coach Tolbert is counting on them heavily to land his team in a high position this year.

Fans who want to see the prep teams at practice are not faced with any great difficulties, for Boys' High school, Tech High and Peacock are all doing their practicing at Piedmont park, at different corners of the huge oval.

C. MURPHY WITHDRAWS HIS INJUNCTION SUIT

Chicago, March 22.—Charles Webb Murphy, former owner of the Cubs, today withdrew the injunction suit in which he sought to prevent the National league from making a schedule for the 1920 season until he had obtained an accounting with the Chicago club for money alleged to be due him.

Murphy alleged that when the Cubs were purchased by Charles Weeghman and his associates, a 99-year lease on the old West Side park went with the team but that the new owners moved to the North Side Federal league park and have since failed to pay rent on the old grounds.

Morehouse Plays Game.

The baseball team of the Morehouse college will play the Atlanta Cubs this afternoon on the Morehouse campus. The college nine opened its season last Saturday by defeating Clark university. The game this afternoon will start at 3:30 and admission has been set at 35 cents.

Giants Break Camp

By BUGS BAER.

For Tour of Texas

San Antonio, Texas, March 22.—The panic is on! From now on McGraw's nomads will leap from burg to burg like ants on a hot rock. The Gypsy dream book will be their hotel guide, the wee-jee board will be their map. The hieroglyphics of the ancient Incas will be their time table. The lost tribe will wander seven times in seven days in the wilderness of celluloid collars and Fords, and then come forth upon New York, a land flowing in milk and honey, cream and wood alcohol, and manna and poisoned olives.

Seven months of peace will descend upon the land and into all the inhabitants thereof, broken only by sour decisions by Bill Klem. Bill and his automatic neck slid into San Antonio yesterday. William's neck piece is the barometer of his emotion. During moments of ease and luxury the Klem family collar reposes snugly within the loop of the Klem necktie. Upon the approach of hostile foot or hand the Klem collar button rattles with sinister warning.

The rattling continues while Bill's neck slowly inflates with the somber dignity of a top balloon. The apex of Bill's ferocity is reached when little goose pimples break out upon the trackless expanse of his gutta percha jowls, and his Adam's apple turns sour trying to cover so much territory. He seems to have acquired a new dignity as he thumps his prey toward the general direction of shower baths and a ten-dollar fine. With all danger over, the Klem tonsils slowly fold up into the shadows; the jugular tidal wave recedes, and the agile Adam's apple throbs gently with subdued emotion; the Klem neck waggles loosely in the socket like the rear wheels of a fliver, ready, at the first hostile movement, to spring forward and submerge the foe in a red flood of indignant crimson.

There was no cause yesterday for Bill to bloom in all his carmine glory; he was only in town to drum his interpretation of the new baseball rules into McGraw's gypsies. He gathered all the lads like a crow and held a buzz league in the mezzanine parlor. There was no hat-checking privilege—everything was on the up and up. Bill demonstrated that he was a mezzanine ump of the first mezz. The new Bertillion system of umpiring was interrupted by McGraw's pet wildcat, Step, and a Half-Mose was appointed tutor, mentor and chief mechanician to the tame wildcat.

But in Moses' bright lexicon of adolescent there is no such kind or hardware as a tame wildcat. Mose fed the gentle cat his first meal of milk and had his arm almost chewed off. As Mose doesn't resemble milk, he seems to think that the wildcat prefers ink. Step will grab the rest of his meals over the telephone. At present Mose is making a pair of pajamas for the civilized wild alley rabbit, who will travel in any Pullman berth that he picks out.

It is a very gentle creature and can amputate a finger with the loving tenderness and skill of an army surgeon. What could be sweeter? The educated wildcat will be used to guard the bat bag. Rumors from Jacksonville indicate that some scoundrel has injected a corroding sublimate into Babe Ruth's bags. This acid eats away the fine texture of the wood, making it very porous and subject to high hooks on the inside, or low outshoots. There will be no sabotage around while the domesticated wildcat is on the job. If the boys strike out here it will be on their own merits and without outside assistance.

Nobody was striking out much yesterday? It was the last practice in San Antonio for the regulars. The Yams stay behind while the visiting firemen tour Texas. A light practice and a heavy lunch were knocked off. There was only one spasm of baseball, the exercise being cancelled in order to allow the boys to pack their vanity cases. McGraw will establish his campaign headquarters in Dallas and trolley car the outfit to Fort Worth for today's game with the Red Sox.

The players who will be left in San Antonio are King, Armstrong, Burfiend, Bowen, McQuade, Garton, Snover, Barnes, Kinsella, Reynolds, Kelley, Johnson, the two Whites, Gonzales, Bates, Horie and Moyer. That's almost a league in itself. The rest of the works accompanies the wildcat to Fort Worth.

11TH INFANTRY WINS IN FIRST GORDON GAME

By FRANK L. METVER.

The 5th division baseball league of Camp Gordon was formerly opened Monday when the 11th infantry defeated the 6th infantry by the score of 8 to 0. The field was in fine condition, with the exception of a small space between second and third base, which had two or three inches of sand on its surface.

The 11th nine played an exceptionally good game, and Captain Chase, regimental coach, is more than pleased with the showing his team made in its first appearance. Taskowski, a husky doughboy, did the hurling for the 11th, and pitched a good game, having the best of control at all stages, and holding the 6th team to two hits. Besides his fast one, this boy has a spitter that looks good and when he delivers it properly he has his opponents at his mercy.

Parks, the 11th infantry catcher has a wing that is surely appealing to the baseball fan's eye. Throughout the game he had the few runners that did get to first hugging the initial sack. His arm has the appearance of being as quick as his eye. This man is as much in the game while his outfit is at the bat as he is when behind the slate. His stickwork today was the subject of much comment from all.

Sergeant Major Chitwood, of the 11th aggregation, played real ball throughout the game and in the first of the ninth knocked a home run with two men on bases. Chitwood is not entirely without a "rep," for he played fast semi-pro ball before his entry into the service, and while overseas was a helping hand to the 11th infantry team in that outfit's stay in the first division.

In the seventh inning, the 6th infantry came to bat with four runs piled up against them, and made one last effort to overcome the lead of their opponents. With two out and three men on, Hill, the star hurler of the 69th, made a long drive into deep center, which should have proved costly to the 11th but for a great play by Sergeant Major Radabush, who, after a long run back, made a sensational circus catch at his shoe tips, thereby nipping a would-be rally by the 6th infantry nine.

Hill and Young performed pretty well as the battery for the 6th, but the team support was lacking.

Today's game was the opener of the Red Diamond division's season and a game will be played every day at the camp athletic field between the various units that make up the circuit.

VANDY TRACK SQUAD HAS HARD SCHEDULE

Every Date Filled From Start of Season to Meet in Atlanta.

Nashville, Tenn., March 2.—(Special.)—With the Vanderbilt track team entering its fourth week of spring training Monday, arrangements have about been completed for a series of meets with southern college aggregations that will fill every date from the opening of the actual season until the finish of the relay at the annual S. I. A. A. classic, which will be held this year at Grant field, Atlanta, on May 15-16.

While all of the dates for the Vanderbilt track squad have not been finally settled, it is practically assured that the tentative schedule will be adhered to as now drawn. Coach Anderson is going to send his men against John Nicholson's crack bunch at Sewanee in a relay meet on April 10, in which the half-mile, mile, two-mile and four-mile events will be featured. On the following Saturday Vanderbilt will meet Kentucky State at Lexington, and on the two succeeding Saturdays in April will take on Rose Poly and Mississippi A. & M. unless present negotiations fall through.

Vanderbilt will meet Georgia at Nashville on May 1 and Tennessee on April 8. The latter meet is not yet settled, and in the event Tennessee and the Commodores do not come together on that date, Coach Anderson will take his men to Birmingham for the A. A. U. meet at that place. On Friday and Saturday, May 14-15, Vanderbilt will run in the annual southern classic at Atlanta.

Lawler and Valger Primed for Action In Big Bout Tonight

BY GENE HINTON

The hour is drawing nigh for the biggest fight event of the year, when Benny Valger, the highly touted "French Flash," of New York, and Jack Lawler, of Omaha, tie up in a ten-round engagement at the Auditorium. The scrap is scheduled to take place at 8:30 o'clock tonight, and a decision is to be rendered by Promoter-Referee McDonald, who as the third man in the ring has proved his worth on more occasions than one.

Both scrappers have arrived in the city, pronounced themselves to be in first-class condition, and Monday afternoon went through light workouts for the bout.

Tonight will be the first opportunity for Valger to show his far-famed wares before a southern audience, and he is going to work hard from the first tap of the bell to live up to the glowing praise that has been showered upon him from all quarters. From a glance at his record, it is easy to see the source of all the admiration that the little French boy has excited in the east.

Valger has taken on the top-notchers in the featherweight division in their turn and has licked them very neatly to the satisfaction of all concerned, including said top-notchers. Not stopping at merely licking "top-notchers," however, Valger has tried his hand on three of the so-called champions, and his efforts in this direction have been crowned with great success. First Joie Ray, the British champion, fell before the superior skill and hitting power of the French boy, being completely outpointed and all but knocked out in a bout some months ago.

Then Jimmy Hill, the Australian lightweight and featherweight champion, noted for his ruggedness and cleverness, was knocked out in

Watch the Little Pimples; They Are Nature's Warning

Unsightly and Disfiguring Signals of Bad Blood.

Don't close your eyes to the warning which nature gives, when unsightly pimples appear on your face and other parts of the body.

Not only are these pimples and splotches disfiguring, but they lead to serious skin diseases that spread and cause the most discomforting irritation and pain. Sometimes they foretell Eczema, boils, blisters, scaly eruptions and other annoyances that burn like flames of fire, and make you feel that your skin is ablaze.

When these symptoms appear on any part of the body, take prompt steps to rid the blood of these disorders. And the one remedy which has no equal as a blood cleanser is S. S. S., the purely vegetable blood medicine, which has been on the market for more than fifty years. It is sold by druggists everywhere.

If you are afflicted with any form of skin disease do not expect to be cured by lotions, ointments, salves and other local remedies, as they cannot possibly reach the source of the trouble, which is in the blood. Begin taking S. S. S. today, and write a complete history of your case to our chief medical advisor, who will give you special instructions, without charge. TECH MERMEN WORKING FOR CLEMSON MEET

By Keller Melton.

Captain Weiss, of the Georgia Tech swimming team, is putting his proteges through a hard week's work in preparation for the opening meet that is scheduled to come off on next Saturday night at the city W. M. C. A.

Manager Bob Scott announced that at the present time it looks as though the Gold and White team will have an opponent on hand for the night of March 27. The scheduled meet was between Tech and Clemson but due to the rebellion instigated by Clemson students some days back the probability of the Clemson Tiger putting in its appearance on that date became small. However, the affairs up at the Orange and Blue institution seem to be taking such a turn that would allow the Tiger to be on hand.

In addition to the possibility of Clemsons being able to appear in Atlanta on next Saturday, Manager Scott has opened negotiations with the University of Kentucky, and while up to the present no definite arrangements have been made with the Kentucky authorities, Manager Scott is confident that one or the other of these two meets will go through, and that the Gold and White swimmers will be called upon to live up to the splendid record made by the tank team of 1919.

With the probability of facing either of such foes as Kentucky or Clemson at such an early date, Captain Weiss and ex-Captain Gibby Fraser have doubled the work of the squad. While Weiss, Fraser, and Scott are the only three letter men from last year Tech has an abundance of promising material from the freshman class, that bids fair to be heard from before the end of the season.

During the first part of the training each swimmer was required to swim from ten to twenty lengths of the pool at a slow pace while either Weiss, Fraser, or Scott looked on to correct any defects in the technique of the swimmers. As the season drew nearer this was done away with and the prictices at the present are devoted almost entirely to the development of speed.

Two Famous Georgians On Tonight's Program

On our left we have Mike Cantwell, one of the most humorous characters that ever stepped between the ropes. He will meet Hume McDonald tonight in a "grudge" fight for four rounds, the winner to be acclaimed as the "middleaged" champion of the South.

On the right we have none other than the great Tyrus Raymond Cobb, the king of ballplayers and a prince of a fellow. Cobb is going to act as referee in one of the bouts tonight at the Auditorium. Cobb and Cantwell are great friends, and Cantwell is now teaching Ty's little sons the elements of the manly art of self-defense.

How to Dope Strength Of Big League Teams

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

Nineteen-twenty promises to be the biggest and the most sensational baseball season in history. With factional fights, with reformed rules, with umpires armed with more power than ever before, with players dissatisfied and unsettled conditions existing almost everywhere, the season is certain to bring many quick changes. All this will add to the uncertainty and the interest in the major league races—but it fails to add to the comfort of the dopester.

Doping has been a hard and rather unsatisfactory task since the war started. Year before last, just when the dope seemed to be working out well, the "work-or-fight" order and the rush of players to shipyards and the ranks upset everything—and the two teams which managed longest to maintain broken ranks won.

Last year we figured without certainty of when the players who were in France would get back to the task, and when they did come back we discovered that, in many cases, the dope figures were entirely wrong, because the men had changed so much in condition. Toward the end of the season after these regained the form they had shown before going to work and war, they justified the dope figures.

As a matter of fact these worked out fairly well last season, in spite of the demoralization and rout of Boston, and the unexpected consistency of the Cincinnati Reds.

Then the world's series shot the dope all to pieces. There never have been two teams in a world's series (with one exception) in which one outclassed the other as much as in the last series, and the team that was outclassed won. The winners played almost up to their season's form, hustled and fought all the way, and the losers played far below their form.

The condition that confronts us in doping this spring is as bad as it has been for the last two years. In the first place, the dissatisfaction among players is unprecedented and the number of holdouts, of retirements, and the uncertainty as to the final line-up of teams, is greater than ever before.

The teams will not be up to standard even of last year until late May, and even at their best, their strength will be more than 5 per cent under the normal strength of major league outfits prior to 1917. Very few good players have been developed in the last three years, so that, while the outlook for attendance, for receipts, and for bitter contests is improved, the major leagues, from a purely playing standpoint, are weak.

The commercialization of the sport during recent years has affected the playing end of the game greatly, and the major leagues have not been able to stand prosperity. This applies as well to owners as to players, but since the greed for money spread to the athletes the quality of play and the earnestness of effort put forth have been reduced. Much as we may regret this change, it is here, and we must reckon with it.

The object of the dope in baseball is to find out which team ought to win, and where they should finish. Dope in baseball is the throwing away of prejudice and the recourse to pure mathematics to discover the strength of individuals and of teams. To do this one must rely upon, and baseball his dope upon, the official figures of the preceding season, but must not rely altogether upon those figures.

For instance, if a player has hit .225 for two or three years and suddenly jumped into the .300 class for one season, it is not logical to figure him a .300 hitter. Nor should one figure that, because a pitcher won 14 and lost 3 games last year, he will repeat the performance for the present season. Rather, one must study the percentage of hits per game made against him and the hits his own teams made behind him.

I have figured out a system of dope which, I believe, is very close to correct. It is based entirely upon official figures, and this dope merely applies them to probabilities. In some cases one is compelled to discount the figures because of known conditions.

It is probable that if we figure solely on last year's records of the Chicago White Sox we would be compelled to dope them as again winners of the American league pennant. But we know two things about the White Sox—first, that they hit harder last year than they ever will do again, because they broke records for team hitting. Second, we are certain that internal discord, due to the scandals and suspicious of the series, is certain to hurt the work of individuals and of the team.

I figured last fall, after the accusations and open charges, that Comiskey would be compelled to chase at least five, and perhaps seven or eight, players off the team. I did not charge that these men were guilty of any wrong doing, but they form the faction about which rumors were circulated, and, after the stormy scenes in the clubhouse and elsewhere during the series, it would seem better to sell, trade or release the entire faction than to try to win with a team divided against itself.

Just how much the haggling and scandals will hurt individuals is hard to figure, but we must discount their last season's figures to some extent.

To get at the real dope one must study each man in his position. Each position has its value in defensive work. It is ridiculous to think that a third baseman with an average of three chances per game, is as important as a pitcher. In attacks, of course, each player has the same opportunities. And theoretically each is equal.

My system is this: I have figured from studying the records for more than twenty years that the attacking part of the game—batting, waiting for bases, sacrifice hitting, base-running, etc., constitutes 64 per cent of the strength of the team, and that defensive work is 36 per cent. In a "no-hit, no-run" game the defensive, of course, would be 160 per cent, but we must deal entirely with averages.

Of the defensive strength the pitcher, of course, is the greatest element, and each other position has its value. I have worked out a table of position values, based not only upon the number of chances, but the importance of the chances of each position. In this, pitching is 36 per cent, catcher 14, first base 8 1-2, second 10 1-2, short 9 1-2, third 5, left 5, center 6 1-2 and right 5.

That is, the pitcher, on the average, is one-ninth of the attacking of his team or one-ninth of 64 plus, and in defensive is 36 per cent, or approximately 13 per cent of the entire team strength, the values of the others being in ratio, and their total importance being their position strength in defensive work plus their individual attacking strength.

Now, if the average batter is 7 (one-ninth of the total attacking value) what is Cobb? If the average pitcher is 13, what is Johnson? You can figure it as well as I, if you have the patience and the time.

Instead of using 7 or 13, I use 700 and 1,300 since it makes no difference so long as we maintain the ratio and it makes it easier to show slight differences of value.

LAWLER AND VALGER PRIMED FOR ACTION

five or six rounds by the clever Valger, and last but not least Johnny Kilbane, the champion of the world, in a recent bout in Newark was forced to bow before Benny. The latter outpointed the champion all the way, so the newspapers said, and had the titleholder groggy on more occasions than one.

This is a very impressive record, and one that would make a less courageous boy that Jack Lawler stop and consider before launching on such a bout. Records never had any terrors for Lawler, however. As records go, the little Omaha boy by all rights should have been outclassed in every department of the game when he fought Johnny Dundee, the famous little "Scotch Wop," of New York. Instead of giving way before the remarkable skill and cleverness exhibited by the little Italian, Lawler gave Dundee back to him with interest, all the punches he was forced to take during the progress of that great bout. He fought an even fight all the way, and was justly entitled to the decision of a draw that Referee McDonald gave.

Each boy looks on the other as a stone that lies in his path to the title, and each is imbued with the thought that that same stone must be removed at all hazards. Valger is striving with might and main to get Kilbane into the ring in a decision fight, and before this can be accompilished, Jack Lawler must be put out of the way. A decisive defeat of Lawler will give Valger a much greater chance of a finish bout with Kilbane, while a defeat by the Omaha boy would make that same bout all the most distant.

Star in Ascension.

Lawler's star is in the ascension, and a defeat over Valger would help him more than words can tell in his struggle upward. Jack is now recognized as one of the best featherweights in the country, and a defeat at this stage of the game would be a serious blow to his prestige.

Although Valger carries a terrific blow in either hand, it will take something more than an ordinary punch to send Jack Lawler out for the count. He is tough and rugged, and he can assimilate a lot of punishment. Being young, he has great recuperative powers, although he has never been called upon to exhibit them in an Atlanta ring.

J. Hume McDonald, promoting the Tuesday night card, arrived in Atlanta yesterday from Augusta, and he announced that Mike Cantrell and Ty Cobb would arrive in the city this morning for the bout. Cobb does not court publicity, and it was only after great persuasion on the part of Cantwell that he finally agreed to act as the third man in the ring tonight.

Widely Known Georgian.

Tyrus Raymond Cobb is probably the most widely known Georgian in the world today, but many people in this city have never so much as laid eyes on him, strange as it may seem. Cobb as referee will be quite an innovation, as few people can connect the great batsman with anything but the old willow that made his very name a source of terror to all opposing pitchers. He will be enacting a new role, and as he knows a lot about the game, he is expected to come through in fine style.

Mike Cantwell, who is a great "buddy" of Cobb's, will essay a "comeback" and will don the gloves with McDonald. Some eight years or so ago, Cantwell, as a heavyweight, was making a bid for fame, and has quite an impressive record. McDonald was once light-heavyweight champion of South Africa, and bows to none in science with the mitts. Without hurting one another, these two "once greats" can put up a great exhibition of that game called boxing, and the four-round bout is sure to be a scream.

An excellent card of preliminaries has been arranged by "Mac" and tickets for the bout are on sale at Chess' Place, the Rex poolroom and Silverman's lunch room.

Hare's Motors and the Men Who Manage It

IN every industry and in every prominent business organization there are men of broad vision and keen human sympathy—the two prime requisites of sound business progress.

Usually such men are scattered—not grouped. Where they are found together the momentum of their enterprise sweeps everything before it.

The automotive industry has its full share of such men, but, as in all other lines, to find them in combination is rare.

Most organizations just happen, in a sense. Men are found as needs develop and tried out in the positions to which they seem to be suited—yet the annual turnover of business executives is eloquent proof that square plugs in round holes are rather the rule than the exception.

The Hare's Motors organization did not grow that way. The men who compose it had tested each other's minds and hearts beforehand. They came together because they were congenial—because each recognized in the other that breadth of outlook and that interest in other men which to every one of the group were the elements underlying his judgment of his fellows.

Naturally the momentum is tremendous. The human material has all been proven in advance. There is no costly waste in the discovering of misfits, and the Companies operated by Hare's Motors move forward with that assurance as to their management which guarantees the wisdom of their policies and the soundness of their products.

New York, March 22.—The feature in the cotton market today was the continued covering of old crop months. There was March for sale earl yat 40.40, but the s mall offerings were soon absorbed and the price was forced up to 41.70 in the late trading, making a net advance of 135 points, and a new high record.

Other months were influenced by the strength of the spot position and also made new high ground, with May selling at 38.49 and closing at 38.40. The general list closed firm at a net advance of 37 to 135 points.

There was some selling at the start owing to relatively weak cables, the easy early ruling of exchange and the long-range forecast for better weather in the south. First prices were 15 points lower to 8 points higher, with May and later deliveries selling about 6 to 15 points below Saturday's closing figures during the first few minutss.

Th eevident stength of the March position soon checked selling of the later deliveries, particularly in view of less favorable daily weather forecasts than expected and the market turned firmer. Trade interests were among the buyers, particularly in the case of July, and that delivery led the advance in the more active positions, selling up to 35.85, or 75 points net higher in the late trading. October sold at 32.63, or 52 points above Saturday's close, and last prices were only a few points off from the best.

It was rumored that the liquidation of one of the largest long lines of March contracts was completed on the early advance to 40.44, but other longs were evidently holding for higher prices, and shorts found it necessary to advance their bids to secure a comparatively small supply of contracts.

Private cables said the weakness in Liverpool was due to hedge-selling and liquidation.

NEW ORLEANS MARKET HIGHER FROM OPENING

New Orleans, March 22.—Except for a short period around the opening, the cotton market today had a firm undertone and a strong tendency to advance. Heaviest buying came late in the day, when the trading months were 37 to 70 points higher than Saturday's final prices. The close was 30 to 37 points up.

A good part of the buying came from shorts who were nervous over the demonstrations theratened by the long side in the near months, but there was also buying on complaints of a great shortage of labor in the belt and of continued delay to new crop preparations.

The market opened lower under poor cables, the unfavorable German news and a good weather map, clear and dry weather being reported over the belt generally. At losses of 6 to 21 points, the selling movement was arrested, partly by the demand from shorts, who wanted to realize profits, and partly by new buyers on the long side.

The initial loss was recovered and replaced by net gais of 10 to 25 points, which by noon were widened to 25 to 38 points. Realizing by longs caused narrow recessions for a while, but later the export movement for the day of 56,507 bales, against 16,030 this day last year, brought in new buying, which sent values to new high levels.

PROFESSIONAL VIEWS ON COTTON SITUATION

New York, March 22.—(Special)—A further advance took place in our market today under the influence of the strength in the near positions and the buying of May and July by a prominent spot house. Weather conditions in the south are very much more favorable and clearing and warmer weather prevails generally throughout the belt. It was without effect, however, on values. So long as this accumulation of the near positions continues, a further advance may be expected, but the market is rapidly reaching a point where a very sharp decline might take place at any moment should the support to the near months be withdrawn.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.

New York, March 22.—(Special.)—Cotton continues to respond to the strength of the actual. March contracts made new high levels, with a further advance foreshadowed. While reactions may come at any time we favor a policy of buying on all good setbacks. MOSS & FERGUSON.

New York, March 22.—(Special.)—The trade has been a large buyer of the near positions for some weeks past and their sudden support today occasioned an advance. New speculative buying is going mostly into new crop deliveries. Exports of 58,000 were reported today and there are possibilities of further large shipments from now on should foreign exchange rates advance. The tone of the market was firm throughout the entire day and the trend looks upward, with southern holders expecting a further rally.

J. W. JAY & CO.

New Orleans, March 22.—(Special.)—An active bull market developed in cotton today and prices were carried to materially higher levels. The opening was lower on selling, encouraged by a good weather map and the poor German news, but heavy buying soon set in and it revealed an unsuspected shortage of contracts to work on. The main things back of the buying were the continued unfavorable new crop outlook and bullish expectations regarding the outcome of the near months. Sentiment is now more bullish than it has been for several weeks past.

DUGGAN & BOUDEN.

New Orleans, March 22.—(Special.)—Sentiment around the local ring was more or less bearish early today on a disappointing Liverpool, more favorable weather conditions over the belt as a whole and reports from Houston and Dallas that spots were passing for sale there. All offerings were well absorbed, however, and this afternoon the market developed pronounced strength in sympathy with a squeeze in the near positions in the New York market. A report that a resolution had been introduced in the senate to declare peace with Germany also stimulated buying at the higher levels, July contracts advancing to 35.00 and October to 32.31 on the close. With weather conditions over the belt improving and with the spot situation apparently easier in the interior, we doubt if the advance can be carried much further for the time being. As soon as the shorts in the near positions in New York have covered the market may have a decided reaction. NORMAN MAYER & CO.

New York, March 22.—(Special.)—The market opened lower this morning, influenced no doubt by a lower Liverpool market, but trade buying continued and there was a noticeable scarcity of contracts, with the result that once more new high records have been registered, with but a few days left for trading in March contracts. Considerable more nervousness was displayed by March shorts, with this month being the future closing, at its high point of 41.70. Present indications are for continuance for the upward tendency, although we advise extreme caution because of the possibility that as trading ceases on Thursday in March contracts, the sustaining influence of the spot month may not be so apparent and may bring about liquidations.

JOHNSTON BROS.

New York, March 22.—(Special.)—The market opened this morning with general sentiment reactionary, and the local crowd supplied the demand from Liverpool and southern sources. They repented the action shortly, however. Buying became quite general later in the day, coincident with an apparent scarcity of contracts. It is remarkable that such a steady advance as has recently been witnessed should have been attended with so little setback under liquidation, but the policy of waiting for a good reaction has caused many people to purchase at higher figures than were originally in mind.

SPECIAL ISSUES DOMINATE STOCKS

New York, March 22.—Encouraged by the improved showing of the federal reserre banks and other advices over the week-end, which reported increased activity in many lines of industry, pools today resumed their bullish operations in the stock market.

Professional interests were assisted by an appreciable revival of public participaion. Buying from that quarter concentrated in steels, equipments and numerous specialties, which have yet to act on the recent decision of the supreme court respecting stock dividends.

Trading was not so large in the aggregate as that of last Thursday, when total transactions approximated 2,000,000 shares, but was characterized by greater scope and price changes covered a wider range.

General Motrs again monopolized attention during thefrist hal fof the session, rising 29 points, to the new high leel of 409, declining to 363 before noon, rallying 15 points and ending at a loss of 6½ points.

Stutz Motor, at an 8-point gain to the new maximum of 228, was another outstanding feature, also; Crucible Steel at an advance of 12½ points, Baldwin Locomotive, Texas Compauy and Mexivan Petroleum, in which gross gains of 8 to 10 points were registered.

Trailing along with these leaders were other motors, their specialties, numerous secondary oils, equipments and steels, including Superior Steel, which rose almost five points on an increased dividend declaration.

Shippings, coppers, tobaccos, leathers and various unclassified specialties made up the balance of the trading, but rails were comparatively dull at slight changes. Extreme points at the end of the hardening advances were shaded by 1 to 6 of call money from 7 to 9 per cent.

The bond market was irregular within contracted limits. Liberty issues showing no marked alteration. Total sales, par value, aggregated $12,775,000. Old United States bonds were unchanged on call.

CURB SECURITIES

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1920.)

New York, March 22.—Although a generally strong undertone existed in the market for curb securities today at times it was highly irregular. In the early part of the session prices moved forward rapidly under heavy buying, but stiff opposition developed around mid-day and the upward march of prices ended as abruptly as it started. During the rest of the day, trading was professional and while buying continued on a large scale in some quarters there was a considerable pressure, which caused a mixed tone.

Few Selected Issues In Violent Movement

New York, March 22.—Wall street experienced another day of violent price movements in a few selected issues, the wide changes registered in these having no relation to the day's news. Motor stocks, led by General Motors, were carried through a series of advances and declines which at the end left the list highly irregular, but with some showing material gains over the closing levels of Saturday. It was a session given over almost entirely to professional operations, the manipulative tactics employed showing themeselves at all times.

General Motors was the feature at the opening, with quotations running up to a new high of 409. About the time this top figure was reached the stock exchange committee on securities ruled that ten shares of temporary certificates would be a delivery for one share of the old stock. This served to put heart into the bear element, which had suffered heavily in the quick run-up on Saturday and early today. They started selling stock again and broke it from its high to about 390 in a comparatively short time. Further selling set in at this level, resulting in additional sharp breaks carrying the price down to a low of 363. At the close some moderate recovery was seen, but the stock closed off 6½ points for the day.

The Motor Shares.

The manner in which the General Motors shares gave way caused some concern among traders who had been following the rising prices. Many of these reversed their position and sold stocks. Stutz, Chandler and Studebaker, all of which had made new high records early in the day, were under pressure in the late trading and surrendered all of a large part of this improvement. Oil stocks played a conspicuous part in the dealings, Mexican Petroleum advancing rapidly when stop-loss orders of shorts were encountered around 198. Steel shares came into prominence around the middle of the afternoon, but "rails" and the more seasoned of the industrials were not disposed to take part, ending the day with irregular changes.

Wall Street Gossip.

A part of the late selling of stocks today was due to the higher rates demanded for call loans. After opening at 7 per cent, an advance to 8 and then 9 per cent was reported. This is the highest level since Tuesday of last week. It could hardly be said, however, that the marking up of rates was in any way a surprise, in view of the statement of the Clearing House association on Saturday and the corrected version of the federal reserve bank statement issued today.

According to this corrected report, the position of the bank was not as favorable as was made to appear from the figures given out on Saturday. Instead of an increase in the ratio of reserves, there was actually a decrease. Saturday's statement showed a loss in gold of $16,000,000, while as a matter of fact the bank lost $31,000,000. And the ratio of reserve decreased from 38 per cent to 37.2 per cent.

No Ease in Loans.

There was no easing up in the time loan market, rates being entirely nominal at 8 to 8½ per cent for all perlods, irrespective of collateral. There is nothing to show that the banks are not disposed to continue to keep their funds liquid, so far as Well street is concerned. The demand for financial accommodation is unabated, particularly in the west and northwest, and the opinion is expressed that any credit released on merchandise, manufacturing and general business accounts will be absorbed for crop requirements and railroad financing. There is always a rising inquiry for money at this time of the year preliminary to crop requirements.

Copper stocks, while not particularly active in today's trading, maintained a steady tone throughout. Explanation for this is probably found in the fact that representatives of large copper companies have been d scussing plans for extension of credit to foreign consumers. Some of these are reported as saying that the plan is still in its early stages and in all probability will take some time to work out. Large banking houses have been approached on the subject, not so much with the idea of their participating or becoming members of a finance corporation which it is proposed to form, but to determine whether they could consent to loan sufficient funds on bills receivable and other paper of a new company.

In U. S. or Canadian Money.

In view of the heavy discount which has been running on Canadian exchange in this market, the point has been raised whether American holders of Canadian securities receive their interest and dividends in United States money or in Canadian money. This depends on whether the issues of Canadian corporations are registered or listed in the United States. The ordinary Canadian corporation, with practically no market for its securities here, makes no provision for such of their security holders as happen to be in the United States. But it is a condition of the listing of foreign securities on the New York exchange and their registration there that interest and dividends must be paid in New York funds.

WALL STREET JOURNAL ON COTTON SITUATION

"Four-cent cotton is with us, and after touching that line the March option has continued to make new high records. There is enough in the situation to warrant close attention to the May option, as well as the new crop months, which are selling at a considerable discount.

"Experienced traders expected the news of the German revolution would upset the market. But this week March cotton went up to a record. It could not do this without some substantial reason.

"Our domestic consumption is larger this season than last; so also are the exports. Domestic consumption and exports together have, in the first seven months of this season, taken 25 per cent more cotton than last year. Total in mill stocks and warehouse supplies is much smaller than a year ago; the expected shrinkage in exports has not materialized, and even last week's shipments were 50 per cent larger than in 1919.

"Even if the German people had the will and means for further mischief, it must be remembered that there is an allied army of occupation. The commodity and securities tickers indicate confidence. Loss of exports to Germany has been mentioned as a result of an upheaval there. But thus far this season direct exports of cotton to Germany have been but 206,000 bales, against a total of 4,440,000. Not Germany, but England, France, Italy and Japan are taking the cotton in increasing quantities.

"Then there are the statistical situation and the new crop outlook to be considered. Seven months of the crop season have gone by and in it we have consumed and exported almost 75 per cent of last year's production. The surplus of old cotton at the beginning of the year was smaller than the year before. When the new crop season begins the surplus will be still less. Every indication points to a late planting this year, and the supply of labor is below requirements.

"No one in his senses would predict the size of the new crop at this time, but any one can see that there will be great need for large production, and the early indications are not favorable. For these reasons, May and the new crop months should not be overlooked while watching the March advance."

Nationalism Holds Sway; Governments Are Rapped

Startling Facts Disclosed Lately Through Watching Developments in All Parts of the World--Two Big Factors Said to Reign Absolutely.

By Carl W. Ackerman.
(The Constitution—London Times — Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1920.)

London, March 22.—In the last few days I have been watching developments in alll parts of the world, and a careful analysis of dispatches to the European press discloses two startling facts.

One is that nationalism has become the ruling passion of public opinion, which I shall establish by citing developments in twenty parts of the world.

The second is that people in nearly every civilized country are eitherr in open revolt against their governments or are bitterly denouncing or criticising the present governments or administrations.

These facts indicate that public opinion has lost confidence in the governments, has lost faith in the possibilities of international co-operation, and however much the peoples and nations of the world may have longed for a league of nations a year ago, there is no denying the statement that today the league of nations is faced with such gigantic tasks that it is doubtful whether it now can be successful.

Not After Alarm.

My intention is not to excite alarm in the present condition of the world's nerves. Alarms are neither effective nor convincing. The public demands only action, and if it cannot get action by governments, it is going to take matters into its own hands. Europe generally believes that public opinion in the United States favors the league, but it holds our government and politicians to count, just as public opinion here holds the government to account for domestic as well as international action.

This is true in Germany as in England, the only difference being that in Germany the clash already has occurred, while in England, Lloyd-George is preparing for a conflict by endeavoring to form a new party to regain public confidence.

Evidence to support my statements that nationalism and opposition to governments are the two chief factors in conditions today follows:

Evidence Established.

First—At present sovieteers are striving for power in Germany, Poland, Rumania, Austria, France, Italy, India, Persia, Japan and the Baltic provinces. In some countries, such as Germany, the conflict has taken the form of an armed fight. In Rumania and Poland the contest still it political, as it is in France and Italy.

Second—As an aftermath of the world war, allied troops or armies of one or more of the powers still are engaged in warfare or in military occupation in Turkey, South Russia, Siberia, Fiume, Palestine, Africa, Korea, China, Syria and Bulgaria.

Third—Twenty chief world centers where the nationalism is evident or where the government is being attacked are:

One—Rioting in Alexandria.

Two—A meeting of the legislative assembly in Cairo, prohibited by Lord Allenby, as a sequel to a recent meeting of fifty-two out of seventy-four members at the home of Zaghloul Pasha, leader of the nationalists, where resolutions were passed for Egyptian independenec.

Three—Internal difficulties in Holland, caused by incompetent officials and the ex-kaiser.

Fourth—Elections in South Africa. The latest reports give the republican or nationalist party fifty-six seats, as against Smuts' party, forty-two.

Seventh—Poland as a new state, while struggling to solidify the nationalist spirit, is torn between accepting or rejecting the soviet peace offer.

Eighth—Elections in Czecho-Slovakia in April will be strongly influenced by present developments in central Europe.

Ninth—Ireland is an armed camp, the nationalists opposing the empire's policy.

Tenth—Allied troops still are in Siberia, although the influence of the nationalist sentiment in America, Japan and Czecho-Slovakia has forced those governments to recall their troops.

Eleventh—D'Annunzio threatens the Fiume republic with the "borders of the Corpus Separatum."

Twelfth—Austria literally is wasting away because nationalist spirit in all countries is so dominant no government can even come to the rescue of hungering Austrians.

Fifteenth—It increases in Persia.

Nineteenth—In Canada the nationalist movement takes the form of demanding a Canadian minister to Washington and a greater role in the empire, and last but of more importance, nationalist sentiment in the United States, in Europe's opinion, is strong enough to defeat the peace treaty and block the endeavors of America to take part in European affairs. To this might be added the strong nationalist feeling in England and France which often comes up when questions of allied co-operation are under discussion by the supreme council.

Revolution Oil on Fire.

The German revolution is oil upon these struggling fires of nationalism, and for the moment virtually all endeavors which were under way and all efforts were being made toward reconstruction have stopped. The revolution has called a halt to all European co-operation. The peoples of all countries, including England, are watching developments to see whether the German revolution of action as opposed to a revolution of politics is successful.

The London labor organ, The Daily Herald, says:

"The allied governments, as soon as they realize what is happening in Germany, will rally to the support of the old German order, as they did to the support of czarism. It is the duty of the British to see that they are not allowed to do such things. There must be no repetition of the shameful story of our dealings with Russia."

The peoples of the world demand action from their governments. They demand revolutions in politics, domestic and international. If there are not political revolutions there will be revolutions of direct action. Today the race is between the two. The reason Europe looks to America for guidance is if America, even at this late hour, should cast her vote in favor of a revolution in international politics, which the league of nations is, America's decision will go a long way toward making such a world politically unsuccessful. But if America decides against the league in favor of a strong nationalist policy, these countries will continue their mad rush toward nationalist experiments.

It is a gamble at this late hour whether even America could turn the tide toward international cooperation. Today is the eleventh hour. By November or March, when the new president takes office, it may be too late.

Immigration From Next Door

The constant state of revolution in Mexico during the past few years has brought perhaps three million Mexicans into the United States. In social position they range from illiterate cholos or laborers to wealthy refugees.

As to religion, most of them have none. They have cut loose from the Roman Catholic church or have become indifferent to its teachings, and removal from their native environment has completed the separation. Now many of them are open to any new teaching which may come to them—infidelity, I. W. W.ism or what not. While they have no particular inclination to Protestantism, they have no prejudice against evangelical mission work, especially if this work comes through some established community agency.

The immigrant Mexicans are social and are easily reached through any channel which promises friendly intercourse whether it be political, musical or religious.—World Outlook.

A student was up for his examination for medical service in the navy. The admiral beamed upon him genially and proceeded to question him.

"Which do you regard as the three finest British sailors?" he demanded at length.

AMUSEMENTS

Neil O'Brien Minstrels.

(At the Atlanta.)

"Sugarfoot" Gaffney, Georgia's own minstrel comedian, told the audience at the Atlanta theater last night the latest slang term for the modern girl. He declares that "chicken" is obsolete. "Easter eggs" is what they are, says "Sugarfoot." All painted up and hard-boiled.

Neil O'Brien's minstrels appeared last night for their second local engagement during the present season. They will be here for the first half of this week, wit hthe customary Wednesday matinee.

With few exceptions, the show is unchanged since its last appearance here. The exceptions include a few new jokes, several new song numbers, and, most important of all, a big improvement throughout.

The O'Brien minstrels this year form a splendid illustration of the value of constant practice and teamwork in things theatrical. When they appeared earlier in the season, there was something very important lacking and the performance as a whole did not stack up at all with what was expected of it. About the only way to explain it was to blame it all on the absence of O'Brien himself from the list of performers. But last night the story was very different. O'Brien is still among the missing, but that something has happened to the show is apparent to any one.

It was the same, yet it went with a snap and a punch with a precision and a smoothness that made it a really top-notch minstrel show for this visit, instead of the disappointing thing it was last time. Wherein lies the difference I can't tell you. But it is unmistakably there.

The list of performers is exactly the same. There is, as mentioned, "Sugarfoot" Gaffney, Bert Swor, Dan Fitch, Bobby Gossans, Frank Quinn, Richard Flournoy, Lee Laird, J. Lester Haberkorn, John Worland, James B. Isbell, Jame Barardi and others. Mostly the songs were the same. There was "Room 202," "Hang Your Hat in a Dixie Town," "I Can Make Tame Women Wild," "Take Your Time," "Wonderful Mother of Mine," "When It's Honeysuckle Hime," "The Heart of a Fool," "Oh, What a Pal Was Mary," etc.

The second part features are identical.

And yet—it is a far, far different show. This time it's as good as we expect an O'Brien show to be. Which is a-plenty.

RALPH T. JONES.

Superior Vaudeville.

(At B. F. Keith's Lyric.)

If you like jazz—and the odds are a hundred to one that whatever opinion youll express publicly you'll find a rare treat in the Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday bill of Keith valudeville at the Lyric.

Vaudevilles prize jazz act is the headliner, with pretty Eva Shirley as the principal star. Miss Shirley, who is a singer of note, is assisted by Fid Gordon's musical boys, who are as versatile music fiends as they make and then some. The act is a winner in every particular, not only because of its songs and music, but also because of the unusual dancing by Al Roth.

Well worth while are all four supporting acts. "Bubbleland" is a novelty extraordinary, offered by Ollie Young and April, in which bubbles literally fill the big stage.

Chabot and Dixon offer one of the cleverest bits of travesty with music the Lyric has presented in some time. There's a splendid bit of comedy by Tim Kirby, Joe Quinn and Lina Anger, the latter, by the way, an extremely pretty girl with extremely stunning clothes. Still another act is that of Dixon, Bowers and Dixon, a rube turn that won an abundance of applause.

(At the Tudor.)

"Choosing a Wife," the unusual feature at the Tudor theater this week, proved to Tudor patrons Monday that it is a picture every young man and woman should see before they get married. "Is it better to be an elderly woman's darling or a young girl's slave?" That is one of the questions answered in "Choosing a Wife," as it portrays, in a succession of emotional scenes, the battle between a man who has proposed to a woman past thirty, when all the time he believed he was wooing her niece. Besides its scenes of domestic problems and its love episodes, "Choosing a Wife" is a vivid romance of adventure in the South seas. The hero is a famous English explorer who starts on a journey into the heart of the unknown and sends a letter proposing marriage to the girl of his heart just before he leaves. When he returns from his wanderings he finds, to his amazement, that the wrong woman got the letter. The climax of the picture is a surprise, with a real punch to it.

"Going Up."

Ever since "Going Up" was presented in Atlanta and enjoyed by some of the largest audiences ever assembled at the Atlanta theater, its song hits, such as "Tickly Toe," "If You Look in Her Eyes," "The Touch of a Woman's Hand," "Do It for Me," and several others, have been hummed and whistled in every corner of the city. It may be said without fear of contradiction that no musical comedy that ever visited Atlanta brought with it so many tuneful numbers.

"Going Up" is scheduled for a return engagement covering three nights and Saturday matinee, beginning next Thursday night, and unless all signs fail, there will be another rush to purchase seats to witness a really delightful entertainment. It may be confidently counted that so far as concerns production, cast and chorus, every detail has been looked after in order that a wholly satisfying performance is assured. Seats go on sale this morning.

Guy Bates Post.

Guy Bates Post needs no introduction to the playgoers of America. As an actor of brilliance, magnetism and human emotions he has always kept faith with his public, being rated and respected as the foremost player of this generation. His last transcontinental tour was in "Omar," and any of the many who were so fortunate as to see his really wonderful performance of the well-known classic will ever cherish that memory.

In startling contrast to his "Omar" is his present success, "The Masquerader." Mr. Richard Walton Tully, who gave us "Omar," also produced this latest success, and a wider differentiation could not have been found. It is difficult to imagine what the dual role so deftly and intelligently handled by Mr. Post would be in the hands of a less accomplished actor.

Mr. Post's pre-eminence contributes to his wonderful impersonations in "The Masquerader," and plainly points to the shoulders whereon the mantle of the late Richard Mansfield has fallen. It is a credit to his high talents as an actor that playgores have gone to see him time and again in this success. The company and production so successfully received in the eastern cities, as well as Australia, will appear at the Atlanta theater for an engagement of four nights, with Wednesday matinee, commencing Monday night, March 29. Mail orders are now being received. Seats go on sale Friday morning.

"April Folly."

(At the Forsyth.)

Beautiful Marion Davies, the Cosmopolitan star, scored heavily Monday at the Forsyth in her new Paramount picture, "April Folly," a story of a girl who put herself into a story and won the heart of the man she loved. Miss Davies really deserves great credit for her clever work in this production, for its delightful realism is directly due to her wonderful interpretation of the stellar role. "April Folly" will be seen at the Forsyth today and Wednesday.

"Easy to Get."

(At the Rialto.)

Another record-breaking crowd came to the Rialto Monday when dainty little Marguerite Clark opened a week's engagement there in her newest Paramount-Artcraft picture, "Easy to Get." In this production Miss Clark portrays the role of a finnicky young bride on her wedding tour, and if you want to see some of the best screen comedy ever filmed, don't miss this one.

Adolphus & Co.

(At Loew's Grand.)

There are acrobatic stunts that will thrill the very soul, Irish and popular songs that will touch the innermost recesses of the heart, monologues that are irresistibly funny, and dances that will make one marvel at the real poetry of motion at Loew's Grand this week. Adolphus and company, in dances; the Bimboes, acrobatics; Henry J. Kelly, songs; Jimmy Rosen and company, sketch; Frank Wamsley and Mae Keating, in comicalities, make a bill that is intensely interesting and pleasing. The big Loew-Metro picture, "Nothing But the Truth," pleases. Coming—June Caprice, in person.

Mary Pickford.

(At the Savoy.)

In celebration of the opening of the spring season, the Savoy theater, on Peachtree street, will today and for the entire week, present Mary Pickford in "Pollyanna," one of her greatest successes. It is a picture that is especially suited to the popular star, and in it she appears in a role that affords her ample opportunity for the display of those talents which have made her one of the most beloved players on the screen today. The presentation of "Pollyanna" is in line with the new policy of the management of the Savoy, which is to offer only pictures selected for their special appeal and uniform excellence. The house has been thoroughly renovated, and begins the new season under flattering auspices. The scale of prices, 10 and 15 cents, prevailing, the indications are that the Savoy will be even more popular than in the past, if such a thing be possible.

June Caprice Will Arrive in City on Thursday Morning

An opportunity is given for everyone who desires to get into the movies in a picture of which the leading role is taken by America's most charming and popular star of the screen—June Caprice.

Miss Caprice is coming to Atlanta for a stay of three days, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, where she will appear after each showing of "In Walked Mary," the big feature picture in which she assumes the leading role, at Loew's Grand.

On her arrival at the Union station Thursday morning at 8 o'clock a camera man will begin making a picture of the beautiful little star and the crowd who will assemble to bid her welcome. This picture will in all probability be shown at Loew's Grand before the week is out, and you will not only have the pleasure of seeing the charming little star, but of seeing yourself in the movies. A large crowd will certainly be present to get a look at the star and see for themselves that she is the same sweet and charming little girl she appears to be in pictures, and you will not be disappointed, for she is everything you have imagined her—beautiful and charming; in fact, just as you have seen her on the screen she will prove in person.

BIG HIT IS SCORED BY "THE RIVER'S END."

"The River's End," Marshall Neilan's first independent production, is the offering this week at the Criterion, and is all that has been claimed for it. It is a stirring picture from first to last, and upon it Neilan has certainly put a real punch into it.

The story, by James Oliver Curwood, deals with John Keith, arrested in the frozen north for a murder by Derwent Coniston, of the northwest mounted police, whose place Keith takes when Conniston dies, through one of those close resemblances that not only lead to remarkable trick photography, but also to some trick complications.

Lewis Stone plays with effective restraint his double role, and Misses Marjorie Daw and Jane Novak are part of the highly decorative background. Some of the scenes are beautiful beyond compare, and the entire production is on a huge scale. Other features on the program include the Criterion orchestra, Dave Love conductor; a Mutt and Jeff comedy; Fox News, and the pipe organ, Ben J. Potter concert organist.

The Dayton Power & Light Company

First Lien and General Mortgage
Three-Year 7% Gold Bonds

Dated March 1, 1920 Due March 1, 1923

Issuance authorized by the Ohio Public Utilities Commission

TAX PROVISIONS: The Company agees to pay interest without deduction for any Normal Federal Income Tax to an amount not exceeding 2% which it may lawfully pay at the source. The Company also agrees to refund the present Pennsylvania Four-Mill Tax to holders of these bonds resident in Pennsylvania, upon request, as set forth in the Trust Indenture.

The following information is taken from official sources:

The Dayton Power and Light Company does the entire central station electric light and power business in Dayton, Ohio, and in fifty-six neighboring communities in a highly-developed agricultural and industrial territory having a present estimated population of 325,000.

Among the well-known manufacturing companies whose plants are located in this territory are The National Cash Register Company, the "Delco" Plant of the General Motors Company, the Davis Sewing Machine Company and the Maxwell Motor Car Company.

During the past seven years the business of this company has shown a steady and substantial growth. In this period the gross earnings have increased over 4.25 times and the net earnings have practically tripled. The net earnings for the year ended January 31st, 1920, were practically 2¾ times the interest charges on the entire funded debt in the hands of the public, including this issue.

Over 80% of the business of the Company is conducted under franchises which, in the opinion of counsel, are unlimited as to time; the remainder extend for many years beyond the life of these bonds.

The Company and its principal predecessor company have been operating under the present management for the last fourteen years.

We recommend these bonds for your investment and shall be pleased to send upon request a circular describing the issue in detail.

TEMPORARY RAILROAD VALUATION NECESSARY

In Applying 5½ Per Cent Rate Return by Interstate Commerce Commission.

(The Constitution—Philadelphia Public Ledger Service—Copyright, 1920.)

Washington, March 22.—In applying the 5 1-2 per cent rate return guaranteed the railroads under the new transportation act, the interstate commerce commission will be obliged to use a temporary valuation for the roads based upon their so-called "book" or property investment value.

This became evident today at a hearing called by the commission on the question of grouping the carriers for rate making purposes and determining the value to be used for computing the percentage rate return. Arguments of the railroad executives, investors and even representatives of the shippers made before the commission today all were in favor of adopting the property investment value as a temporary valuation. Since the commission must apply the 5 1-2 per cent return on an annual basis beginning September 1, next, spokesmen of various interests pointed out there was nothing else for the commission to do but to accept the roads own fixures.

Compilation of the commission's own valuation of the transportation systems of the country, authorized by the valuation act passed several years ago, cannot be accomplished in less than two more years. For this reason some basis must be determined upon at once to put the rate return provision of the Esch-Cummins act in operation.

The hearing before the commission was called to duscuss two subjects:

1—Whether the rate adjustments under the new law shall be made for the carriers as a whole, or by rate groups or territories to be designated by the commission, and if the latter, what rate groups or territories shall be designated.

2—What methods should be employed for determining the aggregate value of railroad property of the carriers as a whole, or of the carriers as a whole in each of such rate groups or territories.

In a brief discussion of the first question, most of the railroad men agreed that the old classifications, —the eastern, western and southern, should apply under the new act. B. F. Bush of the Missouri Pacific, representing southwestern interests, argued for a special southwestern classification, as did Stanley Johnson of the Rock Island, representing some of the western trunk lines. S. Davies Warfield, president and Foerney Johnston, counsel for the National Association of Owners of railroad securities urged the adoption of the book value as the only method by which the commission could proceed. Alfred Thom, counsel for the association of railroad executives, outlined the position of the railroad executives as follows:

"The point before the commission is to determine in a summary way the aggregate value of all property held or used for the purpose of transportation in the several state, the transportation act recognizing that the correct amount of such aggregate value cannot be determined. In considering and determining this problem the property investment accounts and the materials and supplies accounts in a given group are, in our judgment, admissable as evidence and the carriers believe that these accounts for the several groups are the minimum conservative figures now susceptible of use, all other data and evidence being for the most part actually and in all cases legally incomplete and unfinished.

"In our judgment the property investment accounts should be considered in connection with and supplemental to any other available evidence sufficiently complete and reasonably adequate for the purpose. But the basis of the value now arrived at should not be incomplete data compiled now as it is important that the final valuation under that act should not be anticipated or prejudiced in this proceeding."

BONILLAS AND OBREGON LEADING IN MEXICO

Mexico City, March 22.—Thousands thronged the streets yesterday to greet Ygnacio Bonillas, Mexican ambassador to the United States, who has announced his willingness to become the presidential candidate of the civilian party in the general elections, July 11. The demonstration was considered as a first real presidential campaign gathering, and as marking the climax of the preliminary canvass. A few slight disorders were quelled by mounted police.

Newspaper comment and published interviews with other candidates and government officials indicate the presidential fight has narrowed down to Bonillas and Alvaro Obregon, with partisans of Pablo Gonzales waging a more or less extensive campaign.

What Platforms Declare.

Platforms announded by the candidates all declare for the maintenance of Mexican national rights, pacification of the country and other generalities. Platforms, however, are virtually negligible, since the campaign is being waged on personalities. Obregon's supporters declare that the Carranza administration is opposing the general's candidacy and is using its resources to secure the election of Bonillas. These charges, together with intimations that Bonillas is ineligible for the presidency, and that he is not a Mexican citizen, have been denied by civilian leaders and government officials. The claim that he is the candidate for the Protestants has also been met with vehement denials.

General Federico Montas, former governor of Guanajuato, who was the leading spirit in the recent conference here of 16 state governors, has declared the sole purpose of that conference was to guarantee free and orderly elections. He recently resigned his post as governor to take an active part in the campaign of Bonillas. Luis Cabrara, secretary of the treasury, generally considered a spokesman for the government, has been quoted as stating the administration not only intends to guarantee orderly elections, but to deliver to the successful candidate power to conduct a successful administration. General Montes, who is a strong administration supporter, recently declared the governor's conference showed the state governments were strongly allied with the Carranza administration and determined to carry out its policies, which, he said, had been successful.

What Carranza Has Done.

"President Carranza's promise to pacify the republic and turn over a strong administration to the successful candidate is already virtually fulfilled. During the last year the most dangerous opponents of the existing government have been eliminated, these including Zapata, Blanquet, Alvarez, Garcia Arenas, Angeles, Cejudo and Palafox, while others such as Pelaez are without resources and anxious to surrender."

It was recently reported that supporters of Obregon had uttered threats that revolution would result should their candidate be defeated by unfair means. Little fear has been aroused, however, in either business or official circles, since it is the general belief the country is tired of warfare and anxious to continue the work of reconstruction.

OPEN SHOP UPHELD IN COURT DECISION

Boston, March 22.—The open shop was upheld by the full bench of the supreme court when it ordered a permanent injunction to issue against photo-engravers' local and international unions, restraining them from interfering with the business of Wright & Co. and the Folsom Engraving company. Refusal of the companies to comply with union demand to conduct their shops on a closed basis had resulted in a strike declaration.

R. A. M'GILL ELECTED LEADER OF CHARITIES

Reports of C. B. Howard, Retiring President, and Secretary Dexter Read.

A dinner was served to the members of the Associated Charities in the breakfast room of the Kimball house last night, at which the report of C. B. Howard, the retiring president, and of Robert C. Dexter, the general secretary, were presented, and officers and directors for the ensuing year were elected.

The new officers who were selected last night are R. A. McGill, president; Harry P. Hermance, first vice president; Rockwell Johnson, second vice president, and J. M. B. Hoxsey, treasurer.

Mr. Howard, who retires from the presidency of the association, stated that his duties as president of the state board of public welfare conflicted to some extent with his obligations as an officer of the Associated Charities, and it was for that reason principally that it was not politic for him to continue in the latter position.

His report was, in part, as follows:

"It must be borne in mind that the Associated Charities is not a relief agency. We give relief just as a doctor gives medicine—it is frequently a necessity and sometimes saves lives—but it is not the essential part of our work. Our service is the provision of trained practitioners in family work.

"Our workers, and the society as a whole, attempt to serve the community by providing it with a body of workers especially trained in the art of social diagnosis and treatment. Our aim is to restore, where possible, the families who come to us, to economic independence and to make of them and their children self-respecting, self-supporting citizens.

"This function cannot be performed if we are to restrict our work to the giving of relief, although relief, when necessary, should be given adequately and regularly. It seems necessary to make this statement constantly, as there is no more common misrepresentation than that the amount of relief given is the whole test of usefulness. During the past year our workers, under the leadership of Miss Edith Thomson, have given to the best of their ability their services and skill."

BASEBALL NOTES

The Cincinnati Reds appear to be in good shape and should be able to show true championship form when the season starts.

Catcher Ed Sweeney, formerly with the New York Yankees, has signed with the Kansas City team of the American association.

The veteran Eddie Foster will most likely hold down third base for the Red Sox, in case Oscar Vitt makes good his threat to quit the team.

As the White Sox were the last major league team to get into camp, Manager Gleason must believe in a short and strenuous training season.

With four or five of the regulars absent from the training camp, the White Sox have been up against it in their efforts to perfect their team work.

Manager Connie Mack is personally tutoring Hyatt and Walker, two young catchers with the Athletics. The veteran pilot having been a star backstop in his playing days, he should be able to show the youngsters a few tricks in the art of catching.

Jack Graney has suffered a severe attack of influenza and will not be able to join the Cleveland Indians for some time.

If the rookies who have been hitting home runs in practice games are able to continue their good work more than one big league manager will be a happy pilot.

A scarcity of pitchers has proved a big handicap to the Boston Braves' spring training. Big leaguers need lots of pitching in order to get in batting trim.

Hooper, Menosky and Hendryx look good in the Red Sox outfield and in all probability they will make up the regular outer works for the Barrows outfit.

The New York Yankees appear to have the best team they ever had, even better than the Yanks who broke into the American league other who is going east from California to seek a match with Tunney.

Erne-Gans Battle.

Frank Erne deefated Joe Gans in twelve rounds at New York twenty years ago today. This bout between the little Swiss boxer and the clever negro was for the lightweight title, then held by Erne. There was a great deal of feeling between the two fighters, and their friends and many young fortunes were wagered on the issue. Charley White was referee. In cleverness and generalship the men were about evenly matched, but Joe showed a lack of gameness in that contest. During the first eight rounds Gans had the shade, but after that the Buffalo boy assumed the aggressive, and in the twelfth round he knocked Joe against the ropes. While trying to escape from his tight position Gans and Erne accidentally butted each other with their heads, and, strange to say, the black boy got the worst of it. One of his eyes was closed, and, declaring that he couldn't see, Gans refused to fight any longer. A couple of years later Gans met Erne and won the title with a single punch in the first round.

Class in Sportography.

ANSWER—Strange as it may seem, there was a time when people thought of reducing prices. The American association held a meeting at Philadelphia on August 7, 1888, and reduced the price of admission to 25 cents. But that was in the good old days when the word "profiteer" was unknown.

MAY I NOT

. . . say that maybe Joe Stecher is the world's champion wrestler, unless he was floored, in private, when he tackled his income tax report?

Diversion for the Giants.

Training in a city of the size of San Antonio will be something of a novelty for the Giants, as they have not rounded into form in a big town for many years. John McGraw as a rule is partial to small towns as sites for training camps, and for eleven consecutive years took his club to Marlin, Texas, which ha sa population of something like 5,000. Last spring because of the short training period, he shifted to Florida and, passing up places like Jacksonville, Tampa and St. Augustine, selected Gainesville, a quiet, secluded hamlet, far from the maddening crowd's ignoble strife and off the beaten track of tourists from the north.

Matches for Tunney.

Efforts are being made to bring Willie Meehan on from the Pacific coast for a bout with Gene Tunney at Jersey City next month. Meehan has been offered $2,500 for the bout and is ready to accept as soon as he received transportation. Matching Tunney with the conqueror of Jack Dempsey seems to be a rather hasty proceeding, but Meehan undoubtedly has one back oar late and it is highly probable that the youngster will be able to take his measure. Chick Wiggins, a light heavyweight, who recently returned from Australia, wheer he made a great impression, is anxious to come to us, to economic independence and to make of them and their children self-respecting, self-supporting citizens.

Ren Kelly, a recruit pitcher with the Giants, is making quite a reputation as a slugger in addition to showing up well as a twirler. So far he has outhit his big brother, George Kelly, the Giants' first baseman.

Central Avenue Property

Between Trinity avenue and Garnett street, we can offer a lot 52x150 with a large dwelling on it, at a price around $10,000. This is another one of those well-located, close-in business lots that will come in handy some day, and in the meantime has improvements in the way of stout dwelling houses that will pay a fair income. Undoubtedly, before long, business fronts are going to be in brisk demand, as there is not enough business space to go around. The buyer who has foresight enough to buy these places at the present time will find himself in a fortunate position before long. Real estate brokers will be hunting him up asking him at what price he is willing to sell.
